Democrats Begin Work On Platform And Ticket

Rankin Attacks Willkie in House; Wheeler Announces He's a Candidate

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Democrats yesterday drove restlessly through a fog of third-term silence toward a ticket and a platform shaped to answer a fighting Republican challenge.

Another hat was dropped unconditionally into the Presidential ring.

A search was launched for a Western farm Democrat for Vice President.

And preliminary talks were opened on the platform.

But two weeks before the Democratic convention the President kept his third term secret through a barrage of press conference questions on his own political plans.

Wagner Begins Talks

A report spread that Mr. Roosevelt will continue his silence until the last "i" is dotted in a platform conforming to his own specifications on Wednesday, July 17.

Developments as Democrats headed into their last fortnight's preconvention stretch:

Senator Wagner, of New York, chairman of the Democratic resolutions committee, opened informal talks on the platform and planned to leave early for Chicago for conferences with those resolutions committeemen who have been designated.

Willkie Attacked in House

Democratic attacks on the Republican convention nomination of Willkie broke in the House, where Representative Rankin, of Mississippi, referred to "that Saturnalia in Philadelphia" and charged Willkie's campaign would be financed by electric power consumers. Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, retorted that Democrats are "frantically scrambling" because they know Willkie will win.

Meanwhile, at his press conference, President Roosevelt yesterday smilingly sidestepped a series of pointed queries on his third term intentions and said he had no comment to make now on the Republican convention, its nominee, or its platform.

Senator Wheeler, of Montana, announced in St. Louis that his name would go before the Democratic convention regardless of whether the President seeks a third term. Only Postmaster General Farley and Vice President Garner have disclosed similar intentions.

"Champ" Ignores Challenge

President Roosevelt ignored Wendell L. Willkie's "I want to beat the champ" challenge, said he had been too busy to read anything about it, and when questioned on his "availability" said he was not even a minor prophet.

The names of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Gov. Lloyd C. Stark, of Missouri, and Senator Lucas, of Illinois, figured in Democratic Vice Presidential talk as organization Democrats sought a Western farm name on the ticket to offset the Republican Vice Presidential nomination of Senate Minority Leader McNary.

A reporter asked if the President would gratify Willkie's desire to "meet the champ." He said he didn't know what the newsman was talking about. Another explained the Republican nominee's challenge and the President replied that he hadn't read it.

Another questioner recalled John L. Sullivan's remark that he needed only a shave and a haircut to lick an opponent, adding "I see you've got a good haircut, Mr. President." The President grinned back that

Stimson Approved, 14 to 3; No 3d-Term Promise, Knox Says

Col. Henry L. Stimson, twice a member of Republican Cabinets, was approved by a 14-3 vote of the Senate Military Affairs Committee yesterday for the post of Secretary of War; but the Senate Naval Affairs Committee decided after a four-hour session to hear further testimony today before voting on the appointment of the Republican 1936 Vice Presidential nominee, Col. Frank Knox, to be Secretary of the Navy.

KNOX

STIMSON

Stimson, denying that he is a "warmonger," said the United States must arm at high speed and should buy more time for building its defense by giving aid short of war to Britain. This country "has its back against the wall," the former Secretary of State said.

Col Knox, urging rapid increase in naval strength, advocated private shipment of supplies and equipment to Great Britain but not at the expense of necessary American defenses. He opposed sending American troops to help the British under any circumstances.

Knox Opposes Sending Troops

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

Col. Frank Knox, Republican, named by President Roosevelt to be Secretary of the Navy, yesterday told the Senate Naval Affairs Committee that the President had made no "commitments" regarding a third term when asking him to accept the appointment.

The Chicago publisher, G. O. P. Vice Presidential nominee in 1936, was asked directly by Senator Ellender (Democrat), of Louisiana, whether Mr. Roosevelt had made any mention of a possible third term when discussing the appointment.

"Neither then nor subsequently were any commitments made on either side," Knox replied, adding that he had "nothing whatever to say about the third-term question.

Before the committee, Knox repeatedly advocated "every aid to the Allies short of war," but at the same time vigorously denied a report that he favored sending American men to Europe.

Urges Neutrality Repeal

After nearly four hours of questioning, the committee decided to defer action on Col. Knox's appointment until further testimony is taken today. It is generally expected that the committee will vote for confirmation, but a minority report is almost certain.

Col. Knox, whose ruddy complexion and sandy hair belie his 66 years, advocated repeal of the present Neutrality Act, settlement of British and French war debts through cession of West Indian islands, and a reappraisal of the American attitude toward Japanese expansion because of the threat of danger in the Atlantic.

In emphatically indorsing aid for Great Britain, Col. Knox said he would not support transactions between this Government and the British. The aid, he declared, should take the form of sales by private firms in the United States.

Offered His Aid

Col. Knox revealed that the President had first approached him regarding the Cabinet office last winter, "after the Gridiron Dinner." He said that in view of the popular belief the war was "phony," he told the President it would not be wise for him to accept but that "if the war took another turn and there came back a real crisis, I'd be willing to do anything he wanted me to do."

"After the fall of France," continued Col. Knox, "a friend of the

Stimson Urges Aid 'Short of War'

By Hedley Donovan.
Post Staff Writer

The Senate Military Affairs Committee yesterday approved the nomination of Henry L. Stimson as Secretary of War after cross-examining him two hours on his support of "short-of-war" aid to Britain. The vote was 14 to 3.

Chairman Sheppard (Democrat), of Texas, said the appointment will be submitted to the Senate today. Opposing the nomination in committee were Senators Johnson (Democrat), of Colorado; Thomas (Republican), of Idaho, and Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota.

Stimson, 72 and a lifelong Republican, smiled as he told the committee he had not been "in entire agreement" with New Deal domestic policies. He said he approached his new duties in the spirit of an Army officer, "neither a Republican nor a Democrat."

Urges Aid Short of War

The former Secretary of State insisted his views on foreign policy were not involved in his appointment to head the War Department, but under a barrage of questioning he urged that America aid England by all means except direct military intervention.

Any steps which bolster British naval power in the North Atlantic "give us just that much longer to prepare our own defense," he stated.

If Britain's fleet is threatened with destruction or capture, and the United States is still in a position to save it, this country must act—"neutrality or no neutrality,"—Stimson declared.

The Republican "elder statesman" urged selective compulsory military training as an essential step for defense "against a deadly peril."

Taft "Unfair," He Says

Senators Taft (Republican), of Ohio, and Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, though not members of the committee, were permitted to question Stimson. Each indicated he might not vote for confirmation on the floor.

Presence of two of the unsuccessful contenders for the G. O. P. Presidential nomination led the witness to ask, "Have you got Wendell Willkie around here somewhere?"

Taft said Stimson's function as chief of the War Department could not be separated from his position on foreign policy. He said he was "seriously disturbed" by Stimson's recommendation, in at address at Yale University June 18, that the

Willkie Bars Corporation Campaign Aid

Declares He'll Reject Gifts Over $5,000; Names Managerial Board of 12

By the Associated Press

New York, July 2.—Republican Presidential Nominee Wendell Willkie today summoned 12 party leaders from every section of the country—including workers for two of his leading opponents for the nomination—to guide his drive toward the White House.

The candidate then served notice upon corporations that he wanted no "corporate contributions in any guise, whether they be advertising in campaign books, programs or anything else."

"Honorable contributions" would be accepted, he said, but those exceeding $5,000 from any one source would be rejected.

"In my judgment, this is the people's movement and I want to keep it as such," he said.

At a press conference, Willkie emphatically declared that he was casting aside "our American political habit" of installing heavy campaign contributors as Ambassadors, Ministers or "in other Government positions."

Wants Hatch Bill Enacted

"I want to emphasize that at this time, when information received from our Ambassadorial and Ministerial staffs is of such overwhelming consequence I don't want appointments to such positions to be the result of any campaign contribution," he said.

The candidate said he hoped Congress would enact the Hatch Bill, often referred to as the "clean politics bill," which limits to $5,000 a contribution from any one source.

Willkie put Gov. Stassen of Minnesota, keynoter of the Philadelphia convention and floor leader of the Willkie forces, at the head of his campaign advisory committee.

He also invited as members Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, of New Mexico, comanager of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's campaign for the nomination, and David S. Ingalls, Cleveland attorney, who manager Senator Taft's bid.

This move was interpreted as Willkie's personal invitation to the party's rank and leadership to unite in a harmonious campaign.

Willkie said his 12-manager board would function in an advisory capacity throughout the campaign, regardless of the personnel and strategy determined Friday, when he meets with a subcommittee of the Republican National Committee to discuss campaign procedure.

Rep. Marin Chosen

Other advisers picked by the candidate were:

Representative Martin, of Massachusetts, minority leader of the House and permanent chairman of the Philadelphia convention.

Gov. Baldwin of Connecticut, who delivered his State's entire bloc of 16 votes on each ballot for the nomination and who co-directed floor strategy.

Representative Halleck of the Second Indiana District, who de-

Rumanian Planes Invade Bulgaria, Are Fired Upon

Sofia, July 2 (A).—Two Rumanian warplanes flew over the Bulgarian Danube River port of Ruse today and were fired at by Bulgarian antiaircraft.

Nevertheless, Bulgaria remained completely calm, with no indication of extensive military preparations similar to those taken by Hungary in pressing her claims upon Rumania for Transylvania.

Rather, it was learned tonight that a number of Bulgarian officers and soldiers had been given short leaves, thus it appeared that while Bulgaria is eager to regain South Dobruja from Rumania she still is basing her hopes on "peaceful revisionism."

Reich Relief Aide Has Bomb Scare

New York, July 2 (A).—The manager of the American committee for the German Relief Fund telephoned police this morning that a mysterious package had come in the mail that looked like a bomb.

Five cars jammed with policemen and detectives screeched around to the scene.

British Sovereigns Refuse to Send Princesses Abroad

London, July 2 (A).—King George and Queen Elizabeth have firmly rejected suggestions from influential quarters that Princess Elizabeth, 14, heiress presumptive to the throne, and her sister, Princess Margaret Rose, be sent to one of the dominions because of the danger of a German invasion, the Daily Mail said tonight.

Repeated efforts to persuade the royal pair to send the two princesses to a safer land have received this answer in effect:

"We all face a common peril. Thousands of parents in this country are compelled to keep their children at home. We would prefer to share whatever family perils there may be with parents of this country."

French Naval Aide Still Near Death

Jacques Parent, 51-year-old naval aide at the French Embassy, who shot himself in the head at his home, 2017 O street northwest, Monday, remained near death at Garfield Hospital last night.

According to Commander Pierre Benech, French naval attache, Parent was driven "into a neurotic condition" by reports of the German invasion of his native land. A note indicating suicide was found beside the man, police said.

House Gets Bill to Put Stern Penalties on Vice in Capital

Congress, the District Commissioners and the United States District Attorney teamed up yesterday to inflict sterner penalties on the habitues of houses of ill fame and to give the city's law enforcement agencies a weapon against procur[illegible].

A bill introduced by Chairman Jennings Randolph of the House District Committee, at the request of the Commissioners, would subject "any person who frequents or lives in houses or other establishments of ill fame" to a maximum fine of $100 or a jail sentence of not more than 90 days.

The measure would amend a provision of the old Kenyon "red light" law which made habitues of unlawful establishments subject only to posting a $500 bond, "conditioned on good behavior and industry for one year." The provision requiring bond would be retained as an additional penalty.

In a letter to Randolph, Melvin C. Hazen, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, explained:

"It has been reported that there are a number of women living in and frequenting houses of ill fame [illegible] and when apprehended they are required to give bond for their good behavior. They have no difficulty in procuring such bond . . . They then apparently go back to the same manner of living and continue in violation of said provision of law."

Meanwhile, United States District Attorney Edward M. Curran was drafting a law which would make possible conviction of men who accept fees for making "dates" with girls for other men.

Germany Warns South America

By International News Service

Berlin (Wednesday), July 3.—Germany tonight warned Latin America that the New World would suffer commercially after the war if it did not cooperate with the Reich now.

The admonition appeared in Fuehrer Hitler's own newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter, which blamed the United States for the attitude of Latin America.

Hitler's paper said:

"Part of the Latin American press has become engaged in anti-German agitation.

"We do not want to interfere with domestic conditions in other states . . . but it is time to issue a warning.

"In spite of President Roosevelt's attempts to organize something like an anti-European bloc, sensible Central and South American circles . . . realize that the Latin American republics . . . will be dependent on an European reorganized by Germany for sales, and not vice versa.

"Germany will never forget where . . . it could count on . . . friends in the fight against the British oppressor, and where it met with malevolence . . ."

Roosevelt Sets Up More Rigid Arms Control

Export of Materials Vital to Defense Must Be Licensed

President Roosevelt yesterday set up by proclamation a licensing system to control exports of munitions, materials and machinery essential to the national defense.

The preparedness program was further broadened by appointment of a 16-member labor policy advisory committee, representing the A. F. of L., the C. I. O. and the railroad unions, to bring about cooperation in strengthening the defenses.

Immediately after signing the May bill empowering him to control or embargo exports of materials needed here, the President appointed Lieut. Col. Russell L. Maxwell, U. S. Army, as administrator of export control, and published a list of basic materials and products, chemicals and machine tools that may be exported only under license granted by the Secretary of State.

A White House statement said the proclamation sets up the controls "considered necessary at this time" and Mr. Roosevelt, at his press conference, emphasized that no embargo was established. Nevertheless, the proclamation authorizes the Secretary of State "to issue or refuse

R. A. F. Raids Kiel; 135 Killed or Hurt As Reich Bombs Rain on England

By the Associated Press

London, July 2.—German bombs caused at least 135 casualties in raids on three northeastern coastal towns and in the open country of the southwest tonight.

It was reported that at least 12 persons had been killed and 123 injured.

It was not immediately known whether this represented the casualties of all three northeastern towns which were attacked, or only in one of them. The southwest apparently escaped casualties.

Many of the injured were cut by flying glass splinters.

An undetermined number in a poor quarter of one northeastern town were buried in the wreckage of their homes.

It was the second successive time that Nazi raiders took advantage of the long English twilight to bomb targets on this island. Monday's raids left 12 dead and 22 injured.

Call for United States Help

The harassment by German raiders echoed in the House of Commons, where Maj. Albert Newby Braithwaite asserted it was the duty of the United States "to send their fleet and their boats to take our women and children across to their country."

The air ministry announced a major success of its own, claiming another heavy attack on Germany's 28,000-ton warship Scharnhorst in an hour's raid last night on the Kiel Canal.

Four direct hits on the vessel and on the floating dock in which it rested were claimed for one plane. Another dropped three bombs which exploded in a row across the battleship and started a fire.

Many Fires Result

The Scharnhorst, which the British had claimed to have damaged on two other occasions, was reported laid up for repairs.

A series of explosions, the ministry said, was followed by half a dozen fires through the dockyards, which from aloft appeared to be "a solid mass of flame covering as much space as a big airdrome."

[The German high command said bombs were dropped in British raids on Kiel and northern and western Germany Monday night and five civilians killed, but only slight material damage done with seven British planes shot down and three German craft missing.

Ruhr Raided Again

[Again tonight British bombers ranged over Germany for the third successive night of raids that extended throughout most of the industrial Ruhr Valley. Preston Grover, Associated Press correspondent taken on tour with a group of American newspapermen to inspect the effects of British bombing, arrived at Munster just in time to watch the real thing.

[He said German officers told him 41 persons have been killed and 74 injured in British raids in the last month, and the Americans were shown a section of two and three story houses smashed by a row of British bombs dropped about 60 yards apart.]

In Commons, Maj. Braithwaite declared that "with our island in the

Reich-Britain Compromise Peace Urged

Swedish Paper Calls For Mediator to Initiate Negotiations

By Otto D. Tolischus
Copyright by New York Times

Stockholm, July 2.—Voicing the opinion of authoritative Swedish quarters, the newspaper Svenska Dagbladet today appealed for a compromise peace between Germany and Great Britain, and called for a mediator to step forward to initiate negotiations.

After pointing out the weakened strategic position of Great Britain following the capitulation of France, as well as Germany's growing concern toward the forward march by Russia, this leading Swedish newspaper writes:

"There must be a middle way between a British catastrophe and a German triumph. The mortal German-British struggle must, in the end, destroy irreplacable cultural values, and weaken the entire political and economic position of all Europe to such an extent as to endanger the world political leadership of the white race.

"Such an outcome would serve neither Germany nor Britain, even if London should for the moment be speculating on Stalin's growing fear of a victorious Germany.

"Many an outside observer finds that the moment has come for a mediation attempt. But who is to take the initiative?"

It is no secret this article also expresses the views and hopes of the Swedish government.

According to best opinion here, Premier Franco of Spain already is making soundings regarding the chances of peace in Berlin and London, all rival denials notwithstanding.

Swedish peace hopes are supported by Sweden's own wishful

Disorders Seethe In Bucharest; Some in Cabinet Urge King Stay

By the Associated Press

Belgrade (Wednesday), July 3.—King Carol of Rumania was reported in diplomatic circles here tonight to have told members of his cabinet that he was planning to abdicate because of the developments of the last few days but they were said to have persuaded him to remain on the throne.

Previously King Carol had received a note of protest signed by leaders of now-outlawed parties and other leaders who blamed the King for the loss of Bessarabia and northern Bucovina to Russia.

Some were said to have demanded complete abdication of the dynasty with others desiring the return to the throne of Crown Prince Mihai.

Their chief reproach was that Carol fought them because of their tie-up with Germany and Italy when, they declared, only those powers could have prevented Rumania's present situation.

They were said also to accuse King Carol of having failed to seek a more favorable settlement with Russia, Hungary and Bulgaria when Rumania was in a better bargaining position.

Pogrom Breaks Out

Bucharest (Wednesday), July 3.—Anti-Semitic rioting, with Jews shot down and beaten, swept in a bloody wave overnight throughout old Rumania—harassed from within, shorn of two provinces, and threatened with Balkan wars jeopardizing two more.

Street fighting broke out less than 24 hours after King Carol II turned from British alliances and appealed to the Axis powers for help to save the kingdom, and on the heels of a hint from the foreign minister that Rumania hopes to get back Russian-seized Bessarabia and Bucovina, possibly with German aid.

The capital was blacked out for the first time. Ambulances sped to scenes of rioting. And from Soviet-seized Bessarabia and Bucovina the general staff rushed Rumania's full war strength to the frontiers of menaced Transylvania and Dobruja, facing Hungary and Bulgaria.

Disorders occurred in scattered towns from the capital to Jassy, near the border of Soviet-occupied Bessarabia, but were described as worst in Bucharest where bitter fighting broke out among university students.

Jews Fleeing

Wealthy Jews fled from their homes in cities to refuge in the country.

Some new disorders were reported at Galati despite the vigilance of heavy military patrols on duty since riots last Sunday.

Near the Prut River Jewish refugee women and children were said to have been dragged from trains and beaten. There were reports that some were hurled beneath the wheels of moving trains or shot in their seats in the darkness as the trains sped through tunnels.

In Bucharest, ambulances were called to several riots. The worst fighting was at Polytechnic High School where several were injured critically.

Foreign Minister Constantine Argetoianu told the foreign affairs committee of the Rumanian Chamber of Deputies last night that the lost colonies of Bessarabia and Bucovina "are still and will remain Rumanian"—indicating Rumania expects to get them back sometime, possibly with German aid.

He admitted, however, that "one of the main reasons for our consent to Russia's demands was that

Berlin, July 2 (A).—Germany tonight reckoned her total casualties in the Western offensive which crushed the Lowlands and France at 156,492.

Figures issued by the high command in a report on "the greatest military victory of all times" said 27,074 German soldiers had been killed since May 10, 111,034 wounded and 18,384 missing.

Against this it listed more than 1,900,000 French captives, among them 29,000 officers.

This information was contained in a long, detailed memorandum on the German campaign in France, explaining how various operations were conducted and what generals were in charge.

Characterization of the Western campaign as the greatest military victory in history and acclaim for Nazi arms, generalship and cohesion were part of a three-page conclusion.

The entire armament and equipment of 5[illegible] French divisions fell into Germ[illegible]'s after June 5.

Captur[illegible]terial was described [illegible] virtually all of [illegible] artillery as well as large quantities of other equipment and supplies.

(Last week Gen. Charles de Gaulle, French general still heading resistance to Germany, estimated that German forces had captured 350,000 men in the first phase of the big battle in Belgium and later 600,000 in the Battle of France, killing 60,000 and wounding about 300,000—a total of 1,310,000 casualties.)

THE FIXED IDEA

By 5 o'clock canoes, sailboats and motor boats begin to dot the Potomac and the harbor. Hundreds of clerks make it from desk to tennis court in 30 minutes flat. Around Hains Point hundreds of bicyclists are scorching or dawdling along.

About one-third of the 120,000 Government employes are away on their 30-day vacations, along with many of the bigshots. This leaves the Capital comparatively at peace, and the tourists add to the shirtsleeve atmosphere. The summer calm has descended.

Few of the inhabitants of the summer Capital have much to do with war and peace or the 1940 campaign, except to talk about them. Their immediate intimate concern is for motor trips and golf, and visits from Cousin Susie, and will rents go up if the defense program brings thousands of extra workers, and how to amuse the kids during the school vacation.

• • • •

So it's picnics in the park and excursions down the river and life as usual, and a valiant, half-unconscious attempt to forget, at least for hours at a time, the vast unease in the air.

"—are the Sphinx's lips moving?"

The rank and file of the Government gulp the headlines from overseas with a wry face and maybe a spasm of pain, and then dive into the lighter columns or turn to the sport pages for relief, to see whether the ball team is still in the cellar.

• • • •

Among the insiders who rightly or wrongly feel closer to things, there is a stirring. Soon the sphinx will speak. Roosevelt will say whether he will or he won't, during the next fortnight, and this is good for several million words of conversation daily. But the betting odds seem to be at least 10 to 1 that he will.

One of the favorite warm weather amusements over an icy mint julep is to let the imagination run riot as to exactly how FDR will streamline his yes or no on a third term.

There are some fantastic formulas, from an explosive indignant "No" all the way to a resignation on January 4, if he is elected.

But all the picnic tables in Rock Creek Park are filled by 6:30 of an evening, and at 6 a. m. of a hot morning you can see sleepers stretched out on blankets or car cushions on the grass along the Potomac, their feet toward the water. But so far this summer Maine has had nothing on Washington in resort weather.

"—planes & tanks in October"

Down near the swimming pool on the point, scores of people are playing miniature golf under the floodlights. There is a theory that in times of stress people seek oblivion in futile games like miniature golf.

They played miniature golf in 1930 as if their hearts would break. And now they are playing miniature golf at least in Washington. But the Capital is the most sport-minded city in the land, at every pastime from dart-throwing to archery, from paddle tennis to polo.

But behind all this, the dominant thought is national defense. Always in the background is the worry, every hour of the day and many hours of the night, about planes and tanks.

• • • •

Even among the Capital's nonvoters who are neither politicians nor military experts, the impression is growing that unless the New Dealers have planes and tanks rolling off the production lines in October, the Republicans may win in November. But this seems, in the mind of the average Government worker, to be a secondary matter, for the moment, as compared to really important things like parking space and the weather.

$9,666,085,539 Spending In Year Is Treasury Record

Treasury Places Deficit for 12 Months At $3,741,249,136

The Government gave out an accounting yesterday of its financial operations for the fiscal year that ended Sunday and revealed:

The year's spending, $9,666,085,539, topped all previous records. The deficit, $3,741,249,136, was not of record size, but outclassed last year's by more than a hundred million.

Revenues of $5,924,836,402 exceeded budget expectations by $221,000,000, chiefly due to an unlooked-for jump in income tax collections, resulting from better business since the European war began.

Expenditures fell short of the sums in the President's January budget message by about $100,000,000.

Interest Exceeds Billion

The Government is borrowing money at a low-point average interest rate of 2.583 per cent, but interest payments on the debt have jumped to slightly over the billion-dollar mark.

The debt itself, certain to be the shuttlecock of stump speakers in the coming election campaigns, soared to $42,967,000,000, well below the legal debt limit that was recently boosted to $49,000,000,000.

The Army failed to spend $90,000,000 of its budget allowance, while the Works Projects Administration went almost the same distance over its budgeted mark.

Relief Spending Cut

The published figures showed that the deficit, tenth in a row, has been exceeded only twice in peacetime—1935 and 1936. For the ten fiscal years these deficits were: 1031, $901,959,000; 1932, $2,942,051,000; 1933, $2,245,453,000; 1934, $3,255,393,000; 1935, $3,782,966,000; 1936, $4,952,929,000 (swollen by soldiers' bonus payments); 1937, $3,252,540,000; 1938, $1,449,626,000, and 1939, $3,600,514,000.

Biggest spending cut reflected in the figures comes in relief, a trend that will be continued this year. The WPA expenditures for the fiscal year just ended were $1,477,000,000, dropping from $2,239,603,411 the year before. But for the year coming up Congress has appropriated only $1,000,000,000.

Defense Figures Jump

The biggest jump in expenditures is shown, of course, in those for national defense, with more increases to come. War Department disbursements last year were $667,138,363 and the Navy spent $891,624,558. Combined expenditures by these two agencies for next year, not counting contract authorizations, are estimated at more than $3,600,000,000 and there is talk of another $5,000,000,000 program to come.

The farm program, as shown by the published figures, jumped almost a third in cost to $1,020,147,739, chiefly due to replenishing the capital of the Commodity Credit Corporation, but is to be pared for this year to $950,000,000.

The Gallup Poll

G. O. P. Platform Found in Accord With Public's Views on Many Counts

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., July 2.—In most of its major planks the Republican platform is closely in accord with American public opinion as measured by Institute surveys. In only two notable instances — the planks on reciprocal trade treaties and on a Constitutional amendment to prohibit third terms—is there any major deviation between public sentiment and the program of action advocated at Philadelphia.

DR. GALLUP

The antithird term amendment idea has been opposed by a majority of voters in the two instances in which the Institute has surveyed opinion on the issue. Allowing for the fact that sentiment may change now that the Republicans have officially advocated the amendment, here is how the Nation has divided on the issue in previous studies.

"Would you favor a Constitutional amendment prohibiting any President from serving a third term?"

	Sept., 1938	Nov., 1939
Favor amendment	48%	42%
Oppose amendment	52	58

The vote closely follows party lines, with the Republican rank and file overwhelmingly in favor of enacting such an amendment and the Democrats opposed. The party vote in the last survey was:

	Democrats	Republicans
Favor amendment	23%	65%
Oppose amendment	77	35

The Republican platform is highly critical of the Hull reciprocal trade treaty program, though it does not propose to abolish it.

Majority Favor Treaties

A recent Institute poll found, however, that among those voters who have definite views on reciprocal trade treaties a majority of both Democrats and Republicans favor the treaties.

"The Republican Party," says the platform, "is firmly opposed to involving this Nation in foreign war." This declaration echoes the views of a huge majority of American voters who, up to the time France surrendered, were nine-to-one against going to war.

The platform advocates a national defense system strong enough to prevent any unfriendly power from setting foot on American soil. Surveys show that the public has consistently favored a stronger Army, Navy and air force for the last five years. The majority have also expressed their willingness to pay higher taxes for this purpose—a course advocated in the G. O. P. platform.

Want Strong Fighting Force

The Republicans declare they would build a fighting force strong enough to "uphold in war the Monroe Doctrine." A recent national survey found the majority of voters in favor of aiding Canada, Central America and South America if any of those places are attacked by a foreign power.

The platform advocates giving aid to foreign countries fighting against the invasion of the dictator powers. Public opinion studies have found a majority of voters in favor of giving all possible American help to such countries, "short of war."

The Republican platform is for labor unions, but favors amending the Wagner Labor Act. This closely reflects the views of the public. Labor unions are approved nine-to-one, but a majority of those voters with opinions on the Labor Act say it should be revised or repealed.

The Securities Act, which is indorsed by the platform, is overwhelmingly popular among voters with opinions on it, and is approved even by a majority of Republicans.

The platform plank calling for strict watch over undesirable aliens in the United States is in accord with public opinion. The voters indorse by more than nine-to-one, a law compelling all aliens to register.

In its plank indorsing the civil service, the G. O. P. advocates extension of the merit system to all nonpolicy forming positions. This proposal was approved, eight-to-two, in a poll taken some months ago.

The questions continued, Mr. Roosevelt smilingly parrying the crossfire. A reporter asked for comment on the Republican convention's action. Mr. Roosevelt reminded this one that he had been hard at work.

To three other posers, the President replied he would be in Hyde Park this week-end and probably cruising on the Potomac out of phone reach the week-end before the Democratic convention opens—that not being even a minor prophet he could not say whether he would have a statement on his "availability" in advance of the convention.

He was asked if Willkie, whom he had previously said he would be glad to meet for a talk on foreign affairs, was coming to see him. He said reporters couldn't make much of an episode like that. If Willkie came, he said it would be just as normal as anyone else coming to see him.

Net result was, reporters left the White House with no more light on the third-term question than before. Democratic leaders themselves plainly have not been advised, and are still "guessing" both ways.

Senator Wheeler, formerly in the "if-the-President-does-not-run class of candidates, announced unconditionally for the nomination in St. Louis while Chairman John L. Lewis of the C. I. O. was indorsing him in the same town.

Possible prelude to a Democratic scramble for the nomination once the President speaks, Wheeler suggested Mr. Roosevelt may not have made up his mind whether to run, but "I think he loves the job."

The Montanan would not say whether he would support the President if he was nominated. He said he would want to see the platform and gain "assurance" from it and from the candidate that it is not going to lead to war.

Republican emphasis on the farm issue, with McNary's second-place nomination, brought an answering Democratic call for a Western farm name on the Democratic ticket. In a letter to delegates and alternates to the Democratic convention, Representatives Arnold and Barnes proposed a "Roosevelt-Lucas" ticket. Lucas is a leader of the Senate's Western farm bloc. New interest was shown in the Wallace and Stark Vice Presidential movements.

Senator Byrnes, of South Carolina, often mentioned as the President's personal preference for Vice President, were he not from the South, was still in the picture. He will provide a Democratic campaign cue tonight when he speaks over a radio network on "America Wants Preparedness, Not Politics."

Farley Leaves for Chicago

New York, July 2 (AP).—Postmaster General Farley left by train for Chicago tonight to arrange for the opening of the Democratic convention July 15.

He said he would spend two or three days there and then return to New York and Washington. He planned to go to Chicago again sometime next week and remain through the convention.

Roosevelt Pledged 22 Kentucky Votes

He'll Be Nominated If Democrats Have Way, Says Barkley

By the Associated Press

Louisville, July 2.—Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, told the Democratic State convention today that:

"President Roosevelt would not violate a great tradition (third term) unless he felt it necessary to do so under great stress . . . I am not in a position to know whether he would accept the nomination, but I do know who will be the candidate nominated at Chicago if the Democrats of the United States have their way—Franklin D. Roosevelt."

At a night session, the State convention adopted a resolution instructing the 22 Kentucky delegates to Chicago to cast a unanimous vote for the President if his name is placed in nomination.

Should Mr. Roosevelt decline renomination, the instruction was to vote for Senator Barkley as a "favorite son" candidate.

Predicting "overwhelming confirmation" by the Senate of Col. Frank Knox and Henry L. Stimson, Republicans, as Secretary of Navy and War, respectively, Senator Barkley told the convention the appointments by the President were intended to "unify Americans" and were made because "national defense is not a partisan question but an American question."

"They (Republicans) call us a 'war party,'" Barkley shouted. "They do this knowing that no man—not excepting Abraham Lincoln—who ever sat in the White House could have done more to keep us out of the European conflagration than Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"We are determined, however, to lose no time arming to meet whatever threats there may be. And I say this to you, we may need navies to protect us in both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans and if we need them the American people will provide them."

Pound Plays Host To Tagless Dogs Only 48 Hours

COME AND GET THEM—IF YOU WANT THEM—The police dog and wire-haired terrier (top), along with their fellow "guests" of the District Pound (lower) face a hapless end, ultimately becoming a bar of soap if owners or would-be owners do not claim them or take them home for the price of a dog license. They receive Poundmaster Marks' hospitality for only 48 hours and then are destroyed

Dogs Doomed to Become Soap If Owners Fail to Buy Tags

Only 450 of 2,250 Canines Captured Since January 1 Win Release From Pound; Deadline for New Licenses Is July 31

Fido, Rover and Pluto stand a good chance of ending their careers as a bar of soap, if their owners fail to buy them a new license by July 31, District Poundmaster Frank B. Marks said yesterday.

Of the 2,250 dogs which were guests of the pound—for 48 hours only—since January 1, only 450 were claimed by their owners or purchased for the price of a license.

The rest were humanely destroyed by carbon monoxide. Fat is extracted for use in manufacturing soap.

In yesterday's "line-up" at the pound were two dogs, said by Marks to be "both thoroughbreds, and both excellent pets." They were picked up in the Northwest section, and each is about 1½ years old.

One is a large police dog. Captured with 57 others yesterday, he wore a fine harness and is in excellent health. The other is a wire-haired female fox terrier. Unless claimed before 48 hours expire, both dogs will be on their way.

Of the estimated 60,000 dogs in the Capital, Marks' men say that more will pass through the pound in 1940 than in any previous year. They expect to handle about 6,000 dogs by July 1, 1941. This is because of increase in the city's population.

Cats should abandon all hope as they enter the pound portals, for, of the 800 lodged there in the last year, none was claimed or returned. Pound employes do not attempt to capture cats. "We'd have to have wings if we did," says Marks. All cats come to them from persons who have captured them.

At present the pound has 71 stray dogs, 4 stray cats and 10 dogs quarantined by the Health Department for biting. The health department examines them for rabies and other infectious diseases.

The law prescribes that all captured animals be disposed of within 48 hours. But Marks sometimes holds an exceptional dog longer.

The Washington Animal Rescue League yesterday emphasized two points for the protection of animals during the summer.

1. Those who leave their pets in Washington when they leave for vacations, should make provision for their care. Animals can not shift for themselves safely in a big city, the league says.

2. Each animal should have the protection of a license tag, through which he can be traced when lost.

The league, which has headquarters at 71 O street northwest, asks to have stray and abandoned animals reported to it, and is ready to send an emergency car for sick or injured animals day or night.

WPA Fires Artist For 'Communist Propaganda'

New York, July 2 (AP).—Lieut. Col. Brehon Somervell, Works Progress Administrator, today discharged an artist for what he termed "obvious Communist propaganda" in a submitted sketch.

The sketch, submitted by Thomas Corwin, a WPA arts project artist, was for a painting to have been displayed at the administration headquarters. It depicted a crossed micrometer and a pair of calipers.

"It was a poor design in the first place," said Somervell, "and in the second place it was obvious Communist propaganda."

Somervell also discharged Robert U. Godsoe, the arts project superintendent, explaining it was for "incompetence in submitting such a sketch for a window display. I had no recourse but to fire them."

Taylor, Tex., July 2 (AP).—Tornadic winds smashed the two-story high school building at nearby Thorndale tonight, unroofed several homes and a cotton gin and oil mill and plunged the town into darkness. No injuries were reported.

At Eckman, 20 miles to the south, trees were uprooted and crops heavily damaged.

Lewis Indorses Sen. Wheeler For Presidency

Calls Montanan Only Democrat Who Can Beat Willkie

St. Louis, July 2 (AP).—John L. Lewis, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, indorsed United States Senator Burton K. Wheeler for President in an address to the national convention of the Townsend pension plan today.

He said:

"There is only one man in the Democratic party who can take the nomination and defeat Mr. Willkie and that man is the Senator from Montana, Burton K. Wheeler.

"Wheeler is a man of the people, a man with an unblemished record, a man with the courage to stand for the right of labor, old age, for the principles of democracy, for peace at home and for non-intervention in European war."

Lewis asserted the Republican Party at its national convention last week which nominated Wendell Willkie failed to take the opportunity to become the party of the people. He said its planks on old age assistance and labor were inadequate and "susceptible of any interpretation any politician may desire to make of them."

The Democratic Party is on trial, said Lewis, and added that "if the convention should fail to outline a program and name candidates whom the common people can support, then it is time for labor and organizations like the Townsend organization to consider what to do."

Lewis did not specifically mention the formation of a third party.

Late today Wheeler appeared briefly before the convention. He did not mention his own candidacy for the Democratic Presidential nomination, but said he would not support any candidate who is not pledged to keep this country out of war.

"Unless the Democrats adopt a liberal, progressive platform and pledge their candidate to keep this country out of war," he said, "there will be no difference between the Republican and Democratic parties. There will be a tremendous demand for a liberal peace party which will give the people a chance to vote on war or peace."

U. S., British Refugees Land At Manila

Barracks to House Nearly 100 Americans And 1,640 English

By the United Press

Manila (Wednesday), July 3.—The American "refugee" liner President Coolidge arrived from Hongkong today with approximately 100 Americans and was followed immediately by the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Japan with 1,645 British women and children.

Nearly all those who arrived today will be housed in Army barracks.

The Australian freighter Nellore departed for Hongkong yesterday to bring additional British refugees to this port.

Its cargo included supplies of barbed wire and hundreds of kegs of nails, which officers said would be used in Hongkong in place of sandbags, for barricades.

Japanese Cut Communications

Hongkong (Wednesday), July 3 (U.P.).—The Japanese armed forces today had closed virtually all land avenues of communication between this British crown colony and China's Kwangtung Province in an effort to force Britain's acceptance of a Japanese demand that transit of goods through this colony and British Burma to nationalist China be ceased.

Thousands of Chinese were swarming into the colony from adjacent areas. Their presence added to the threat of a food shortage which is expected if the Japanese blockade follows the lines of the blockade enforced against the British concession in Tientsin.

U.S. Bars D.C. Man Who Yielded Citizenship to Fight Nazis

"Without a country, a job, or a dime," was the predicament yesterday of Philip Stegerer, 28-year-old Washington man, who five months ago joined the Canadian army to "fight for democracy."

Stegerer forfeited his United States citizenship when he pledged allegiance to King George on enlisting in the Canadian active service force, a United States board of inquiry ruled yesterday in Montreal. Stegerer was refused permission to return to this country.

Stegerer volunteered for service in the C. A. S. F. in February and served with it until last week when physical disability from old injuries made it impossible for him to continue service.

In a bitter comment to the Associated Press, he declared:

"If I want to get back to the United States I'll have to go through the formalities any immigrant faces . . . and we've been residents of the United States since before the Revolutionary War, when two of my ancestors were Army leaders under Washington.

"I come to Canada to fight for democracy, and I wind up a guy without a country, without a job and without a dime."

The Department of Justice said last night Stegerer apparently was deprived of his citizenship under the legal principle that a person swearing allegiance to a foreign power automatically forswears allegiance to this country.

Cubans to Back Solidarity of West

Island Is for Any Peace Plan Havana Parley Sets Up

By the Associated Press

Havana, July 2.—The Cuban cabinet declared today its support of any stand for continental American peace which may be proposed at the Pan-American conference of foreign ministers here July 20.

In a statement at the end of a closed session, the cabinet said Cuba would lend complete cooperation to any effort to improve inter-American trade.

Dr. Frederico Laredo y Bru, president, told the cabinet the July 17 conference would discuss: Neutrality, maintenance of peace in the Western Hemisphere, and economic cooperation among the American nations.

Juan J. Remos, former secretary of state, in a radio address, praised United States' treatment of its neighbors, citing as a contrast the manner of Germany and Russia in Europe.

"There are two roads our continent can take," he said. "Our nations can make good the principles of continental solidarity formulated in Lima (at the Eighth Pan-American Conference in 1938) and act as one to defend our common creed, which is democracy, or, undermined by the prejudices and the penetrations that separate us, we can adopt an attitude that would be fatal not only to the destinies of our creed but also to the survival of individuals and the sovereignty of our peoples."

Grady Sees a Crisis

Austin, Tex., July 2 (AP).—The present world crisis puts the national Administration's good neighbor policy to its severest test, Henry F. Grady, Assistant Secretary of State, told an international relations conference today.

To fulfill this helping-hand policy, he said, this Nation must be prepared to extend to the nations of Latin America every assistance in the solution of their export problems with a view to safeguarding their interests and ours against totalitarian weapons of politico-economic penetration.

Grady addressed a gathering of political and economic experts who discussed the war's impact on the New World at a University of Texas Latin-American Institute.

He said it was up to the United States to establish a basis for inter-American economic relations which will permit other nations of the hemisphere to "resist trade bargains with political strings attached" since they are already under pressure from the totalitarian powers.

Listing the problems for immediate consideration, he noted a trend toward bilateral trade in the Latin Americas, the unitary nature of their exports and the closely allied problem of relationships between foreign trade and governmental finances.

"The situation that faces us today," Grady said, "calls for redoubled efforts toward inter-American economic cooperation.

"This is demanded, not only for sound business reasons, but also by our common interest in defense."

Says U. S. Erred

The Assistant Secretary asserted the United States must accept its share of the blame for the trade-strangling measures throughout the world which were particularly restrictive to the economies of Latin American nations.

Envoy's Wife Wants Son Back Home

WANTS SON HOME—Hearing that her eldest son, George 4th, was enlisting in the British Royal Air Force, Mrs. George H. Earle, wife of the former Governor of Pennsylvania and present Minister to Bulgaria, arrived in Washington yesterday to see what could be done officially to dissuade him. She is shown with another son, Hubert. Announcement of the enlishment was made in Sofia by Minister Earle. Mrs. Earle said she knew her son was a good pilot, but if his father could spare him, his place was in his own country

Mother Fails To Keep Earle Out of R. A. F.

Visits Officials Here; Son Cables He Has Accepted Commission

Her worst fears became reality yesterday for Mrs. George H. Earle, wife of the United States Minister to Bulgaria and former first lady of Pennsylvania.

She learned Monday, through newspapers and later by a cable from her husband in Sofia, that her 24-year-old son, George 4th, would leave the Bulgarian capital Friday to join the British air force in Egypt.

Disturbed by the news, she hurried to Washington yesterday and called at the State Department, the British Embassy and the White House in a futile effort to find some means of preventing him from carrying out his intentions.

"If he wants to be an army pilot," she said, "his place is in his own country . . . I know pilots are needed here."

Then came a call from her Philadelphia suburban home and Mrs. Earle listened to a cablegram from the youth informing her that he had already accepted an air force commission.

"Know you will understand I am doing what I feel is right," said the cable. "Will be awfully careful," it added.

Mrs. Earle laughed sadly at that and said:

"How could anybody be careful. He said that to make me feel good, of course, but all it did was make me very, very sad."

Young Earle has been his father's secretary in Sofia since the former Governor became Minister to Bulgaria last March.

Senate Group Approves Stimson, 14-3

Nominee for War Secretary Urges Aid for Allies

American merchant marine should carry supplies to Britain.

Stimson several times complained that Taft was conducting an "unfair cross-examination" and, at one point, remarked, "I must say I am surprised that you, of all people, should take this position." Stimson served as Secretary of War under the Senator's father, President William Howard Taft.

Senator Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, asked Stimson whether he believed American interests required participation in the European war.

"I don't think so today," Stimson said. He went on to say that it would be impossible to land troops in Europe now, even if it were desirable.

Block Woodring Subpena

The committee, after approving the Stimson appointment, blocked by a vote of 11 to 5 a move to subpena his predecessor, Harry H. Woodring, and then agreed to invite Woodring to testify if he wished to do so.

The White House declined to make public Woodring's letter of resignation because it was "too personal." Isolationists have charged that the Secretary of War was removed from office for opposition to Administration measures to aid the Allies.

Senator Johnson questioned Stimson for an hour, quoting copiously from the nominee's recent addresses and letters to the press.

Stimson said the United States "has its back against the wall."

"Do you mean we are the next victim," Johnson asked.

"No, there is one other—the one holding the barrier of the North Atlantic," Stimson said. "When they are stricken down, we are likely to be the next."

"If you go on reading from my past statements," he added, "you'll make me feel like Winston Churchill for having been right so often."

Vandenberg demanded that Stimson state "whether it would or would not be an act of war" for the United States to open its harbors to the British fleet, as recommended by the former Secretary of State two weeks ago.

"It Would Be Self-Defense"

"It would be an act of self-defense," Stimson replied. He added that he had received reliable information that the British position is now "somewhat less serious" than it appeared to him two weeks ago and that the measures he then recommended for immediate adoption are not necessary at the moment.

In any situation, where the British fleet could be preserved only by American aid, however, Stimson said he would stand by his former proposals.

He denied discussing the third-term issue with President Roosevelt, before or after his appointment.

Stimson said the President offered him the Cabinet post in a telephone conversation June 19.

"I demurred, mentioning my advanced age and retirement," Stimson related. "The President replied that he knew all about that, but that a situation had developed in which he needed my services to help build up the defenses of the country. I consulted my wife, and about four hours later I called the President back and told him I regarded the whole thing as a call to duty and would accept."

Woodring May Tell All

Kansas City, July 2 (AP).—The Star in a special dispatch from Topeka said today Harry Woodring was considering open discussion next week of events which led to his resignation as Secretary of War.

The former governor who returned to Topeka last night will be guest of honor at a banque there July 9. The Star quoted him as saying there was a definite likelihood he would discuss his position on affairs and his cabinet resignation at that time.

thinking because continuance of the war is bringing the country into a more difficult political and economic situation. The Russian advance into the Baltics and the Balkans, it is realized, was made possible only because of the war in the west, and it is feared so long as that war continues Russia will continue the advance which makes an ultimate German-Russian conflict all the more likely. And it is difficult to see how Sweden could stay out of such a conflict.

Willkie's Son to Study At Columbia Law School

Princeton, N. J., July 2 (AP).—Philip H. Willkie, son of the Republican candidate for President, will enter Columbia Law School next fall, it was learned today.

Willkie, who was not graduated from Princeton in June because he failed to meet the requirements of the history department, will continue his studies for a Princeton bachelor of arts degree. He was voted by the class "most likely to succeed," "most uncollegiate" and "busiest."

Liner Manhattan Heads for Lisbon To Avoid Mines

Bilbao, Spain, July 2.—The United States Embassy at Madrid notified the consulate at Bilbao today that the United States liner Manhattan would go to Lisbon, causing feverish preparations to send 500 Americans across the border into Portugal.

Among them were 14 members of the American Field Service in France, commanded by Dr. Peter Muir, who arrived today.

Seventeen other members of the Field Service remained in France to help refugees.

The Manhattan, designated by the State Department to take American refugees from Bilbao, faced floating mine danger if it attempted to carry out the assignment. Consequently it was decided to go to Lisbon. (The Manhattan left New York today and is scheduled to reach Lisbon Monday. The liner Washington is already at sea on a similar voyage and is due at Galway, Ireland, Thursday to pick up 1,500-2,000 Americans.)

Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, jr., United States Ambassador to Poland, crossed the frontier into Spain today and will sail on an American destroyer for London.

Biddle, who has been in France since shortly after the German invasion of Poland, will be assigned to the Polish government in London.

Senators Defer Knox Action Until Today

Publisher Considers Allied Aid Secondary To Strong U. S. Defense

President came to see me and I sent word back that we were in such grave peril that no matter what he asked me to do I'd do it."

After a little "needling" by Senator Holt (Democrat) of West Virginia, on concentration of power in the President's hands, Col. Knox retorted with some heat.

"I'm trying to do the job without the slightest reference to partisanship; what I've said in the past about partisan matters is beside the point now; I'm here as an American and at considerable personal sacrifice to myself."

Col. Knox, who has been termed an "interventionist," was closely questioned by committee members on how far he believed "aid short of war" should go. After hearing his explanation that under no circumstances should it involve sending troops to Europe, Senator Johnson (Republican), of California, arch-isolationist of the Senate, observed:

"You're expressing the view of the isolationist; the isolationist is the man who wants no war and who won't send a military force abroad to engage in war."

"But I think it's unwise for our own future peace for us to reiterate again and again that we will not fight," rejoined Col. Knox. "I think that's an invitation to war," he added as he declared he had heard people in Chicago say they would not fight under any circumstances.

But just before the hearing was adjourned for the day, Senator Holt produced an article by Helen Essary in a Washington newspaper of June 22, declaring that Col. Knox had told her "We should go into Europe at once . . . with men."

"She must have misunderstood me," retorted the witness. "I would not call a lady a falsifier, but I deny her understanding of my statement."

The committee subsequently decided to ask Mrs. Essary to appear as a witness today.

The article said that "Col. Knox himself told me in a conversation I had with him on one of his recent visits to Washington that we should go into Europe at once. Not only with cash and credit and supplies, but with men."

Col. Knox, who, incidentally, startled the committee by revealing that his name is William Franklin Knox, declared that he favored aid to England "in a moral and economic way."

"If that's not sufficient to win, should we go the rest of the way?" queried Senator Holt.

"No," replied the witness. "I favor all help short of war to aid the British, not because of love for the British but because I want to help the United States," he added.

Attacking the policy of turning in naval equipment to private manufacturers for resale to the Allies before replacements for the American Navy are ready, Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, asked if Col. Knox considered "any aid to the Allies . . . an incidental and not a primary factor?"

"Correct; absolutely right," replied Col. Knox. "The necessity of getting prepared for any emergency comes first," he said. The "primary purpose" in turning in equipment, he declared, would be to modernize the Navy; "Allied help is incidental."

Col. Knox said he was "brought down here because the President said I could put some drive behind the Navy program."

to issue licenses."

Included in the materials and products for which export licenses are to be required are aluminum, asbestos, cotton linters, optical glass, rubber, silk, tin, tungsten, wool, mercury, manganese, ammonia, nitrates, nitric acid, aircraft parts, armor plate, glass optical elements, and metal-working machines for melting or casting, pressing into forms, cutting or grinding, or welding.

The President's statement said the proclamation covered materials, semifinished products and machine tools "of which there are actual or prospective shortages as a result of the national defense program."

Mr. Roosevelt said there was an ample supply here of scrap iron, which Japan has been purchasing in large quantities.

Inventory Recommended

Appointment of the labor advisory committee was made by Sidney Hillman, member of the National Defense Advisory Commission, shortly after the President told reporters he had already rejected pleas for lengthening of the work week in defense industries.

Mr. Roosevelt insisted that he wanted first to see a couple of million of unemployed put to work before he lengthened the hours of those now employed.

Acknowledging some advisers had pressed him to authorize a 48-hour week in navy yards and arsenals to compensate for the skilled labor shortage, the President said he told them to renew the request if and when they had assimilated all skilled mechanics who were jobless or working in other lines.

As bait to encourage the advisers to hunt out every available skilled worker, Mr. Roosevelt said, he had told them the potential billion or billion and one-half dollars savings in relief funds might be devoted to national defense.

The labor advisory committee held its first meeting yesterday and recommended that insofar as possible the allocation of orders for defense materials be so distributed as to make the fullest possible use of workers now unemployed. An immediate inventory of experience and skills of the idle was recommended to help make available the skilled workers needed in defense industries.

Hillman said the primary tasks of the committee would be bringing idle men and jobs together, and preventing work stoppages.

Appointed to the committee were:

Harry C. Bates, president, Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers Union; Van A. Bittner, United Mine Workers of America; H. W. Brown, president, International Association of Machinists; John P. Coyne, president, building and construction, trades department, American Federation of Labor; S. H. Dalrymple, president, United Rubber Workers; Clinton Golden, regional director, Steel Workers Organizing Committee; Allen S. Haywood, Congress of Industrial Organizations; Samuel J. Hogan, president, National Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, Washington; George Q. Lynch, general president, Pattern Makers League of North America; A. E. Lyon, grand president, Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen of America, Chicago; Charles J. MacGowan, vice president, International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Shipbuilders, Welders and Helpers; George Masterton, general president, United Association of Journeymen Plumbers and Steamfitters; Emil Rieve, president, Textile Workers Union of America; R. J. Thomas, president, United Automobile Workers of America, Detroit; D. W. Tracy, president, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Diesel Contracts Let

Other defense developments were:

The Navy, continuing to speed up construction, announced yesterday contracts totaling $17,634,521 for Diesel engines for 22 submarines.

The Army, also seeking quick action, announced that temporary housing units would be constructed to shelter the thousands of new recruits.

Hearings were set to begin at 10:30 a. m. today on the Burke-Wadsworth bill for selective compulsory military training. Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, said first witnesses will include President James B. Conant of Harvard University; William J. Donovan, Gen. John McCauley Palmer, author of the National Defense Act and chief of operations under Gen. Pershing; Granville Clarke, New York lawyer, and Representative Wadsworth (Republican), of New York.

President Roosevelt signed a bill authorizing the Commissioner of Patents to keep secret all patents related to national defense.

The Senate Naval Affairs Committee approved a bill authorizing construction of a $15,000,000 drydock in New York which will be large enough to accommodate the biggest ships that can pass through the proposed new Panama Canal locks.

The Justice Department began intensive training of the first 100 of 712 new guards who will be added to the Border Patrol Service in an effort to clamp down on illegal immigration. Lemuel B. Schofield, assistant to the attorney general in charge of immigration, also disclosed that new arrangements have been made with the Customs Service and the Forest Service to borrow their patrolmen for guard duty should an emergency arise.

President Roosevelt signed a bill to require aliens who entered the United States as diplomats to leave the country when they lose that status. The State and Justice Departments pointed out that many former diplomats still are in this country although the nations from which they originally came have been swallowed by other countries in the realignment of European political boundaries.

Pittsburgh, July 2 (AP).—Uncle Sam will soon have a portable steel caisson, or dam, available at the Panama Canal which can be used in emergencies to repair damage to regular locks.

The $500,000 structure will be completed early in August and floated down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans, where it will be equipped with propelling apparatus and dispatched to the Canal Zone.

The caisson is being built at the Neville Island yards of a local shipbuilding concern.

T. N. T. for Britain

New Orleans, July 2 (AP).—Shipping circles late today said a shipment of 132 carloads of TNT from the Fort Wingate ordnance depot in New Mexico had arrived here and was being loaded aboard ship for Great Britain.

Dock board officials declined any comment. It was learned, however, that the explosive was brought here by a railroad which charged $2,500 freight per car for the 132-car shipment. Shipping men said they had no idea how the transfer from the United States Army was handled, and refused to say where the ship is loading.

Partial Text of Nazis' Report Claiming Loss of Only 156,492 Men in France

High Command Sets Nazi Dead At 27,074

1,900,000 Poilus, Enormous Booty Taken, Report Says

By the Associated Press

Berlin, July 2.—Following is a partial text of the German high command summary of operations in France from June 3 to June 25:

The battle of destruction in Flanders and Artois hardly was ended before the air force and the army, in its ranks many divisions which had not even seen action as yet, aimed the second decisive blow at France.

At the signal for new operations, strong forces of the German air force attacked on June 3 airports, air armament and industries around Paris with destructive effect.

Three army groups under Col.-Gens. von Rundstedt, von Bock and Ritter von Leeb, out of the army under the top command of Col.-Gen. von Brauchitsch, stood ready for action on the next day.

The objective of the new operative phase was to break through the French northern front, forcing a split-up of the French army units toward the southwest and southeast and thereafter destroying them. When divisions of the army group under Col.-Gen. von Bock went to attack on June 5 over the lower Somme and the Oise-Aisne Canal, they found the enemy ahead of them prepared to defend it.

French leadership was determined to defend to the end the "Weygand Zone" and the Maginot Line by the exertion of all forces still at hand. A new defense method was devised which it was hoped would be successful against the feared swift break-through of motorized units.

Pursuit Began June 9

In four days of heavy fighting the infantry and armored divisions of the armies of Col.-Gen. von Kluge, Col.-Gen. von Reichenau and Infantry Gen. Strauss broke through the enemy front. On June 9 the pursuit toward the Lower Seine and in the direction of Paris was in full progress.

On the same day speed troops under the command of Infantry Gen. Hoth, in a furious advance, reached Rouen and began the encirclement of strong enemy forces on the coast at Dieppe and St. Valery. By that action the enemy west wing was shattered and the west flank of the main operation which was now beginning was protected.

Concentrated and rigorously led mass attacks by the air force made success for the army easier . . .

By disrupting railway lines and destroying railway material the air force eliminated the enemy's chance of shifting reserves to points broken through . . . the main operations on land began June 9 with an attack by the army group of Col.-Gen. von Runstadt in Champagne and on the west bank of the Meuse.

Break Through on Aisne

Here at first it was the infantry divisions of the armies of Cavalry Gen. Baron von Weich, Col.-Gen. List and Infantry Gen. Busch which in two days of heavy fighting with the bitterly defending enemy and supported advantageously by the air force, broke through the Aisne position and opened the way for numerous speed troops who were standing ready.

Tank and motorized infantry divisions of Cavalry General von Kleist and General of Armored Troops Guderian already were put in action June 11 in Champagne with far advanced goals via Troyes ad St. Dizier.

For the third time within a quarter of a century German troops crossed the Marne.

After hard fighting at the beginning with the enemy rear guard, later with completely surprised parts of the enemy's main army, speed troops drove throgh a broad breach on the following days southeastwards toward the Swiss border. . . .

North Front Collapse

In the meantime our troops rapidly overcame the Lower Seine and broke into Paris' protective positions. Thereby the enemy wing saw itself forced to give up further resistance. Troops of Artillery General von Kuechler marched into Paris on June 14.

The enemy north front collapsed . . . appearances of the dissolution of the enemy increased from hour to hour under tremendous pressure. Then, on June 14, the army group of Col. Ritter von Leeb also joined in the fighting.

In two days of hard fighting against strongest fortification works, the army of Col. Gen. von Witzleben, supported effectively by strong artillery, broke through the Maginot Line, the protective wall that France held to be invincible.

It broke the enemy northeast front, already threatened in the rear, into two parts and deeply shook the last belief of the enemy in continued resistance . . .

In closest exemplary cooperation with the army, the air force contributed greatly to a quick break through the Maginot Line south of Saarbruecken and later at Colmar and Meulhaussen . . .

After the fall of Paris, French columns poured south-southwest in front of the entire German front, attacked repeatedly on all roads of retreat by German aviation battle units. This hard pursuit on each and in the air frustrated the intention of the French to rebuild behind the Loire. . . .

Reach Swiss Border

On June 17, speed units reached the Swiss border southeast of Bescanon, thereby closing the ring around French forces in Lorraine, Alsace, and the Maginot Line.

The army of France had lost its fighting power and began to surrender. In this situation, French Premier Marshal Petain turned to the German government with a request for armistice conditions . .

The greatest campaign of all times ended after six weeks with the greatest victory of German armed forces.

(The communique then paid tribute to the German air force for winning supremacy at the beginning of the campaign. Air Fleets 2 and 3, under the command of Gens. Kesselring and Sperrle, were said to have taken a leading part in this fighting . . .

World Astonished

The world followed the unparalleled victory of German arms with admiration and astonishment, or terror, according to its particular attitude.

Common to all, however, is the question how such successes, and besides, in such short time, are to be explained. When the former Allies believe they see the reason in German numerical superiority, that does not correspond with the historic truth.

Indeed, the German air force was numerically much stronger than that of the Allies. The German West army, however, attacked May 10 at first with a smaller number of divisions than it faced in French, English, Belgian and Holland divisions . . .

Gen. Ritter Dies Heroically

The reasons for German successes lie deep; they are to be found where Germany's enemy believes our weakness exists; in the revolutionary dynamics of the Third Reich and its national Socialist leadership . . .

Lieut. Gen. Ritter von Speck, commanding general, died a heroic death at the head of his army corps.

In the period from June 5 to June 25, 16,822 gallant officers, noncommisisoned officers and soldiers from three branches of the armed forces died for Fuehrer, people and country; 8,921 officers, noncommisisoned officers and men are missing . . . 68,511 officers, noncommissioned officers and men were wounded.

(Germany conquered France, the communique continued, with utterly unbelievable small losses. From May 10 to the armistice, on the basis of figures so far, there were 27,074 killed, 18,384 missing, and 111,034 wounded—a total of 156,492 . . .

Enemy losses during 1940 are beyond conjecture. It is well established that French prisoners alone number more than 1,900,000, including five army commanders and 29,000 officers.

Since June 5, armament and equipment of 55 additional French divisions fell into German hands, not counting the armament and equipment of the Maginot Line and other French forts.

The booty included almost all the heaviest French artillery as well as an inestimable amount of sundry arms, equipment and stores.

Enemy air forces since June 4 have lost 792 planes, including 383 in air combat, 155 shot down by anutiaircraft, 39 destroyed on the ground, and 15 either in air fights or by antiaircraft.

Also 26 barrage balloons and 1 captive balloon were destroyed. Our destroyer squadron shot down 101 planes up to June 14, and our pursuit squadron bagged the fiftieth on June 11.

(The communique then reported sinking of 493,100 tons of British shipping, including the auxiliary cruisers Carinthia and Scotstoun, the oil tanker Pioneer, a transport, a 9,000-ton auxiliary cruiser and in addition 400,000 tons of merchant shipping sunk by submarines since mid-May.

(The air force was credited with destroying 1 auxiliary cruiser, 1 destroyer and 40 merchantmen totaling 229,000 tons, and damaging 3 criusers, a destroyer and 25 merchantmen.)

After this most tremendous victory in German history over the greater German Reich's opponent, which was regarded as possessing the strongest army in the world and which fought as skillfully as it did bravely, Allies no longer exist—only one enemy remains: England.

Aiding Delinquency

The hearing conducted by Senator McCarran on the renomination of Judge Fay Bentley of the Juvenile Court has served a useful purpose. While the testimony has seemingly revealed some serious mistakes on her part, the upshot has been to center attention upon the inadequacies of social service in the Nation's Capital.

It is now clear that Judge Bentley has been attempting to administer justice under circumstances that make fully satisfactory results impossible. Her court has been grossly overworked. She has not had a staff of either social workers or investigators sufficient to handle the numerous cases that must be disposed of each year. Under the present law the court attempts to rescue children from conditions conducive to delinquency. But those efforts have been handicapped by the lack of personnel to handle individual cases in the manner that was anticipated.

Senator McCarran believes that a domestic relations court should be created so that all cases except those involving children could be removed from the Juvenile Court. Undoubtedly that would relieve part of the pressure upon this important agency of justice and public welfare. But the Juvenile Court would probably still need a larger staff to obtain the best results.

Moreover, Congress itself has added to the difficulties of the court by its failure to provide Washington with a modern social service system. Inadequate relief frequently contributes to delinquency. Indeed, some jobless men are known to have deserted their families here because a household with an able-bodied breadwinner is not eligible for relief. Long neglect of child welfare activities has also thrown an extra burden upon the Juvenile Court.

The greatest need is for rehabilitation of the city's public services aimed at the prevention of crime and delinquency. So far as the Juvenile Court is concerned, it can never be expected to function satisfactorily unless it is given a staff adequate to the task assigned it. The question of Judge Bentley's confirmation has thus been overshadowed by a much larger issue that clearly demands the attention of Congress.

Gold In Hiding

It is believed that most of the gold of France, the Netherlands and Belgium has escaped capture and that a goodly amount has been transferred to the United States for safekeeping.

These earmarked holdings belong in a different category from the gold which comes here in payment for goods or as the result of a capital inflow. All such gold is purchased by the Treasury, the proceeds are deposited in banks and bank cash reserves rise as a result. The problems of credit control created by such excess bank reserves are extremely important. But at present interest is concentrated upon the even more serious issues of the future status of gold.

Germany's conquests have added to the uneasiness of those who fear that the United States may be left with a huge volume of a metal no longer needed for monetary purposes. If the totalitarian states dominate world trade in the future, they may decide to discard gold as a means of settling balances. Nevertheless, hope that the post-war world will reaffirm its allegiance to the gold standard has not been destroyed.

The widespread concern about the fate of the gold belonging to the invaded countries testifies to the fact that its importance as a means of payment is still universally acknowledged. Then, too, no substitute method of settling trade balances has been found. The cumbersome methods now resorted to because of the breakdown of currency systems have caused endless friction and tend to stifle trade by putting it on a direct barter basis.

One of the most serious obstacles to general restoration of the gold standard is the excessive concentration of the metal in this country. If gold cannot be redistributed, nations will of necessity turn to some other means of financing trade. But here again the outlook is not so gloomy as some imagine.

Most of our gold accessions in recent years are the result of a capital inflow induced by fear. If the world ever returns to a state of political sanity which makes possible the repatriation of capital shipped here for safekeeping, foreign funds will be withdrawn and we shall lose gold accordingly. In short, the gold problem is largely an outgrowth of political disorders. If these can be overcome we may hope for an eventual return to a world gold standard.

Rumania Chooses Hitler

The treaties which followed the last war created in eastern Europe two outwardly imposing but actually feeble nations whose continued existence, in the form laid down in 1919, was always problematical.

Poland, the larger of these two artificially inflated countries, collapsed like a pricked bubble when the German armies marched in last September. Postwar Rumania owes its continued existence not to any greater inherent stability, but solely to the fact that the play of international forces around this kingdom was until last week in equipoise.

That equipoise was broken when Moscow on June 26 demanded that Rumania surrender the provinces of Bessarabia, which was Russian until 1918, and northern Bukovina, which never had been Russian. Recognizing its essential weakness, the Rumanian government hastened to comply with the Soviet ultimatum. But it is by no means certain that this surrender will halt the process of dissolution which has now set in for Rumania.

That country as it existed a week ago was almost double the size of pre-war Rumania. And an important part of the territory slapped onto this slender core was the large Hungarian province of Transylvania, the loss of which Hungary has never accepted, and never regarded as anything but an imposed and temporary arrangement.

Many Rumanian governments have had opportunities to make an adjustment with Hungary over the Transylvanian question. But Rumania's leaders, somewhat arrogant because of their confidence in French and English backing, have always refused to make any compromise with the Hungarian claims. Like their Polish neighbors, the Rumanians from 1920 to 1940 refused to concede anything substantial to those nations from which their rickety state had been constructed.

It is partly because their pacific efforts to achieve an adjustment have throughout been unsuccessful that the Hungarians are now so strongly inclined to take advantage of Rumania's difficulties. And somewhat the same can be said of the Bulgarians, who still hope to regain from Rumania by peaceful means their former territory of southern Dobruja, a district predominantly Bulgarian in population.

The Rumanian loss of Bessarabia and Bukovina will probably make that country the more eager to retain Transylvania. But fulfillment of this hope depends, primarily, on whether or not Germany is willing to place a restraining pressure on the Budapest government. Without such restraint, Hungary is unlikely to let her present opportunity slip.

The irony of this situation lies in the fact that, as recently as April of last year, King Carol accepted British and French guarantees of assistance in case his kingdom should be threatened by German aggression. Now he has hastily renounced these guarantees in order to conform with "the new orientation of Europe."

Rumania, having obtained what proved to be worthless Allied guarantees against Germany, is now frantically seeking to replace them with more reliable German guarantees against Russia and Hungary.

It is a measure of the pitiful situation to which this once vainglorious Balkan kingdom is reduced. And it is, further, a measure of the extent to which Berlin has replaced Paris and London as the nerve center of Europe's tangled politics.

Scott Circle

Washingtonians living in the vicinity of Scott Circle are naturally perturbed by the plan to construct an underpass beneath that congested intersection. The underpass will necessitate widening of Sixteenth street for short distances on both sides of the circle. Some of the old trees in that area will have to be cut down. Unquestionably the street will lose some of its charm.

It is well to remember, however, that these factors have already been balanced against the notable benefits which the community as a whole will derive from the proposed underpass. Sixteenth street is not only an attractive residential street; it is also an artery of traffic. The underpass has been approved by the District Commissioners and by Congress on the ground that its usefulness to the people as a whole will far outweigh the disadvantages it will impose upon a relatively small number of residents on this street.

The Thomas Circle underpass has amply demonstrated the effectiveness of this technique in relieving traffic congestion. But the usefulness of this improvement is minimized by the fact that Massachusetts avenue traffic, which now speeds beneath Fourteenth street, jams up at Sixteenth street. In other words, this project will not attain its maximum usefulness until the converging streams of traffic are separated at both Scott and Dupont Circles.

Particularly futile is the controversy as to whether the new underpass should follow the line of Sixteenth street or Massachusetts avenue. It must be located, of course, where it will provide the greatest relief from traffic congestion. That points to the use of Sixteenth street where the traffic is heavier. Residents of that street who must undergo the unpleasantness of a major construction project in their front yards, and who regret the landscape changes that it will entail, may nevertheless find some comfort in the fact that the main stream of traffic at this point will soon be flowing under ground.

Vulnerable Ireland

With Germany controlling Europe's coastline from the Arctic Circle to Spain the situation of Great Britain cannot be called agreeable. But it would be very much worse should the Germans secure a foothold in Ireland.

Although a member of the British Commonwealth of Nations, Eire has remained neutral in the European struggle. But neutrality, as Denmark among many other small nations has recently discovered to its sorrow, is no shield against aggression. And Ireland today is just about as defenseless as was Denmark.

In a last-minute effort to improve the situation Premier de Valera recently appealed for volunteers to build up the Irish armed forces. The appeal has met with a relatively slight response, partly because the people are not yet fully aware of the danger of invasion, partly because some of them harbor the suspicion that De Valera is plotting to get them into war on the side of Ireland's hereditary enemy.

De Valera's own record clearly suggests the improbability of his being prompted, in his efforts to strengthen Ireland's defenses, by any sentimental feelings about England. He is first and foremost a realist. But as a realist he knows the danger that threatens his country. Without an adequate and well-trained force to repel an invasion, Ireland's vulnerability is very great, in spite of Britain's still relative superiority in sea power.

The situation obviously calls for a very close working relationship between England and Ireland. For if a Nazi invasion would be immediately disastrous for Eire it would be only less immediately disastrous for Great Britain. Already the German occupation of French harbors has been followed by a sharp rise in U-boat sinkings. But the British cannot be wholly starved out as long as the western approaches to the kingdom, via Ireland and the Irish Sea, are kept reasonably open.

With Ireland in enemy hands Great Britain could be completely blockaded; to starve her into submission might then be only a matter of time. So it is not surprising that the British people are demanding immediate action to eliminate all possibility of adding a Nazi threat from the west to the already formidable challenge confronting them from the other side of the narrow English Channel.

Simple Remedy

When the Department of Agriculture announces that slums are developing all over the United States, there is no cause for sociologists to lament. For the department is referring to wildlife slums.

The annual big game census of the national forests revealed 1,930,000 animals, not counting the spring crop. Eighty-four forests each reported more than 5,000 deer; 40 had more than 1,000 elk and 39 had more than 500 black bear apiece. Other creatures increasing rapidly were moose, mountain goats, bighorn, peccary and European wild boars. Altogether they represent a growth since 1924 of 275 per cent.

When forest animals become too numerous their food is overgrazed and steadily diminishes. The results are starvation and disease. Feeding hay only preserves more beasts to destroy the browse plants, and game cannot be transplanted economically to new preserves in sufficient numbers to relieve population pressure in the old. Automobiles, mountain lions, wolves, bobcats, coyotes and stray dogs do not kill enough to clear the slums.

With all these possible remedies disposed of, wildlife specialists are deciding on a form of relief in which they doubtless will get public support. They conclude that in many cases the best thing to do is to turn the hunters loose.

Safety Valve

From the Des Moines Register.

Puppet shows have been found beneficial in the study of problem children at Cook County Hospital in Chicago. They act as a safety valve for maladjusted youngsters. When in the midst of an old German folk play, for example, the children are invited to advise "What shall Caspar do next?" their answers are often helpful in understanding childish difficulties.

One visitor to a puppet show at the hospital is reported as "chilled by the vicious responses of the audience." But it seems that even ordinary children attending a lively puppet performance involving a fight are moved to violent egging on.

The same holds for adults also. At baseball games, mild-mannered citizens of impeccable morals, never suspected by friends or family of murderous instincts, are sometimes heard to roar shocking things. Yes, and even to throw pop bottles!

The Hoover Speceh

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Information please: What do these two excerpts from Hoover's Philadelphia speech add up to?

"We set a moral standard in the world by refusal to recognize the murderous regime in Russia. We refused to issue a Communist license to undermine our institutions . . ."

"The final realism is that if we are to keep cool and not stimulate war there must be an end to provocative speech by our officials. Expression of indignation or regret do not require insults. The first responsibility of the President of the United States is to abate war, not to stimulate it. It is not the province of the President of the United States to create hate. Irresponsible talk in explosive times may bring danger . . ."

Is Mr. Hoover asking that we insult Russia as a "murderous regime" but refrain from "provocative speech" in referring to Italy and Germany? What do these seemingly contradictory paragraphs indicate? (The audience applauded both of them vigorously.)

Music And War

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Dr. Kindler's announcement of a concert of the music of Europe's conquered countries calls to mind another program recently heard in this city which was similar in spirit.

As a part of the closing exercises of that liberal institution, the Sidwell Friends School, an inspiring and touching musical program was planned by the head of their music department, Miss Sade C. Styron, and directed by Mrs. Walter Maloney, which consisted of the national anthems of the conquered nations. Some 25 children of the sixth grade sung them.

It was indeed moving. Tears were seen in the eyes of grown-ups. If music can be an even remote means of restoring the world to sanity, let us use it!

The Conan Doyles

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The recent visit to Washington of Dennis Conan Doyle, son of Sir Arthur, and the sad notice in The Post of June 28 of the passing of Lady Doyle, would suggest recollections of a visit to their home in England.

Memory reverts to London many summers ago, and the invitation received from Sir Arthur to spend the day and night with them at their beautiful estate of Crowborough in Sussex.

The morning was delightful as we sped onward through the enchanting scenery of Old England which seemed to give one the element of a satisfying and gentle caress. At an isolated station the train stopped. Our host was there in greeting. Dressed in golf tweeds he looked the typical Britisher, robust figure, courteous, incisive speech, a kindly nature peeping through.

From Lady Doyle came gentleness and a gracious hospitality. Three children were at luncheon, and as they were real live children, the deftly served meal had other delights besides elegance and simplicity.

And at night we felt secure and protected. Sherlock Holmes was near.

To the left of the house was a large stubble-field where the pony grazed. In the far corner stood a sheltered summer-house. Weather permitting, this was Sir Arthur's place of quiet writing of Watson and Baker street.

And near the summer-house the author of Sherlock Holmes sleeps his long sleep. And maybe, now beside him, Lady Doyle. It would be fitting.

Bessarabian Figures

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In an article entitled "Bessarabia Is Rich But Primitive," appearing in your June 30 issue, it is stated that "in a population numbering until yesterday 19,500,000, Rumanians were outnumbered by minorities."

This assertion must evidently have been made in error, for it is entirely out of keeping with the official statistics as published in any reference book. The minorities in Rumania account for less than 25 per cent of the total population, and, with minor exceptions, live in the new provinces. In Transylvania, according to the Rumanian census of 1930, the population (5,549,441) was composed of 3,207,880 (57.8 per cent) Rumanians, 1,353,276 (24.4 per cent) Hungarians and 543,852 (9.8 per cent) Germans.

In Bessarabia, according to the same census, the Rumanians accounted for 56.2 per cents and the Russians and Ukrainians for 23.3 per cent. The Rumanian character of this province is evidenced even by the Russian official census of 1897, according to which the approximately 2,000,000 inhabitants of Bessarabia were divided as follows: 47.6 per cent Rumanians, 27.8 per cent Russians and Ukrainians combined, 11.8 per cent Jews, 5.3 per cent Bulgarians and 3.1 per cent Germans, not to mention numerous smaller groups.

Old Lizzie

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The two contributors who wrote to you in reference to Old Lizzie's death at the Philadelphia Zoo failed to grasp the true significance of that event.

Old Lizzie died at about the same time as the Old Guard was passing out at Convention Hall, and we Republicans think it was a good omen.

E. T. P.

Washington, June 29.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Observer" writes that the death of Old Lizzie, the Zoo elephant, during the Republican Convention was pathetic—and that probably the final obsequies will take place in November.

May we be so bold as to ask Observer to observe a little more acutely? The death of Old Lizzie was merely a symbol of the death of a politically bossed Republicanism—making way for the birth of a new era, in which the people can express themselves, and once more have a free America.

Oh, yes, Observer, we think the symbolism of Old Lizzie's death a most happy one—the old party died and its out-of-date methods died, too.

On November we may observe the obsequies by a glorious celebration of the new party—the people's party and the American way of life.

Willing To Confer

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: And now we learn that President Roosevelt is "willing to discuss" with Mr. Willkie the Nation's foreign policy.

It still sticks in the memories of many Americans that President Hoover even invited Mr. Roosevelt, before his inauguration, to confer on questions of national import, but without result.

Mr. Willkie's thought that "one should be courteous to his predecessor" somehow "brings up recollections."

Germany's Harsh Peace Terms

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The comparison recently issued by the Associated Press of the armistice between Germany and France with the armistice of November 11, 1918, is interesting, and they were right to remind readers in a headline of the difference between an armistice and a peace treaty.

But is it with the armistice of November 11, 1918, that the recent armistices between France and Germany and Italy should be compared? The two have, in fact, nothing in common but the name. Any impression that those of 1940, imposed by the Axis partners in aggression, are less severe than the Armistice of 1918 imposed by the exhausted, though victorious, defenders of democracy cannot but be purely superficial. Examination of the territorial provisions of the German armistice suffices alone to negate this, and to be accurate the German and Italian armistices should be read as one document.

Remember Hitler's policy of presenting his demands by installments. The armistice "granted" to France is only the first installment. A promise not to use the French fleet against the British merely "brings up recollections," and Hitler has been careful to secure a final "escape" clause under color of which he resumes liberty of action whenever he chooses to say that France has broken the armistice. It is then that the looting will begin and the present terms, severe as they are on a country that has done nothing but defend its right to live as it desires, will for the first time seem mild.

For guidance as to Germany's idea of the terms to impose on a beaten enemy whose ally is still strong on land, sea and in the air, turn to the Treaties of Brest-Litovsk and Bucharest which Germany imposed on Russia and Rumania early in 1918. Details can be found in a pamphlet called "The Treaty of Brest-Litovsk and Germany's Eastern Policy." These treaties show what results from German restraint and generosity.

The Central powers opened negotiations with Russia by announcing "no annexations, no indemnities and the principle of self-determination" and concluded them by annexing Russian Poland, Lithuania, Esthonia, Livonia and other lands. Russia lost 32 per cent of her agricultural land, 85 per cent of her beet sugar land, 54 per cent of her industries, 89 per cent of her coal mines, 34 per cent of her population; agreed to pay 6,000 million marks in reparations, and was totally cut off from the Black Sea.

The Peace of Bucharest, amongst other provisions, took away large territories (including the Carpathians and Dobruja) from Rumania, cut her off from the sea and compelled her to agree to feed Germany and her allies for years at fixed prices and to lease all her oil wells to Germany for 99 years. Yet a German staff officer said in reply to a complaint, "You call this a harsh peace? Just wait till you see what we are preparing for France and England."

These treaties are the recollections which the recent armistices should bring before our mind. These are what Hitler would have us forget.

Charles Carroll, Patriot

Charles Carroll, 95, for six years the lone survivor of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, United States Senator, four-time State senator, 90,000-acre land-owner and famed resident of Annapolis, Md., passed away in his Baltimore home, November 14, 1832.

Carroll was one of the men who ordered a cargo of tea, which was moored into the harbor at Annapolis, to be burnt to the water's edge. The burning of the brig Peggy Stewart, on October 9, 1774, was the first overt act of the Maryland Colonists against the King of England for imposing heavy duties upon goods needed by the American people. A band of patriotic citizens waited on Anthony Stewart, the owner of the ship, with the purpose of gaining "liberty and independence or death in the pursuit of it."

"We have come to offer you two propositions," they shouted, "you must either go with us and fire your own vessel, or hang by the halter of your own door." Stewart was bold and defiant, asking: "What right have you to make such demands upon me?" (We do not know his exact words.)

Meanwhile, a gallows was erected. Stewart, believing the Marylanders were about to carry their threats into execution, took a glowing chunk of wood from his open fireplace and with his own hand set fire to his ship. He watched his burning vessel and cargo until they were reduced to cinder and ashes. On the same day of the month, seven years later, American Independence was assured by the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown.

A solemn assembly was sitting in the Capitol Building, Philadephia, July, 1776. The severely plain frame house with a spacious room, a rostrum and a table, stands to this day. One old man, with a large head and long white hair streaming down to his shoulders, sat with the stately, fiery-eyed, intensely serious young men.

"Let us pause!" warned John Hancock, the presiding officer, in slow, measured accents. "The step once taken, cannot be retraced. This resolution, once passed, will cut off all hope of reconciliation."

"Sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish,' declared John Adams, "I give my hand and my heart to this vote . . . There's a divinity that shapes our ends . . ."

"There goes a million," some one remarked when Charles Carroll affixed his signature to the document, thus risking his great fortune. He also realized that the momentous event implied imminent war, which would be the arbiter of the dispute.

While the bells were tolling in national acclaim and the country was jubilantly celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, both of whose names were attached to the sacred document, together took their flight to immortal realms, leaving Charles Carroll as the only surviving signer.

"Of the illustrous signers of the Declaration of Independence," exclaimed the eloquent Daniel Webster in Faneuil Hall, Boston, August 2, 1826, "there now remains only Charles Carroll. He seems an aged oak, standing alone on the plain, which time has spared a little longer after his contemporaries have been leveled with the dust. Venerable object! We delight to gather around its trunk . . . and to dwell beneath its shadow . . ."

The four-story, solid brick structure in which Charles Carroll was born and lived while in Annapolis, is now a national shrine that looks out upon Spa Creek. Lifting one's eyes over the wall of St. Mary's Church on Gloucester street, one may see that ancient building which was the center of political and official life of the State during the Revolutionary period.

George Washington often enjoyed the hospitality of Charles Carroll in that house. He refreshed himself under the shade of the gigantic tree on the lawn stretching between the house and the water's edge.

Resigning as Commander in Chief of the American Army in 1783, Washington attended a great public dinner and dance in the garden of the Carroll home. It was a newsy event of those days and a memorable occasion.

Charles Carroll was one of the leading lights in the cultured society of "the Athens of America." The drama flourished, the arts were encouraged, commerce was extended, the trades were promoted, and the city was refined by its beautiful, graceful and accomplished women.

Though of slight physique, Carroll was a man of untiring energy and indomitable will. His quick, piercing eyes and his concise, direct phrases made him an effective speaker. Travel and society had made him graceful, while intensive study and acute observation rendered him an impressive and instructive gentleman.

Charles Carroll was educated in France. He traveled on the Continent and caught some of the passion of William Pitt, the English statesman, for the independence of the American Colonies. He returned to America when he was about 28 years of age, and devoted himself to the liberation of the Colonies from Great Britain. He lived on a large estate in Anne Arundel County, known as Carrollton Manor, from which he took the name of Carroll of Carrollton.

Retiring from public life in 1800, he spent the remainder of his life in the quiet pursuits of the manor and in business. He was the originator and director of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and had a part in other large business enterprises. Charles Carroll died with "the calmness of a philosopher and with the faith of a holy man of God," and was buried in the Chapel of Doughoregan Manor, near Ellicott City, Howard County, Md. He was the father of an only son, Charles Carroll, of Homewood, and two daughters.

DAVID WAYLAND CHARLTON

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

'Cunning Mantraps'

I WOULD like to point out, especially to newspaper workers, a couple of cunning mantraps concealed beneath the constitution of the American Newspaper Guild, which is a transmission belt of the Communist Party.

Members, and nonmembers who are tempted to join, innocently assume that because this C. I. O. union purports to be a voluntary association they may resign at will. The fact is that once a person joins the guild claims him for life. Many members have offered their resignations and others have just dropped out, believing that was all there was to it.

The guild constitution, however, takes the position that a member who attempts to quit merely becomes delinquent unless he enters some other occupation outside the newspaper business, in which case certain obligations still pursue him. If he quits and remains in the newspaper business he accumulates a mounting bill of dues, assessments and fines during the period of his estrangement. If, years afterward, under the compulsion of the closed shop, he is forced to request reinstatement, he finds that he is liable for the whole bill, payable on the barrel head before he can hang up his hat and go to work. The total may be so great that he cannot raise the money, in which case the guild has the right to bar him from his legitimate occupation.

THE GUILD may scale the bill down to $2, but can insist on the whole debt. If the applicant is a person of spirit who has denounced the Communist control of the guild and still refuses to placate the Communists the guild can refuse to reinstate him at all.

Newspaper workers outside the Communist circle seem not to appreciate the hidden provisions of the guild constitution. That is understandable, because the trick or trap provisions are written in negative form.

The document does not say in so many words, for example, that nonmembers who never have been members must, nevertheless, abide by its decisions and discipline. The constitution obtains the same effect, however, by providing that an applicant may be rejected if he has ever worked in a shop where there was a strike. But the guild may call a strike of its own members, even if they are a small minority of a whole staff. If there are seven guild members in a shop, and four Communists among them vote to strike, those four may place a hundred nonmembers in danger of future exclusion from the guild if they continue to work.

IF THE GUILD should ever obtain the universal closed shop in the whole American press the nonstrikers would be ineligible for newspaper work everywhere in the United States. And if the C. I. O. should extend the closed shop to all other occupations, according to plan, those nonstrikers could be barred from all unemployment forever.

This provision is reinforced with another passage, but even that meaning is slightly concealed. In order to construct the intention you have to piece together section 11 of article X and section 1, subsection (E) of article XII. However, it confirms the hidden purpose of the negative provisions which I have been explaining. There is no denying the intent.

The claim to perpetual power over those who do join is expressed by clever indirection. On this point the constitution says a member designates the guild as his collective bargaining agent. That seems innocent enough. But this designation may terminate only if he is expelled or goes into some other line of work. It does not terminate if he attempts to resign. Resignation is not recognized at all under any circumstances.

IF HE ENTERS another business he may withdraw, but not resign, and even then he is obliged to join the union, if any, established for workers in his new occupation. And if he ever returns to the newspaper business he must immediately rejoin the guild. If he fails to rejoin he becomes delinquent.

The constitution is so drawn that nonmembers are threatened with an economic death sentence for failure to obey its orders, and members can never escape, even though they should feel it their patriotic duty to dissociate themselves from an organization controlled by Communists under discipline from Moscow.

The Communists, and possibly some genuine Americans in the guild membership who have neglected to study the constitution, probably will deny this information and denounce it as Red-baiting and antiunion propaganda.

But you submit the guild constitution to any non-Communist lawyer and see what he says.

German Plans

By Dorothy Thompson

As They Affect The United States

AS SOON AS the Balkan situation is more or less clear, the Germans intend to "create order" in the Iberian Peninsula—Spain and Portugal.

Portugal they expect to take with the aid of the fifth column, which is tremendous. It consists of German tourists and technicians, who have been there most visibly for months as outposts of the Gestapo, and of internal elements who are dissatisfied with the regime of Salazar. The Salazar dictatorship, which has had an exceptionally good press in the conservative world, is very similar to the regime of Dr. Schuschnigg, late chancellor of Austria, removed from there by the Nazis. It is Catholic and nationalist, and has suppressed Socialists, Communists, Liberals and Freemasons. These, its victims, now the "outs," hope to be rehabilitated by the Nazis. This may seem strange, but stranger things are happening daily. Recently, La Passionaria, fiery voice of the Spanish loyalist cause during the civil war, spoke in Moscow and praised Hitler as the leader of the German proletarian revolution.

PORTUGAL is of great interest to the United States and the Western Hemisphere as a whole. Among its possessions are the Azores, the Cape Verde Islands and Portuguese Guinea, the latter on that spot of Africa nearest to Brazil. The Azores and the Cape Verde Islands are at least as much outposts of our defense in the Atlantic as Hawaii is in the Pacific.

Their ownership by Portugal, a country closely tied up with Great Britain, has caused us no more inconvenience or apprehension than have the Bahamas, or the British, French and Dutch possessions in the Caribbean. But these Portuguese islands lying between the Bermudas and Lisbon are vital to our defense in the Atlantic and vital to offense from the European continent against the Western Hemisphere.

The first part of the Nazi program against the West is to obtain possession of these islands.

AFTER THE DEFEAT of England they contemplate the occupation of Greenland. Udet, the German ace, who planned the parachute campaign over the heads of the German general staff, has explored Greenland and knows it thoroughly. The distance between Greenland and the northwest territory of Canada is less than the distance between Norway and England. Greenland, of course, belongs to Denmark, now a Nazi protectorate, and between Denmark and Greenland are the following hops: Denmark - Norway-Iceland-Greenland. The last named is only about 500 miles from Iceland. The route is similar to that which the Pan American clippers used to follow from England: Iceland-Greenland-Canada-New York.

WITH THESE OUTPOSTS in their hands, the Germans intend to bring military, economic and propaganda pressure upon North and South America. The object will be to secure governments both here and in South America which are "cooperative."

The appeal will be to self-interest and fear. It is well known that there are German conspiracies in all the South American states. Their hardest work is now being done in Mexico and Brazil, the nations nearest to Panama. They are very active at this moment in Uruguay and Guatemala.

The moment the war is over on the continent of Europe Germany will make great peace gestures toward the Western Hemisphere. It will be stated that Germany and Italy are now satisfied nations, that they have no interest in the Western Hemisphere and that the destruction of Europe demands in all humanity the release of American money and resources, for which they will be willing to pay by trade agreements. They count on this campaign appealing to humanitarian Americans, and they are sure that it will appeal to American bankers and industrialists anxious to reopen world trade. In an atmosphere of relaxation and pacification they count on our rearmament program being slowed down. At the same time they hope to replenish their own exhausted stocks of oil, octane gas for airplanes, cotton, etc. They have already laid the groundwork for this program of collaboration with certain industrialists and popular leaders in this country.

The propaganda machine, which is very powerful in North America and which has not been used except in veiled ways to spread Nazi propaganda, has concentrated on demobilizing public opinion here, insisting that there was no danger and branding as "warmongers" all who have tried to warn the public.

Following a victory in Europe the same propaganda machine will tout this "peace" with all its power and again brand as warmongers and hysterics all who beg that energetic measures be taken against "fifth columnists" and that armament building should not be abated. The Nazis hope to divide America on this program of peace with Hitler versus continued vigorous internal defense and preparedness.

THIS IS EXACTLY the tactic that worked so well until the very outbreak of the war with the so-called Cliveden Set in England, with the Sir Samuel Hoares and the Sir John Simons. They were apparently told that all that Germany desired was a sphere of influence in eastern Europe, and that in this England and Germany could cooperate to mutual advantage, England furnishing the financial means and Germany the organization. It was this sort of argument that led to the Runciman commission and to the Munich appeasement.

Precisely the same overtures are now being made to prominent and influential Americans on the promise that the Western Hemisphere will be reserved for the United States, and that Pan-American trade with a German-dominated Europe will be a great and lucrative deal.

But the Nazis will not relax their propaganda, either in South America or here. On the contrary, in the general reconciliation they will vastly increase it. The restoration of vigorous trade relations with important firms, industries and agricultural interests will permit of penetration on an unprecedented scale. We may count on their making such gestures as the dissolution of the German-American Bund, which they think has served its purpose anyhow, to unite a large part of the German minority in America. They do not care for the Kuhns and the Kunzes if they can work through more powerful and "respectable" agents.

What is the value of all such promises? After the occupation of Austria Gen Goering gave his word of honor to the Czech Minister and a pledge to the British Ambassador in Berlin that Germany had no intentions against Czecho Slovakia. That is on the record. At Munich, Hitler gave his word that with the restoration of the Sudetenland he had no further interest in Czecho-Slovakia and was even prepared to guarantee its independence. After the occupation of Prague in March 1939, Hitler, in a public speech, stated that Germany had no quarrel with Poland and called attention to the nonaggression pact which he had signed with the late Marshal Pilsudski in 1934. In August, 1936, Leopold, King of the Belgians, withdrew from the military alliance with France and asked guaranties of Belgian neutrality from France, Britain and Germany. France and Britain gave them in April, 1937, and Germany in October, 1937. At the beginning of the war against Poland, Germany, through diplomatic channels, renewed the validity of her previous guaranties and at the same time informed the Dutch that she would respect the inviolability of the Netherlands. Afterward the Germans discovered so-called diplomatic evidence to "prove" that the Allies had contemplated violating the independence of these states and that Germany, therefore had acted only in self-defense.

It is undoubtedly true that Allied diplomats and military strategists, informed by their secret services of German plans, discussed and considered the possibility of moving first. They were deterred by respect for home opinion, by the cause for which they were fighting and by fear of the reaction of public opinion in the United States.

Germany, on the contrary, believes that success is the only good propaganda and was deterred by none of these things.

ON THE EVIDENCE that these appeasements, overtures and promises are worthless, the United States, being forewarned, is also forearmed and should plan a political, diplomatic, military and commercial strategy to deal with what is certainly approaching in the event of a total Nazi victory. This strategy must be one which will neither involve us in a war, which, in our present state of preparedness and in view of already lost opportunities, will be insane, nor permit this program to succeed. And the first measure of defense against it is to understand what form it will take.

Campaign Issues

By Ernest Lindley

An Early Examination

A FIRM listing of the major issues of the 1940 campaign obviously cannot yet be attempted. Three major obstacles stand in the way.

First, we don't know to what extent Wendell Willkie has the will and the power to jettison the Republican platform adopted at Philadelphia. Nominally he is committed to its support. But much of it is so ambiguous that it is susceptible to any interpretation, and part of it is so archaic that Willkie can hardly avoid outright repudiation of it unless he is to surrender his greatest asset: the attributes of the clean broom which is to sweep the old-line politicians and their ideas into oblivion.

Secondly, the Democratic nominee and platform are still to be adopted.

Thirdly, the rapidly shifting world situation may create new issues. For example, problems before the United States if Great Britain withstands the Nazi-Fascist assault until November will be quite different from those if Great Britain is overwhelmed.

Despite those obstacles, it can be recorded that these are some of the issues which thoughtful people in the Roosevelt Administration think may emerge as of major importance:

1. THE EXTENT of our aid to Great Britain. Critical decisions will have to be made within the next few weeks. But if Britain succeeds in withstanding the Nazi-Fascist assault, additional decisions may have to be made after the election. With Willkie as the Republican nominee there is a better chance than there otherwise would have been of minimizing or removing this as a campaign issue. But the desirable goal of overwhelming national support for whatever steps are taken can be achieved only if the President and Willkie both act on the highest level of patriotic statesmanship. Willkie should be kept fully informed of the President's intended actions and of the reasons for them.

2. The scope and pace of our national defense preparations. The Republicans are banking heavily on the issue of "competence" to prepare the country to defend itself and the Monroe Doctrine. The Democratic response will be, in substance: where can you find men more competent than Knudsen, Stettinius and their associates and assistants? If these men are satisfied with the cooperation they get from the Roosevelt Administration, what valid ground for criticism will the Republicans have? Roosevelt may have moved too slowly and too inadequately on the national defense front. But, the record will blast into splinters any contention by the Republicans that they—or their Presidential nominee—foresaw the need any more quickly or more wholly than Roosevelt did. On the contrary, the record shows that the Republicans lagged behind the Roosevelt Administration.

ANY ATTEMPT by the Republicans to argue that they are better equipped than the Democrats to arm the country may be further vitiated by the scope of the program put forward by the President. The President already has come out for universal national service. The Republican keynoter, Gov. Stassen, rejected this idea. And the Republican platform committee overwhelmingly rejected a proposal far less comprehensive than the President's: Senator Lodge's compulsory military service plank.

On the record to date the Republicans are going to advocate preparedness of the scope and tempo undertaken by the British under Baldwin. They are not even up to the Chamberlain pace. The orientation of their platform, their nominee and their main backers are against more Government control. If we are really going to make ourselves impregnable there must be more Government intervention in business and greater Federal control over the entire national economy and social order.

There are numerous manifestations that the American people want action far wider and more vigorous than the Republican platform and nominee have suggested. Unless Willkie is mobile enough to throw overboard not only his platform but many of his own utterances to date, the Democratic Party will remain without real challenge as the party of preparedness.

3. WHETHER the social and economic gains for the less well-to-do classes made under the New Deal are to be undermined. The idea that many of them must be sacrificed if we are to prepare our national defenses is deeply imbedded in business owners and managers. They seem to believe that we cannot afford to arm and at the same time hold these gains. The fallacy of this belief is most briefly indicated by the number of our unemployed. We have unemployed, on a war basis, almost as many people as are employed in Great Britain. The total British labor supply at the outbreak of the war was only a little more than 14,000,000. We now have around 10,000,000 unemployed by normal standards, and if we gave full-time jobs to part-time workers and called upon the reserves—people who do not need jobs but can be put to work—we probably would have well over 14,000,000 persons available for work, in addition to those now regularly employed. We can carry on a greater national defense effort than any now proposed without exhausting our labor supply. Because most of these unemployed lack the proper skills, some who are already employed may have to work longer hours. But, in general, we can spend probably somewhere between 15 and 25 billion dollars a year for national defense without decreasing the standard of living and without sacrificing any of the important social legislation that has been put on the books in the last few years.

The Democrats will stand for the preservation and perhaps for the further expansion of this social legislation. Although Willkie knows better, the Republican trend of thought is in the opposite direction.

4. If Great Britain collapses, another complex of issues will be presented. They will be explored in a later column.

In general, however, as the nomination of Willkie has brought the Republican Party forward, it has enabled, and perhaps stimulated, the Democratic Party to move still further forward. The result may be that while the advance and rear guards of American thought come closer than they would have if another Republican had been nominated, both will be farther ahead and yet there will be a distinguishable distance between them.

The Once Over

Imaginary Interviews

John Q.—Sam, you look different all of a sudden.

Uncle Sam.—I feel different. In fact, I haven't felt better in years.

John Q.—You mean to say you feel the best in years, with this war crisis and everything!

Uncle Sam.—That's just it. I've suddenly shed the hypocrisy, torn off the blinders and gotten rid of the Little Lord Fauntleroy suit. I'm even beginning to look at facts and not wince. It's wonderful!

• • • •

John Q.—But don't you think there are tough days ahead of you?

Uncle Sam.—Sure. But I'm never at my best except in tough days. I don't want to seem boastful, but in all these years of coddling, comparative ease and comfort I haven't felt right. There were times when I hated to see myself in a mirror.

John Q.—It's strange, but I feel the same way. I've been squawking and making demands all over the lot; I've been getting sore because I had to keep the old car three reasons; I've been yelling murder because there were worms on the third green at the country club, and I've been working up a terrific peeve because of the lack of free gasoline. And now, suddenly, they all seem unimportant and trivial.

Uncle Sam.—It's a swell break for us both.

• • • •

John Q.—But it means plenty of trouble, I suppose. Do you feel in condition for it?

Uncle Sam.—No, darn it! I've grown so soft it's going to be a terrific battle to get into shape.

John Q.—I feel pretty flabby, too. Say, why did you let me get this way?

Uncle Sam (indignantly).—How did I let you get this way! What I wanna know is how you let me get this way.

John Q.—You're the boss; I just do as I'm told.

Uncle Sam.—That's your story, and we're both stuck with it. You're the real boss.

John Q.—Who? Me?

Uncle Sam.—I only reflect your wishes and opinions. And for years I got the idea all you wanted was plenty of white meat.

John Q.—Don't blame it all on me, Sam. Every time I looked at you you were busy on plans for the more abundant life. Instead of a tough, wiry old guy with his fists clenched and his sleeves rolled up, you were like a fat spendthrift, yelling that life was just a bowl of cherries and asking everybody to step up and help himself.

Uncle Sam.—That was your fault. You got so you thought I was a slot machine. And you were always looking for the jackpot.

• • • •

John Q.—Why, listen, when you should have been down to brass tacks, developing your muscles and hardening yourself for any contingency, you were behaving as if all anybody had to worry about in this world was a bigger recreation program.

Uncle Sam.—There you've got yourself mixed up with me again. You were the fellow who demanded tile bathrooms, an orchid bed in every backyard, three days a week for auto trips and a guaranty against slippery roads, cold nights and sand in your lettuce.

John Q.—You babied me so much I got to like it, I admit.

Uncle Sam.—All you wanted was the brass ring, caviar with the free lunch, Government distribution of strawberries and cream.

John Q.—Why did you cater to me so much?

• • • •

Uncle Sam.—I wish I knew. everytime I thought of letting you shift for yourself you'd start wiring me for aid in every crisis, from falling hair to a leak in the radiator.

John Q.—Well, I guess it's all over now. I guess we've got to cut out the petting party and get on our own.

Uncle Sam.—Whaddaya mean you "guess!"

The Balkan Turmoil

RUSSIA'S sudden seizure of Bessarabia and northern Bukovina has tended to precipitate all the feuds, discontents, passions and hates that time and again have made the Balkans the cockpit of Europe.

Hungary has gone on a war footing, apparently with the determination of seizing the lost province of Transylvania if Rumania is not willing to relinquish it voluntarily. But Hungary is not Russia. Whereas Rumania felt she had no choice but to submit to Russia's demand for Bessarabia and Bukovina, her leaders feel she is still a match for the Magyars.

Greece has rushed troops to eastern Thrace, that narrow strip of land which blocks Bulgaria's path to the Aegean and which Bulgaria has long desired.

The Turks are on their guard along the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles. For 20 years they have regarded the Soviet Union as a friend and ally. But the Red bear is now on the march and there is no certainty that, after washing his paws in the Danube, he will not make tracks for the Mediterranean. And Bulgaria is not quite sure whether this is the moment to regain Dobrudja or to take precautions against becoming a Russian satellite.

SOMEHOW, there is an air of utter unreality about the whole picture. There is, of course, nothing unreal about the suffering of the additional hundreds of thousands of refugees which Russia's incursion in the Balkans has set adrift. There is nothing unreal about Hungary's desire for Transylvania, or Bulgaria's desire for southern Dobrudja, or the intentions of Rumania, Greece and Turkey to keep what they have. But not one of these nations is today in any sense of the word a free agent. Each one is in the grip of forces over which they have not the slightest control. They have become puppets of circumstance.

King Carol, who is a realist if nothing else, appears to understand this fact. That is why he has thrown himself at the feet of Adolf Hitler. In other words, he is ready to sacrifice the independence he knows Rumania has already lost, to keep, in fief, the territory she still possesses.

THE GRIM FACT which all the nations of southeastern Europe now have before them is that their destiny depends on what Germany does, on what Russia does and, in the long run, on what happens in Great Britain.

As long as the old balance of power was maintained in Europe and the Near East they could live at peace. But that balance has been shattered. France no longer exists as a great power. Great Britain is beleaguered. Germany and Italy, though flushed with victory, still have a formidable military task before them. Stalin saw his opportunity and seized it. A new balance of power, temporary though it may prove to be, is in the making in southeastern Europe and in the process of its creation the old status quo is being destroyed.

SO FAR AS GERMANY and Italy are concerned it can hardly be denied that it is neither to their immediate or long-range interests to have Balkan status quo destroyed, particularly if it is destroyed by Russia and to Russia's advantage. But the game they are playing in Europe is for tremendous stakes. They may be reckoning on the belief that any territory which Russia acquires now will be in the nature of a temporary loan; they can take care of Russia in good time after victory over England has been achieved. The one possibility they have to fear is that the Russian coup will destroy the peace as well as the territorial status quo in the Balkans. If it does that their hope of a speedy triumph over the British may have to be postponed and if postponed may not easily be revived. That is why it matters very little to them whether Rumania gives up any territory to Hungary or Bulgaria or both or whether Hungary and Bulgaria get any territory at all. What does matter is whether the sudden flare-up of passionate irredentism in the Balkans can be controlled so as to not imperil the peace in that corner of Europe.

BUT EVEN if the Balkan nations are temporarily kept from flying at each other's throats, the fact that Russia today flanks the Rumanian oil region, has control of the only easy approach to the eastern Danube from the north and now reaches down to one of the mouths of that great river cannot be pleasant to Hitler. The Bolshevik dictator has succeeded in blackmailing the Fuehrer on several past occasions. He forced the Baltic Germans to pack up and get out of Esthonia, Latvia and Lithuania. He took possession of two-fifths of Poland, which Germany conquered, without more than having to lift his hand. He has done so again. He has secured a very important strategic foothold in the Balkans.

In the long run all of Russia's recent gains may merely serve as the prelude to a disastrous war in which an isolated Russia would have to fight an all-powerful Germany. For the time being, however, the Soviet Union is in a position to proceed with impunity. Germany cannot intervene in the Balkans at this time, however urgent the need, without some danger to her prospects of victory in the west. The important fact today is that Germany's present and prospective satellites in southeastern Europe are at Russia's mercy.

More Is Needed To Send District Children to Camp

Several hundred youngsters who had hoped to attend camp this summer will have to be stricken from lists compiled by social agencies if the Needy Children's Camps campaign stops short of its $7,500 goal, leaders said yesterday.

With slightly more than $4,000 now in the fund, Mrs. Frank A. Linzel, chairman, said the campaigners "could not conscientiously sit by without making a renewed effort to enlist Washington's support."

A plea was urged for Washingtonians to "adopt" a needy youngster for a week at camp, at the rate of $8.50. Funds should be sent to Claude A. Kniseley at the Seventh street branch of Riggs National Bank. The program is designed to send youngsters to Camp Good Will, Camp Pleasant and other camps of Community Chest agencies.

Undertaker Gets Phone Listing Back

Charles S. Zurhorst, Inc., undertaking firm, of 301 East Capitol street, yesterday got back two telephone numbers it had used for more than 40 years.

Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue, of the District Court, ordered the numbers restored, pending hearing July 11 on the firm's petition for a temporary injunction. The firm filed suit on Monday, charging that Ralph T. Flanagan, its former manager, had the numbers relisted under the name of an establishment he opened after he left Zurhorst's. The Zurhorst firm claimed that 95 per cent of its trade was diverted to the new competitor.

King Carol Has Offered to Quit, Belgrade Says

Cabinet Rejected Abdication Move, Yugoslavs Report

we found ourselves without friends and without support."

This was taken as substantiating reports that Germany refused to heed Rumania's appeal for help until King Carol's government formally cut all ties with the Allies and pledged full entrance into the Nazi military, economic and political spheres of influence.

Allied Pledges a Hindrance

After that pledge was given German bombers arrived at Brasov last night.

"The insecurity of our frontiers with Hungary and Bulgaria forced us to relinquish Bessarabia and North Bucovina," said the foreign minister.

The government, he explained, found that the Franco-British guarantees of Rumanian independence "hampered us instead of helping us."

Communizing Territory

While Argetoianu spoke, the Russians were reported pouring engineers, agricultural experts, Ogpu (secret service) officers and fresh divisions of the Red army into Bessarabia and North Bucovina to put the stamp of communism as rapidly as possible on the now completely occupied territory.

Government quarters pinned their hopes for peaceful settlement of Rumania's territorial disputes with Hungary and Bulgaria on the diplomatic pressure of Germany.

They expressed belief Adolf Hitler might now be ready to offer military and political protection to this country in return for complete control of Rumania's economic life—in order to safeguard the Reich's interest in Rumania.

Rome Conference Proposed

Diplomatic quarters reported the Rumanian government had suggested to the Reich that a conference of all southeastern European powers be held in Rome in the near future to settle all problems affecting this region. The reaction to this suggestion was not known here.

There were rumors, meanwhile, that Rumania might conclude a military and political alliance with Germany, but these could not be confirmed.

Germany, it is believed, may be offering full military support to Rumania on condition that Rumania make a peaceful adjustment of the Hungarian and Bulgarian claims—with Bucharest in a difficult position to refuse.

front line trench, the U. S. A. has a responsibility in this matter.

"If they are our friends—and I believe they are—they must immediately come to our rescue by sending their fleet and their boats to this country to take our women and children away."

In the debate on plans for moving thousands of children to Canada and the United States, Labor Leader Josiah Wedgewood asserted American generosity in offering sanctuary to these children had been "cold shouldered."

Recalling that Britain had offered to France, just before her surrender, a close political union, he went on:

"The time may come when America may make a like offer to us, or we to them. That day, when it comes, will mean both the winning of this war and the salvation of the race."

Clement Attlee, Prime Minister Churchill's deputy, told the house that Britain needed "not merely ships to carry the children, but also ships to protect them."

New labor outcries were heard against the presence in the government of men who have helped appease Adolf Hitler in the past.

The powerful National Union of Railway Men demanded by resolution the immediate removal of all officials "associated with the previous government's policy of appeasement."

The resolution was sponsored by Labor Leader A. H. Patton, who told a conference of the union at Morecambe:

". . . Our fifth column men who still are in positions of power ought to have been removed when the government was reconstituted."

He asserted that he feared these officials—whom he did not name—more than German planes or mechanized troops, saying:

"I want to see them put in a position where they cannot possibly betray this country in the way Marshal Petain betrayed France."

The admiralty acknowledged that German U-boats raiding British commerce had been operating in increased numbers, augmented by the work of Italian submarines in the Mediterranean and also possibly in the Atlantic.

It was disclosed that in the week ended June 23, 88,259 tons of shipping had been destroyed—mainly, it was said, because of the disruption of the escort service by the diversion of ships for the withdrawal of British, French and other Allied soldiers from France.

Hungary Speeds Mobilization as Budapest, Rumania Continue Row Over Transylvania

Budapest, July 2.—Hungary and Rumanian officials exchanged bitter words over Transylvania tonight, and Hungary gave every sign of determination to regain that old Magyar province in one way or another.

Mobilization went full ahead, notwithstanding Germany's increasingly urgent efforts to keep peace in the Balkans lest her own economic interests be smashed in war.

[The United Press said, however, a scheduled order for general mobilization had been postponed.]

In Parliament, Hungarian Deputy Kozi-Horvath dramatically declared "military requisitioning in Transylvania by the Rumanian goverament is taking on the character of free looting of Hungarian property."

Very similar accusations, pointed at Hungary, were made by official quarters in Bucharest. There it was alleged that to find a reason for sending its armies into Transylvania the Hungarian government was fomenting revolution among the Magyars. It was asserted, too, that Hungary was smuggling arms into Transylvania.

An Associated Press dispatch from Debrecen, Hungary, said highways from that army corps area headquarters to the Rumanian frontier a score of miles away were jammed tonight with tanks, heavy artillery and motorized equipment.

Railway lines to the frontier also were choked with military traffic.

[Another Associated Press dispatch from Oradea, Rumania, on the frontier about 50 miles south of Debrecen, said the Rumanian army is working overtime on defense against what officers call "habitual night attacks."]

Woman Advises Friend Against Spending Vacation At Summer Resort With Beau, Even Though They Register at Different Hotels; Is She Right?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: A friend of mine maintains that she has a perfect right, according to good social usage, to meet her beau at Atlantic City and spend her vacation in his company, if she stays at one hotel and he at another. I insist that in so doing she would be defying convention, since this is a world in which we must not only live rightly, but above any suspicion to the contrary.

I have tried, for her sake, to make her see my view. Because, while I have utmost confidence in her character, I doubt that the world would be so charitable. Please state your stand on this immediately. If I am wrong, I want to know it. And if she is wrong, what you say may influence her. Thank you. F. R.

DEAR F. R.: This, you say, is a world in which we should live not only rightly, but above any suspicion to the contrary. Granted. But that is only a fractional truth—and one to which even you do not give literal service, since your zealous concern with your friend's affairs invites suspicion of being more officiously repressive than altruistic. I believe that righteousness on the grand scale would be better served by humankind if each of us was more concerned with perfecting his own performance than with keeping score on (or trying to elevate) his brother.

And now for the hair-splitting: Good socialeusage, as I understand it, is established by group acceptance of certain patterns of behavior as being the happiest or most reasonable adjustment of individual preference to communal welfare. What is construed as good usage at one time, or in one locale, is condemned as undesirable in another era or in a different type of society. And your dispute with your friend affords a classic example of spokesmen for two different eras (or perhaps conflicting types of social conditioning), trying to define what constitutes for them, or for their group, "good social usage" or "right living."

From your viewpoint, it may indeed be socially opprobrious (which is to say, conducive to personal embarrassment and community scandal), for a young woman to spend her vacation unchaperoned at Atlantic City, in the company of her best beau, even though they stop at different hotels and scrupulously observe the spirit of moral propriety. But according to the so-called young modern view—and I mean the view of young adults, not adolescents—such an attitude as yours is likely to be reckoned not only as hopelessly obsolete, but also prurient minded. And who is to say which attitude is right?

As the dour philosopher Schopenhauer observed (in effect), "We impute to others the actions and motives of which we ourselves are capable." Which suggests that those who demand fool-proof evidence that everybody's behaylor is on the up-and-up are more in need of moral policing than those who ingenuously decry its need or effectiveness.

In defense of your friend, it must be said that she would be no trail-blazer if she were to pursue her plans despite your opposition. For at least two decades, we in this country have seen young men and women of independent mind and decent motive trying to order their lives and social interchange on the principle that they are a spiritually trustworthy species, and not creatures scarcely removed from the animal kingdom. We know that they do sincerely believe, and hardily act upon their belief, that personal integrity is a greater moral deterrent, a better social safeguard, than any chaperone's intrusive surveillance can be.

With regard to your dispute, my "stand" (if any), is more neutral than slanted, I think. I assume your friend is of self-governing age and generally prudent and dependable—for you say that you "have the utmost confidence in her character." This implies that she is at least as well able as yourself to evaluate the kind and weight of opinion she would be challenging in carrying through her vacation plans; and that she is entitled, therefore, to follow her judgment rather than yours, if hers happens to conflict with yours.

Frankly, I don't think a really "right mind" society of her contemporaries would give a second (much less a lewdly inquiring) thought to the fact that she had spent two weeks in Atlantic City at the same time her beau was there. As a matter of fact, I submitted your question to open discussion by eight professional women, whose ages range from about 23 to the figure euphimistically known as "uncertain." And all but one exclaimed, "Tell the friend to go on." The cautious contributor believes in the moral value of "appearances," even as you. M. H.

Patriotic Ensemble for the Fourth

This tri-color costumé may look like a very patriotic gesture for Independence Day celebrators, but it's chic enough to wear long after the Fourth. Firecracker-red-and-white rayon silk makes the jaunty bolero and slacks, white silk, the soft blouse, and white straw, the enormous beach hat. The cummerbund and beach bag are of flag blue—a star-spangled overture to current patriotic fashions

National Color Motif Rules Holiday Dress

By Marshall Adams

The Post Fashion Editor.

THERE are numerous ways of "wearing the colors" tomorrow as you celebrate the Fourth of July. Stylists have thought of everything from the tri-color dress mode to small gestures of patriotism in gadget jewelry.

Most vitalizing effort in making us Old Glory conscious has been the red, white and blue theme, which has been saluting from every shop window, office, beach and hotel terrace. Most of the tri-color efforts, however will be found, not in the shops, as much as on the backs of the Joneses, the Browns and the Smiths tomorrow. They'll wear everything from the popular three-toned (crimson, blue and white) sports dresses to peppermint-striped footwear, marine blue bags and belts and star-spangled headgear. It was no accident that caused designers to team these colors this summer either. It was a well-organized appeal to our sentimental side. For once the designers thought of the flattery appeal as secondary.

With the war's recent creation of America as the diamond market of the world, the designers have added a patriotic patina to our jewelry trends as well. Silson, native costume jewelry expert, created a fad, then a trend for patriotic gems when he invented his first little French mob cap and "friends of France" cockade. These were quickly followed by American buttonhole banners, pinwheel brooches for tri-colored skull caps, "service stripe" bracelets of red, white and blue gems, and the enormously popular eagle-and-flag pins, pinned alike to low or high salaried lapels.

Spoon Bread Delights Press Guests at Garden Buffet

DOUBTLESS Dr. William Brown, surgeon-general of the Continental Army, would have been a bit amazed Saturday night if he could have looked in on his old homestead at 212 South Fairfax street, Alexandria, Va., and seen the Ladies of the Press enjoying a buffet supper in the garden.

Newspaper women had not come into the limelight in 1775, at the time Dr. Brown's historic landmark was built, for as "late" as 1825, when John Quincy Adams was President, Ann Royall was a "sensation" when she surprised the President by asking him his views on the national bank policy, while he was swimming in the Potomac.

Mrs. Harry W. Blair, a writer of note, and a leader among Democratic women, is mistress of this interesting old home. Saturday night she entertained a small group, largely composed of newspaper women, at a garden buffet supper, given in honor of Ruby Black, retiring president, and Helen Essary, incoming president of the Women's National Press Club.

In keeping with Southern atmosphere, Mrs. Blair included one famous Dixie dish in her menu—delectable spoon bread. Certainly no food is more synonymous with quality and deliciousness than spoon bread, when it is made in the right fashion. And "Hollie," Mrs. Blair's maid, had successfully fashioned this dish, as well as the other items on the menu.

A delicious chicken salad that included bits of crunchy celery and white grapes and Hollie's home-made mayonnaise was one of the main dishes. The salad was centered in the opening of a lime gelatin mold. This mold was filled with small peas and string beans. Tiny cottage cheese balls dotted the top of the mold. Another main food was a sturdy spaghetti dish. But it was the spoon bread which was so tantalizing and appealing to most of the guests. Bisque ice cream, cake with lemon frosting, iced tea and coffee were also on the menu.

Hollie's recipe for spoon bread is as follows:

Spoon Bread

Separate 3 eggs and beat yolks. Add 1 pint of milk to the yolks, and then 1 cup white corn meal, ½ teaspoon salt and 2 teaspoons sugar. Next add butter size of walnut (melted) and then 2 teaspoons baking powder. Fold in lightly, 3 beaten egg whites last. Grease a baking dish and pour mixture into it. Bake for 40 minutes at 400 degrees. Serves 6.

Rich Desserts Upset Entire Diet Schedule

Here Lies the Answer As to Why So Many Gain, Instead of Lose

By Ida Jean Kain

WE HAD heard rumors about the lady who conscientiously ate up her diet and then, with a clear conscience and unabated appetite, proceeded to enjoy her usual fare. But we didn't believe it until the other day!

There she sat, at the next table. She had ordered a luncheon that was positively meager—just plain lettuce, hard-boiled egg, melba toast, and buttermilk, and that's all.

And we thought, with a glow of admiration, "There's a gallant soul who has seen the error of overeating and is trying to slim down."

That's what we thought! Then we saw the waitress bringing her dessert course and we said, "No! It can't be!" But it was—pie a la mode! That finishing gastronomic gesture represented several times as many calories as contained in her diet!

One Cure for Dessert Addicts

Later on we buttonholed the hostess of the restaurant for more data about the customers who combine dieting with over-eating, and she confided that some of the patrons regularly order a la calorie diet—Reducer's French Dressing and all—for the first part of the meal and then top off with an extra dessert. Apparently, their feeling is that they've earned it.

So now we are afraid that's the course taken by a good many of the overweights who are forever "dieting" without getting any thinner. Perhaps what is needed is a Keeley cure for the dessert addicts!

If you can't seem to let dessert alone and it is the main thing that is standing between you and a good figure, you might give this plan a two-day trial: Eat nothing but desserts—good, rich dessert—for breakfast, luncheon, dinner, any anytime in between that you feel like eating.

Before the end of the second day, you ought to have the same hearty loathing for sweets as the little boy who took the doughnut cure. . . . Seeing a young friend about to spend his nickel for doughnuts, he said, with a pained expression, "Don't! I've just had 13 of them—they're awful!"

Fruits Can Be Substituted

But if it doesn't work out that way, don't carry that "cure" any further because you are evidently a confirmed dessert eater and the only result would be to impair your health, not to mention your looks.

In fact, that plan is a little too drastic to be given unqualified approval. . . . It's just a not too serious suggestion which might prove successful in a few cases. When you come right down to it, your best bet is not to give up desserts entirely, but to substitute fresh fruits, berries without cream, and melon for the heavy pastries and cream concoctions, so that your craving for sweets costs you very few calories and contributes valuable food essentials to your menu.

Manhattan's War Time Psychology Prompts Citizens of Foreign Extract to Pose as French

New York, July 2.

THE DIFFICULTIES of social and professional contacts in this melting pot at present have already been noted here, but really, you'll have to excuse me, kindly. They get funnier every day, if your sense of humor holds out.

In the old speakeasy days (faugh!) Italians who ran the fancy type which catered to carefree housewives of the uptown drinking set always pretended that the cuisine and the help were French, because they considered it considerably smarter. All the grup had French names, and French speech and accents were attempted, usually not too well. The same thing exactly is going on today, except now that it is considered safer, not smarter. Emilio becomes Emile, and so on. The Liberty Potatoes rubbish of the last war is being repeated, in spades.

Take our favorite snap-and snip spot in the Murray Hill area. The barmen, to the last man, are of Italian blood, while every captain of waiters is German or Austrian. Pardon me, I mean German. All these people are friends of some years standing, and all of a sudden it happens that the joint is in the hands of the Axis powers laughingly speaking. The other morning Hall got a large laugh when Herr Fischer, who is about as Gallic as Muenchener beer, greeted him at the door with "Bon jour, Monsieur! Ca va? Hall held off his guffaw until he could reply, hello, toots, and then had a refreshing mug of grape juice as a tonic.

ᔓᔕ

Leaving his home from home, the spouse then went to the neighborhood tonsorial parlor for his semiannual haircut. It is staffed by Latins, who post their first names on the mirrors. This time he was hilarified at noting that "Mario" had replaced his real name with "Bob." Probably "Tony" becomes "Tom, old kid." Oh yes, this is very comical, as of today. As of tomorrow and tomorrow, I really wouldn't know about the humor of it. In fact, I gravely doubt it.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Sonja Henie's in town at the Waldorf, and maybe by the time this hits your retina she and Dan'l Topping, of the rich Toppings, will be one. Dan'l was married to Arline Judge. Sonja will keep skating, of course. I was delighted with the passing comment of Mr. Charles Knickerbocker, famed society scribe. He said that "the New York clubman has two marriages to his credit." Credit hey? We didn't call two or three marriages via divorce a "credit" back in granny's time, but we were fogies then, as now. . . .

It is reported that Florida may get Greta Garbo for a resident for her vacations. What is this—another of those Steve Hannagan gags to discredit poor old California? Incidentally, since her pictures made most of their money abroad, the superb Swede may be off the screen until foreign markets revive—if ever. Rotten shame, after that swell "Ninotchka."

I once told here of a husband named Alexander White who was ordered to cook the meals for his wife when he charged her with incompetence at the kitchen stove. The sequel is that later they were legally separated, and that only yesterday he was hauled into court for taking a poke at her. Now the beefing and socking husband has been sent to a hospital for mental observation. Ducky family life, the White's.

Tennis Player Warned on Elbow Pain

By Logan Clendening, M. D

Tennis is one of the least dangerous sports, although I believe, curiously enough, it ranks ahead of skiing in number and seriousness of injuries sustained. I don't understand this about skiing because I have seen about a zillion skiers take off in the movies and I don't see how skiing can be the safest of all sports, but that is what the statisticians say.

Tennis, however, takes its toll in the way of sprains, sometimes broken bones and at least one occupational hazard.

"Tennis Elbow"

The occupational hazard of tennis players is "tennis elbow." Tennis elbow is a pain on the outside of the arm, just above the elbow. A Boston surgeon has described this condition in his own person. Underneath the spot that hurts you can feel a small outgrowth of bone. The Boston doctor thought that he had chipped this off, but the X-ray showed that it was perfectly normal.

The worst thing to do is to try to buck it and go on playing tennis. It is really due to an inflammation of a small bursa underneath one of the muscles in the forearm which rides over the elbow joint. Sometimes the bursa has to be removed surgically. Heat and rest and strapping with adhesive plaster, and sometimes even putting on a plaster cast, is necessary.

Be Sure It's Sprain

Sprains in playing tennis are common enough. Sprains should not be treated too seriously if they are really sprains. In other words, the first thing to do with a sprain is to be sure that it is a sprain and not a fractured bone. This, of course, can be decided by the X-ray, so an X-ray picture is the first treatment of sprain. A sprain is only a torn or stretched ligament.

Tennis had something to do with our modern treatment of sprains because some years ago an English doctor found that his young patients who disobeyed his orders and went on playing tennis got well of their sprains faster than those who were kept in bed for six weeks, so the general idea now is to rest a sprain for a day or two, strap it firmly with adhesive tape and encourage motion and action.

"Is a device similar to an electric rolling-pin, to roll away fat, injurious?"

Answer—It is neither injurious nor helpful. External massage does not reduce fat.

"Is a quart of chocolate milk a day harmful? Is the eating of yeast daily of any benefit?"

Answer—A quart of chocolate milk is simply getting so much energy and nutritious food, so it is in no way harmful except in the case of overweight. Yeast contains the vitamin B complex which is preventive of various deficency diseases and neuritis, and it promotes growth and general good health.

"What is the matter with a baby who has what looks like part of an animal tail, and what can be done for it?"

Answer—The condition is known as a "pilonidal sinus" or "pilonidal cyst." The evolutionist finds evidence from the existence of these little structures to support his theory. They are undoubtedly the remnants of some sort of an animal tail. There are usually only three or four hairs, but these are embedded in a sort of cyst or sac at the base of the spine, the removal of which requires considerable skill. The condition is rare and need not cause any alarm as it gives no trouble unless the cyst becomes infected.

Brennans Give a Tea Honoring Sara Allgood

Minister of Eire and Actress Are Old Friends; Miss Fischer Holds Linen Shower for Miss Houston Niller, Bride-Elect

By Hope Ridings Miller.

SARA ALLGOOD, stage and screen star, currently appearing here in a motion picture, "Storm in a Teacup," and in a play, "The Far Off Hills" at Catholic University, yesterday made her Washington visit a complete set by turning up as honor guest at a tea given by the Irish Minister and Mrs. Robert Brennan.

Hope Ridings Miller

Shortly after 4 p. m., a small group of guests—several of whom had met Miss Allgood before—arrived at the Irish Legation for a cup of tea and a chat with the Broadway star who is one of your favorite comediennes and mine.

Being feted by the Brennans is getting to be a habit with Missi Allgood. I recall an especially pleasant party for her at the Irish Legation last season when she appeared here with George M. Cohan in "Madame, Will You Walk?" She and the Irish Minister are friends of long standing. They first met a number of years ago when both were in the Abbey Theater in Dublin.

Yesterday Mrs. Brennan, wearing an orchid-tinted frock, received informally with the guest of honor who had donned a black Crepe dress set off by several strands of pearls. Sharing honors, so to speak, was the bride of the household, Mrs. Sven Yort, formerly Miss Emer Brennan, daughter of the Minister and his wife. The two other girls were also on hand. Miss Deirdre Brennan, who poured tea, wore a blue printed frock while Miss Maeve Brennan, in a cocoa colored print, assisted generally.

Senator James E. Murray dropped in for a chat with the famed actress, as did Mrs. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, wife of the Senator from Wyoming. Others there included the Assistant Financial Counselor of the Rumanian Legation and Mme. Dimitriu, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, Mrs. J. J. Mack, Miss Helen Yort, in a smart white pique frock trimmed in wide bands of Irish lace, and Mrs. George Holmes, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Mary Holmes.

MEANWHILE, out in Alexandria, another party was in progress—one that featured a model house inspection, along with a gay company and a few informal lessons in beautifying a home.

Hostess for the event was Mrs. James Haley, who has quite a flair for interior decoration, and who has been turning her attention recently to a model house in Yates Gardens, new housing community in Alexandria. So pleased were Mrs. Haley's friends with the job that they urged her to give other friends a chance to see it. "All right, I'll have a party there," she said. And she did.

From 5 to 7 o'clock yesterday afternoon about 50 guests from Washington and round about drove out to the model house at 417 Jefferson street to see the results of Joan Haley's new job. They saw the results of setting off simple pine furniture with dressy touches, and of transforming a low-priced studio house into a home that can't be measured in dollars and cents. You'll be hearing more about that house. (Incidentally, it's not for sale) . . . and Joan Haley, interior decorator.

JUST ABOUT THE TIME you'd expect the town to settle down into its usual summer doldrums, along comes a flock of pre-nuptial fetes to give a fillip of fresh interest to the social calendar. Truth is, with two popular post-debs scheduled to walk down the aisle on Saturday, the partying round has shifted back into high gear and is proceeding at a lively clip.

Miss Houston Niller, whose marriage to Dr. Moore Moore, of Memphis, Tenn., will take place in Christ Church, Alexandria, on Saturday afternoon, was guest of honor at a linen shower given yesterday afternoon by Miss Betty Fischer. The latter, a bride-elect herself, will be one of Miss Niller's attendants.

The party, small and informal, took place at Miss Fischer's home at 1222 Q street, and guests included Miss Doris Becker, who will be Miss Niller's maid of honor; Miss Nancy Hoskinson, another attendant; Miss Peggy Townsend, Miss Eleanor Meem, Miss Julie Cahill, Miss Mary Felton Kennedy, Mrs. Douglas Smith, Countess Cassini, Mrs. Thomas Adams, Mrs. Robert Knowlton and Miss Mary Dora Thompson, who will also become a bride on Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Adams, the former Caroline Cecil, will entertain at a tea this afternoon in honor of Miss Niller, and James O'Grady will be host at a dinner for her this evening.

Mrs. William Niller, mother of the bride-elect, will give an informal supper on Friday evening following the wedding rehearsal. Because of the recent death of Mr. Niller, the reception after the marriage will be attended only by relatives, a few close friends and members of the wedding party.

MISS MARY DORA THOMPSON and her fiance, Lieut. Ormond Griffith Sexton, 3d, U. S. N., will be guests of honor at a picnic supper party to be givin tomorrow evening by Capt. and Mrs. Smith Hempstone. The party is scheduled for the garden of 4418 Lowell street, the new home of Mrs. Hempstone's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Swift.

On Friday evening, Capt. and Mrs. Hempstone will entertain at dinner in honor of Miss Thompson and Lieut. Sexton, and later, after the wedding rehearsal, Capt. and Mrs. Luther Sheldon, jr., will give a party for the couple. A number of out-of-town guests are expected to arrive today and tomorrow for the wedding and the round of pre-nuptial parties.

Lieut. Sexton's mother, Mrs. O. G. Sexton, jr., and his sister and brother, Miss Stella Sexton and Phillip Sexton, will arrive today from Tampa, Fla. Others who will be here are Miss Frances Brisler, of New York, who will be maid of honor; Mrs. Rowland White of Pensacola, Fla., and Capt. and Mrs. Henry Dollard, of Philadelphia.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

SOCIAL WASHINGTON has whirled 'round and 'round all winter until, exhausted by its own centrifugal force, its component parts have departed in different directions for the summer, some to the mountains, some to the great open spaces, and some to the seaside

Among the latter are some Washingtonians who chose Rehoboth Beach as their destination. Mr. and Mrs. Turner Catledge and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Richardson have taken a cottage together on Henlopen avenue. Mrs. McCeney Werlich and her son, Bobby, are at the Henlopen Hotel, as are Maj. and Mrs. L. J. Dillon, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Scriven.

* * * *

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES HURD are having a short vacation in Rehoboth between the Republican and Democratic conventions and Mrs. Frederick Essary is also catching a breath of sea air after the Willkie landslide before going to Chicago. The latter is accompanied by her attractive daughter, Peggy, who is hostess at Anderson House, the headquarters of the Order of the Cincinnati. To digress a little, I was interested to learn that Dorsey Fisher, of the State Department, has recently inherited a membership in the famous order.

* * * *

Mr. and Mrs. Aldous Walker came to Rehoboth over the week-end from the Eastern Shore, where they have been visiting Mr. Walker's mother at Webley. The Walkers were guests of the Stanley Richardsons and were spending an afternoon on the beach with them. Suddenly Mr. Richardson, after a slight scuffle, emerged from the water with a part of Mr. Walker's bathing suit in his possession and was only persuaded to return it to the shivering victim just in time to prevent his catching pneumonia from too long immersion.

BESIDES PRANKS on the beach one finds great diversion in the activities of the local fire department. When the siren blows men rush out of stores and filling stations and from all directions converge on the fire hall changing clothes as they go. Such a scene was witnessed yesterday afternoon when a fire alarm was sent in from the house of the Turner Catledges. One of the Catledge children had discovered the roof of their garage on fire and had called her nurse, who in turn sent in the alarm.

The Catledges were away on a day's fishing trip but they very quickly had more uninvited guests at their house than one could conveniently count. The whole town turned out to see the blaze, especially the children, who crowded around to watch the firemen, wearing efficient-looking gas masks, enter the smoke-filled garage.

* * * *

Everyone moved away and children started to scamper for cover, disappointment written on their faces.

The policeman shouted louder, "Get away, everyone who isn't interested."

The children said in a chorus, "We ARE interested," and proceeded to stay exactly where they were.

Overseas League Hears Rep. Rogers, Dr. Acheson

Preparedness and Deportation of Everyone Who Is Not a Loyal Citizen Advocated By Legislator in Luncheon Address

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post's Club Editor.

Preparedness and 'the making of an American citizen of everyone in the United States and sending out every one who is not a loyal citizen" were advocated yesterday by Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, of Massachusetts in a brief address at the luncheon of the Women's Overseas Service League in the Mayflower Hotel. "In order to help any other country in the world, we must be prepared ourselves," she declared.

Dr. Barclay Acheson, of New York, associate editor of the Reader's Digest and former director of Near East Relief, on the program with her, declared that this country had made the greatest progress in social justice in the history of the world. He urged on the league the responsibility for being one of the organizations to instill this fact in the consciousness of the youth of the Nation.

Cites Advances In 100 Years

Dr. Barclay quoted the assertion, made to him as early as 1926 by Communist leaders in Russia, that the United States, with its competitive business, could not effect the equal distribution of the products of a machine age. This sounds plausible but history shows, he said, that the greatest social revolution on record has gone forward in America in the past century, reforms brought about through the efforts of enlightened minorities in the atmosphere of freedom.

Illustrating the accomplishments of this Nation in the field of social justice, he cited the abolition of the concept of the divine right of property and the practice of incarceration of persons for debts; the advance from the time 100 years ago, when children were imported from Europe to this country to "man" the factories, to the present child labor and child welfare legislation, the schools, playgrounds, Boy and Girl Scouts organizations and summer camps for children.

"Our system of Government has put 25,000,000 men and women, boys and girls behind desks of learning; the totalitarian systems have poured them into the trenches." This, he said, is not a record of defeat or failure for our country but one of success in the field of social justice—and the Nation should be aware of it and ready to refute insidious charges to the contrary.

Throughout history, he said, freedom and progress have been allied. Only in the atmosphere of freedom can civilization advance, he added.

Decries Search For Panaceas

He decried the search for a panaceas. "The challenge today to democracy is for work," he declared. "If we are to compete with dictators abroad, we must have an aroused, functioning group of minorities here at home." He expressed apprehension that we would "prepare for defense now but in five years would go to sleep and begin to rationalize."

Dr. Acheson and Representative Rogers, who is a member of the Washington unit, were introduced by Miss Edwina Morrow, of Cincinnati, national service chairman, who served with Dr. Acheson in the Near East.

Mrs. Jerome Stenger, a unit member just returned from Paris, who had been announced as a speaker on the refugee problem of the present war, was unable to be present. Dr. Acheson spoke yesterday instead of Sunday as had been originally scheduled.

Following the luncheon, members of the league went to Mount Vernon and visited historic places in Alexandria, later being entertained at tea at Dumbarto Oaks, home of Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, a member of the Washington unit.

Service Women Have Luncheon

Heroines of Last War Regret Being Unable to Serve Again

They'd Be 'Over There' Today Except For the 45-Year Age Limit; Many At Parley Here Were Decorated for Valor

THEY'D BE "OVER THERE" today, helping England and France and Belgium, if they could, and some of their members are now in France, declare delegates to the convention of the Women's Overseas Service League now in session here. But many of them are now past the 45-year-age limit.

One who is there is Florence Sibley, of the Philadelphia unit, decorated during the former war, and twice decorated during her present service. She is the only woman to have been made an officer of the Legion of Honor in this war.

PRESENT at the convention luncheon yesterday was Mrs. Emilie K. Lehman, also of the Philadelphia unit. Born in France, she witnessed the siege of Strasbourg in 1870. She saw the Germans go in and the French evacuate. In the World War she saw the Germans leave and the French come in. Now she is working on this side to help her native land in the third conflict with Germany during her lifetime.

THE PHILADELPHIA UNIT is one of the largest and most active in the league. Mrs. Oswald Chew, founder of the national organization, who is attending the convention is a member.

The president, Miss Claire Macafee, wore a decoration given her by the British government for her work in charge of the war hospital supply depot at Ascot, where a grandstand at the race track served as the depot. In charge with her was Lady Longman, who also received the special decoration. It is a red enamel pin formed of the letters "V. W." (volunteer worker) beneath the British crown, which is silver, studded with diamonds.

The depot, says Mrs. Macafee, was started by Lady Susan Dawney whose husband was lost in the former war at the Battle of Mons. Now her four sons are serving. One a naval officer, whose wife is Lady Angela Scott, sister of the Duchess of Gloucester, was here with his wife in the party of the King and Queen last summer.

MRS. J. HAMILTON LEWIS, wife of the late Senator Lewis, a member of the Chicago unit, served with the Bien Etre du Blesse war organization in France, doing everything from typing to nursing and cooking and carrying food to the wounded French soldiers—and she told fortunes, too, for the amusement of the boys, winning the nickname "Gypsy."

She was decorated three times by the French government with the medal of the Eperdemie, the Raconnaissance Francaise, with star and the medal, and as Chevelier de Legion d'Honeur.

Women's City Club To Skip Dinner

The Women's City Club's membership committee met last night at the clubhouse, but there will be no other meetings there this week. The club night dinner, usually held on Thursdays during the summer season, will not be held tomorrow because of the Fourth.

Next Thursday the get-together dinner will be under direction of Mrs. Julia B. Hopkins and Mrs. Gus Schuldt.

U. S. Thinking in Munich Stage, 'Aid the Allies,' Group Is Told

America Doesn't Realize War Not One Of Imperialism, but a Socialist Revolution Involving World, Says Mrs. Laura Morgan

"The United States is in the Munich stage of its thinking," Mrs. Laura Puffer Morgan, member of the governing board of the Geneva Research Center, declared yesterday at a luncheon sponsored by the Washington office of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies. Mrs. Morgan, who returned to this country aboard the Washington, asserted that America still does not realize that the war is not one of imperialism or world power politic, but a national socialist revolution involving the whole world.

England and France have been pushed past that stage of thinking by the frightful tragedy of the war, she said, but here we almost refuse to believe the menace.

Hitler has no intention of stopping with Europe. His ambition is a world revolution, she said, which if it were successful would destroy civilization as we know it.

"The present conflict as not war as it has been conceived in the past, but something for which man has no word," Mrs. Morgan asserted. "The Germans are as ruthless with their own troops as with the enemy. In the Polish war, they used many Austrian troops, and after it was over the hospitals were filled with men who were not wounded, but had utterly collapsed after going as long as 48 hours or more without food or rest."

The Finnish army was paralyzed with horror, a Swiss army officer who was there as an observer, told her, Mrs. Morgan said. The brutality of the warfare was beyond the comprehension of civilized men.

There is no use to say "It can't happen here," said Mrs. Morgan, when we recognize the fact that the whole thought and economy of Germany has been directed toward its war program for seven years. She believes that England, because of its hundreds of years of democratic government, will present a much stronger front than France was able to do, but urged the need for giving every assistance short of troops.

The luncheon, at Wesley Hall, was the first of a series of weekly luncheons to be given there with speakers who will discuss subjects pertinent to the committee's work. They are open to any persons interested.

Mrs. Charles Lamb Jones, of the education committee of the organization, presided.

A few among the guests were Capt. and Mrs. M. N. Egoroff, Mrs. H. B. Hutchinson, Roger S. Greene, Mrs. Eleanor Lansing Dulles, Mrs. J. Austin Stone, Miss Ruth Rouse, Miss Mary Bourke, Miss Esther Lomb and Mrs. Alexander Hawes.

P.-T. A. Leader Gives Luncheon For Mrs. Frazier

Mrs. Warren Bowles, of the student aid committee of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers, entertained at luncheon yesterday at her home, 6427 Sixteenth street, in honor of Mrs. Louise Frazier, a member of the committee, who was celebrating her seventieth birthday.

Mrs. Frazier has been active in the work for years and every Wednesday during the school term, serves at the student aid rooms, where clothing is sorted, reconditioned and given out to needy pupils of the various schools.

As a birthday gift, the committee members presented her with an overnight bag. She plans to go to California this season, as she did last, when she "went to the New York World's Fair by way of San Francisco."

Among the guests at the luncheon were Mrs. C. D. Lowe, president of the District Congress; Mrs. Lawrence A. Brooks, chairman of the committee; Miss Mary Dilger, principal of Gales School, where the student aid rooms are maintained; Mrs. Edward R. Seal, director of publicity for the organization; Mrs. Riley Elgen, Mrs. Lewis Kirjassof, Mrs. M. T. Firestone, Mrs. Irwin Geiger, Mrs. Ernest Johnson, Mrs. Charles H. McGogney, Mrs. Glenville Brown and Mrs. A. S. Mangene.

Great Glory Won by Army, Says Duce

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, July 2.—Premier Mussolini, in a letter to the Prince of Piedmont today, proclaimed that the Italian army won great glory in the battle fought on the French frontier in the last four days of hostilities against France.

Therefore, the high price which had to be paid in thousands of casualties was worth while, the Duce indicated.

Mussolini declared "the battle of the western Alpine front" was fought on a 120-mile front in mountains 7,000 to 9,000 feet high during heavy snowstorms on June 21, 22, 23 and 24, and that the Italians broke through the French Alpine line to depths of 5 to 20 miles against stubborn resistance.

[Italy declared war on France and Britain effective at 12:01 a. m. June 14, but did not make any offensive move until June 21, four days after French Premier Petain had asked for Germany's armistice terms. The battle Mussolini mentions coincided with the French-German and French-Italian armistice negotiations.]

"Italians and foreigners should know that the Frenchmen truly were astonished at the tenacity, dash and overwhelming contempt for danger shown by Italian infantry of every corps and by the artillery," continues the letter.

"Italians and foreigners should know that the battle was hard-fought and sanguinary. The thousands of men put hors de combat give witness to that."

A communique issued today said enemy air raids between June 11 and 30 caused 91 deaths and 392 wounded among the civilian population.

Another, carrying results of the first three weeks' fighting, claimed that in this time the enemy lost 141 planes, 8 ships, 5 submarines, 2 destroyers, 1 cruiser and 40 tanks.

Italian losses during the same period, it is claimed, were 21 planes, 1 submarine, 1 destroyer and 1 mine-sweeper.

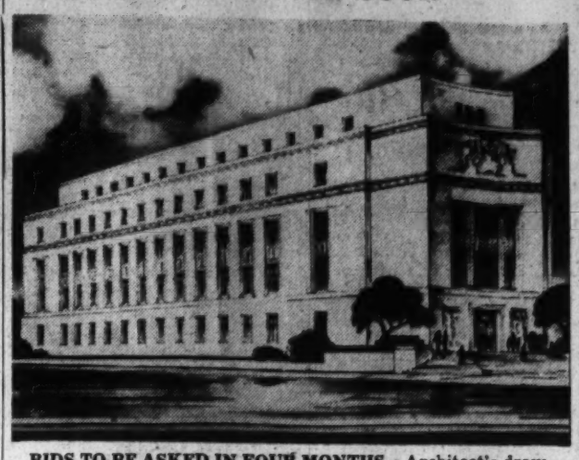
Bids on $3,500,000 Library Will Be Advertised Soon



BIDS TO BE ASKED IN FOUR MONTHS—Architect's drawing of the proposed $3,500,000 public library to be constructed on Pennsylvania avenue, between John Marshall place and Sixth street northwest. Tenants of buildings on the site already have been given notice to vacate within 30 days. Engineer Commissioner McCoach said the District would advertise for bids within four months

First Unit Will Cost About $1,118,000, Of Which D. C. Has $700,000 in Direct Appropriations; Vacate Notices Given

Engineer Commissioner David McCoach, jr., yesterday announced the District would advertise for bids on the first unit of the new $3,500,000 public library within four months.

Tenants of the buildings lining Pennsylvania avenue between John Marshall place and Sixth street, site of the new library, have already received notice to vacate within 30 days, he said. As soon as the buildings are emptied they will be demolished and borings will be made for the foundation.

The first unit will cost about $1,118,000, of which the District now has $700,000 in direct appropriations from Congress. The remaining funds will be included in the 1942 budget. The library will extend from the present Ford Building to the National Hotel, which houses the District National Guard.

Scouts Plan Model Plane Courses

The local headquarters of the Boy Scouts of America yesterday announced plans to establish courses in model airplane construction and other activities to prepare Scouts for later training in flying, aeronautical engineering, and mechanics.

The program will be limited to Boy Scouts 14 to 18 years old. Plans are expected to be completed by September 15, and that the program will begin upon approval by the national headquarters.

Wide Reforms Due in French Government

Blasted Bridges, Lack Of Gas Delaying Return of Refugees

Copyright by New York Times

Clermont-Ferrand, France, July 1 (Delayed).—A sweeping reform in the structure of the French government is imminent.

The whole system will be altered and a more independent executive will be constituted. He will be less dependent on parliamentary action.

There is a possibility that President Lebrun, who has been serving his second seven-year term because of the emergency, may desire to consider his office terminated in order to retire.

This city, in the unoccupied zone of France, third French capital in a month, was once the home of Vercingetorix, the Gaul, who "took up arms to defend all liberties" against the totalitarianism of Caesar.

German troops, in accordance with the armistice terms, evacuated Clermont-Ferrand only a few hours before the French arrived.

This region as well as the whole of the occupied zone are still in great confusion with 12,000,000 refugees crowded into one-third of the French territory. Efforts are being made to return them to their districts of origin as fast as possible, but war-blasted bridges and lack of gasoline for automobiles are delaying repatriation plans.

Owing to the transfer, the French government is now in communication with the outside world only through the American press. It has been completely cut off and may be again subjected to similar interruptions.

Food Problem Acute

Copyright by New York Times

Paris, June 30 (Delayed).—First signs of impatience were noted in the public markets today when women, unable to obtain food, blamed the government for not stopping the millions of refugees from crowding the roads and hindering transportation.

Foodstuffs that have reached the central markets here have been in insufficient quantities. This morning there were 40 tons of cold storage meat instead of the normal 300 tons of fresh meat, 1,300 pounds of chickens instead of 25 tons, 400 tons of vegetables instead of 1,500 tons. Many necessities were completely lacking.

Who's talking through whose hat?

IN THE LAST FEW MONTHS, certain regular-priced gasolines have been implying that they will perform as well as our premium-priced gasoline, Gulf No-Nox.

Actually, that is a long way from being true.

There are three methods most generally used to determine the anti-knock value of a gasoline. These tests are used by us, used by our competitors, and are recognized by everybody in the industry.

On these tests of quality made by an independent laboratory, the regular gasoline, which is making the most to-do about being the equal of Gulf No-Nox, RATED 7 FULL POINTS BELOW GULF NO-NOX!

Even a 3-point difference in anti-knock rating is a noticeable difference. This 7-point difference is a BIG difference—gives Gulf No-Nox a major advantage in the high-compression engines you find in the newer cars.

Therefore, don't swallow it hook, line, and sinker, when someone tells you that his regular gas (however much it's been improved!) is as good as improved Gulf No-Nox. It isn't. In gasolines, as in everything else, you get about what you pay for.

These facts aren't just paper facts. You can confirm them in your own gas tank. Next time—try just one tankful of No-Nox, and make up your own mind whether any regular gas, anywhere, is within shouting distance of it!

President Signs Bill Authorizing Lower Interest Rates For D. C. Projects

Congress made possible yesterday a $500,000 addition to Washington's Municipal Center development as President Roosevelt's signature made law a bill to authorize a reduction in interest rates paid by the city on such projects.

By unanimous consent, the House, at the request of Chairman Randolph, of the District Committee, approved a Senate-accepted bill to permit the District to obtain $500,000 in PWA funds for a building at Sixth and D streets northwest to house the Recorder of Deeds Office.

About an hour earlier President Roosevelt signed a bill which authorizes District officials to negotiate with the Treasury Department to reduce the present PWA interest rate of 4 per cent.

District PWA heads said they expected to obtain a reduction of at least 2 per cent which would save the city $3,000,000.

Preliminary plans for the new building call for a structure of limestone architecturally designed to conform with buildings either built or under construction in the area. The building is the sixth to be projected in the area.

Immigration Service Workers Get Their Pay

Washington employes of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, whose pay checks were held up Monday by a delay in approving bookkeeping warrants at the Treasury, received their checks yesterday, officials said. About 300 employes were disappointed by the delay, which marred their first payday since their agency was transferred from the Labor Department to the Justice Department.

Three Are Injured In Odd Mishaps

It wasn't Friday, nor was it the thirteenth yesterday, but strange mishaps befell three persons.

An elevator operator at the WPA adult education project, Thirteenth and Upshur streets northwest, was bitten on the right hand by a rat as he moved some boxes in the cellar. The operator, Joseph Clifford, 34, of 1014 Eleventh street northwest, was treated at Garfield Hospital.

Gordon Willis, 20, of 6228 North Dakota avenue northwest, stepped high as he walked in the 700 block of C street southeast, for he was wearing new shoes. The shoes squeaked, Willis fell, and he was taken to Providence Hospital with a fractured left arm.

Gas Light Band, Gypsy Chorus Entertain at Sylvan Theater

SUMMER FESTIVAL TIME—Second performance in a series of Summer Festivals was staged last night at the Sylvan Theater. Top—Fred A. Fetter, jr., Anne Schuster and L. M. Tigner in "A Covered Wagon." Lower—Susan Barbee makes her violin play and is accompanied by Irene Nimetz on the accordion. All are members of the Gypsy Chorus

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Community Center and Playgrounds Department and the Office of National Capital Parks presented the Washington Gas Light Co. Employes' Band (Otto Siebeneichen, director) and the Washington Gypsy Chorus (Robert Frederick Freund, director) at the Sylvan Theater Tuesday night.

Early arrivals at the Sylvan Theater last evening listened in the gloaming to an hour's concert by the Washington Gas Light Co. Employes' Band under the direction of Otto Siebeneichen. While fireflies flashed their minuscule lanterns through the foliage of the stage background and occasional airplanes droned their way overhead to the landing field, the gathering crowd heard the strains of such stirring marches as Fillmore's "Americans We" and Sousa's "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

BROWN

The band discoursed as well the popular overture to Flotow's "Martha," selections from Friml's "High Jinks," Lake's arrangement of familiar melodies under the title of "Old Timers' Waltz," and Weldon's "Gate City March" with its contrapuntal combination of "Dixie" and "My Maryland." In the last number, Irving Berlin's "God Bless America," many of the auditors sang.

After the dusk had given way to darkness, the Washington Gypsy Chorus came wending around the slope of the hill to the stage, singing Herman Frederic Loehr's "Where My Caravan Has Rested," and the principal part of the evening's entertainment began. It was lively imitation of a nomad gathering around the campfire in a carefree and songful mood. Colorful costumes and kerchiefs gave picturesque versimilitude to the impersonation of Romany chals and chais by the singers composing the group.

Music was one of the endowments of the strange people we call gypsies because of their supposed origin in Egypt. Appearing in eastern Europe at the beginning of the fourteenth century, they were first known as Atzigan, a name which still survives in the French "tzigane," the German "zigeuner" and the English "tinker." Ethnologists now tell us that they probably came from India, for their language has affiliations with certain Hindu idioms.

Authentic gypsy tunes and rhythms had their place in the program selected by Robert Frederick Freund, but many of the songs were merely associated with places that gypsies have visited in their wanderings—the Naples of "Funiculi, Funicula," the Vienna of Johann Strauss, the Cuba of Vidol's "Habanera" and the Venice of Benedict's "Carnival."

Among the numbers received with marked approbation by the audience were Borganov's "Gypsy Mood," Coward's "Zigeuner," Brahms' "Mount Your Horses," Friml's "Gianina Mia," Nevin's "Dawn" and "Venetian Love Song," and the Russian folk song, "Dark Eyes." At the conclusion of the program the chorus departed to the appropriate measures of Schumann's "Gypsy Life."

Members of the chorus who had solo appearances were Mr. Freund, Erma Calvert, Beatrice Holland, Anne Evans, Prudence Jackson, Everett Palmer and John Wilson. Assisting instrumentalists who contributed to the gay scene were Susan Barbee, violinist, and Irene Nimetz, accordionist.

9 D. C. Men to Pay U. S. $43.50 For Ft. Meade Army Course

Nine Washingtonians and scores from Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvaina, will pay the Government $43.50 each this summer to spend their vacations with a gun in hand, doing "squads right" on a sunbeaten drill ground at Fort Meade, Md.

Business and professional men, students and Government employes—they will be among 235 enrollees who arrive at the Army quarters Friday for a 30-day, super-special, pay-your-own-way training course.

The camp, operated by Third Corps Area officers, is one of nine in the United States.

The $43.50 will just cover costs of food and camp maintenance—the men will have to pay their own transportation to spend the month in uniform, learning basic military drill. They will be quartered in a cantonment built during the World War.

The Washington men are William R. Easton, Robert K. Stone, James M. Barry, Joseph A. Madey, Edgar L. Myers, John Enrietto, Cortlandt Walton, Huntington Thom and Stafford E. Abel.

Men from nearby areas include Paul H. Elliott, of Arlington, Va.; Calvin Dold, of Alexandria, Va.; Charles A. Suppler, of Silver Spring, Md.; Francis R. Kenney, of Chevy Chase, Md., and Henry D. Brite, of Silver Spring, Md.

Other Marylanders include Stuart R. Davidson, of Glencoe; William R. Carscaden, of Cumberland; Maassas J. Grove, of Frederick; Walter C. B. Moorse, of Glenwood; Wilmer B. Bowen, of Salisbury, and Stafford W. Keegin, of Highland.

Canadian Legation Clerk Robbed of Purse

Miss Ragnhild Tait, clerk at the Canadian Legation, was robbed by a purse snatcher in the 2500 block of Q street northwest last night.

"It happened so suddenly," she told police, "if I had had time to think, I would have given him an awful sock."

McCarran Blocks Elgen Confirmation

Asks Open Meeting To Give Objectors To Utilities Chief Chance to Speak

For the first time in the history of the body, the District Public Utilities Commission was without a chairman last night.

In a surprise move yesterday, Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, blocked immediate confirmation of President Roosevelt's appointment of Riley E. Elgen to succeed himself.

McCarran insisted that action on the confirmation be taken in "the regular way" in an open meeting of the Senate District Committee rather than by a quick poll of the committee by its chairman, Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah.

This meant a delay of several more days, at least, in confirmation of Elgen whose three-year term in a $7,500-a year post expired with the close of the 1940 fiscal year June 30.

Elgen told The Post last night that he had not been to his office this week and that he would be unable to function as commission chairman until the Senate confirms him.

Several "individuals" called his office to protest against Elgen's confirmation, McCarran said. The Senator declined to reveal their names and said he refused to let them tell the basis of their objection.

It was learned, however, that one of the callers was William A. Savage, 1346 Fairmont street northwest, retired electrical equipment salesman, who said he had been fighting for years in court and before the Public Utilities Commission, the Potomac Electric Power Co.'s policy of requiring cash deposits from power users.

Senator King said a date for a hearing would be set today.

McCarran took the position that as long as some residents of Washington opposed another term for Elgen, they should be given an opportunity to state their objections. If these should prove sufficient, he said, a formal hearing should be ordered.

Tuberculosis Unit To Pay 2 Clerks At Chest Clinic

The District Tuberculosis Association yesterday voted to provide two clerks for the District's chest clinic, which is now operating with a reduced staff after budget cuts by Congress.

Dr. J. Winthrop Peabody, president of the association, said the group would provide $2,520 to employ the clerks until January 1, when it is expected the District will seek a deficiency appropriation to carry on the work until the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1941.

Although Health Officer George C. Ruhland had requested funds to employ five clerks and a physician, Congress voted him funds for only two clerks and the physician. Last year, the clerks and physician were paid by the T. B. Association, which, because of its curtailed budget this year, had to eliminate this feature from its program.

P.U.C. Orders Bus Terminal Shifted

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday approved changing the local terminal of the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington buses from 1033 D street northwest to the west curb of Tenth street north of D street.

The new order, which will take effect August 15, also establishes an auxiliary terminal on Tenth street, 112 feet south of Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

At the same time the commission authorized the Arlington & Fairfax buses, which use space now assigned to the other bus line, to move its terminal farther north in the same block.

Score of Evangelists Hold 2 Rites Marking Founding of Salvation Army 75 Years Ago

"ROCK OF AGES"—Marking the founding 75 years ago of the Salvation Army, members last night gathered in Judiciary Square and participated in brief, simple ceremonies. As these girls sang, the band played "Rock of Ages" and a crowd of spectators joined in. Left to right—Audrey Sitler, Frances Fox, Grace Fox and Astrid Olsen

Against a background of sounding brass and rumbling traffic, a score of men and women evangelists last night marked the founding of the Salvation Army 75 years ago in simple ceremonies at two outdoor gatherings.

Encircled by the blue-clad men and women in Lincoln Park, the Rev. George E. Bennett, pastor of the Wilson Memorial Methodist Church, praised the organization's "good, old-fashioned ideas" of regeneration.

Then he asked: "If Hitler conquers all of Europe, what will he have . . . what will endure?"

At Judiciary Square about 75 persons gathered as Maj. Charles Walker, head of the Army's Evangeline residence for women, 1330 L street northwest, told how he was converted to the organization's creed "32 years ago at a street-corner meeting such as this."

Four girl workers sang a hymn after remarks by several other Army officials. Then the crowd joined in as the band played "Rock of Ages."

SEC Approves W.R. & E. Bond Compromise

Capital Transit Would Take Up $3,439,000 Issues Under Plan

Final settlement of a time-worn bondholders' dispute appeared when the Securities Commission approved a plan whereby Washington Railway and Electric Co., through its subsidiary, Capital Transit Co., would assume certain bonds totaling a maximum of $3,439,000.

Under the compromise plan, approved by the Public Service Commission and now by the SEC, bondholders of the old Anacostia and Potomac River Railroad Co., and the City and Suburban Railway Co., are offered certificates extending the maturity of their present first mortgage bonds to December 1, 1951, reducing interest rates, providing a new sinking fund and stipulating new call prices for bond redemption.

In granting its approval, the SEC said the plan could become effective subject to the following conditions:

That ten days after consummation of the transaction Washington Railway & Electric shall file with the SEC a declaration that the transaction conformed to the original declaration.

That when the last dollar is paid out in putting the plan into effect, W. R. & E. shall file a detailed statement of the expenses incurred.

Prison Goods Ban Opposed By D.C. Chiefs

Commissioners Say Bill Would Stop Work of Occoquan, Lorton Inmates

A partial breakdown of the District's penal system would result from final enactment of a House-adopted bill to prohibit interstate shipment of prison-made commodities, the District Commissioners contended yesterday in a letter to Speaker William B. Bankhead.

The bill, sponsored by Representative Hobbs (Democrat), of Alabama, exempted from the ban commodities made in prisons but consumed by any of the States or the Federal Government. No mention was made of the District, whose reformatory at Lorton, Va., and workhouse at Occoquan, Va., make brooms, license plates, bricks and other articles for Government use in Washington.

Based on an opinion from the corporation counsel's office that failure to include the District in the exemptions would force closing of its prison industries, the letter to Bankhead declared:

"The passage of the bill would bring about a condition which would be inimical to safe custody and would leave the workhouse and reformatory in a very serious situation.

"Changes would have to be made in present building structures in order to provide safe custody for prisoners and to provide more cells instead of dormitories. The immediate cost to the District in this respect would be about $250,000. Increases would have to be made in the guard force and fences built around the entire institutions because of lack of work to keep inmates busy."

The letter stated that 1,500 inmates of both institutions were engaged in the industries.

A bill similar to the Hobbs measure has been passed by the Senate, but Chairman William H. King, of the Senate District Committee, has promised to seek an amendment before enactment.

Work Starts This Week On Settling Basin

Construction of a 1,000,000-gallon settling basin will be started by the Alexandria Water Co. this week at an estimated cost of $45,000, H. C. Richards, manager, announced yesterday. The project probably will be completed the latter part of the summer.

The Northern Virginia Construction Co. has been awarded the contract.

New Hardy Film Packs Some Lusty New Punches

'Andy Meets Debutante' Marks a Birthday; RKO-Keith's Does a Little Juggling of Dates; This, That and the Other About the Theater

BELL

It would be a bit on the fulsome side to pretend that "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante," previewed yesterday afternoon, is marked by all the variety that attended "Babes in Arms," but it does utilize elements of hilarious comedy and substantial drama that earlier releases in the "Hardy family" series have not possessed. These are not the dominant factors in the play, but they have been shrewdly interlarded with the familiar incidents of Judge Hardy winning his case for the orphanage, shrinking an overinflated Andy back to a size where he no longer is "too big for his britches" and teaching Ann Rutherford a needed lesson in humility.

All that is more or less the trademark of the Hardy pictures. This "Debutante" number, however, manages to slip in a powerful and timely exaltation of the spirit of Americanism—as part of Andy's chastening—the debunking and humanizing of New York's foremost debutante and Andy's induction into what might turn out to be his "first true love." That would be the vocal Miss Garland, who sings two songs, by the way, to lend the frolic an added fillip.

"Andy Hardy Meets Debutante" may begin a little laboriously, but it gathers such momentum as it goes along that it seems safe to predict that one week will not be enough for it, when it opens on the Palace screen, following the current "New Moon."

Incidentally, those who view this latest of the Hardy films will be doing more than merely seeing another picture. They will be helping to celebrate an anniversary that must have no small bearing upon any estimate of public discrimination. With the release of "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante," the series—deliberately begun as part of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "B" output, but which soon leaped into the "A" classification on its own power—will mark its third birthday. The Hardy subjects have taken top ranking because more than any others of their type they have reflected solid, small-town American life. There has never been an off-color line or situation in any of them. There has been a wealth of homely, human entertainment in them all. They ought to go on forever for the wholesome benefit of all concerned.

So there is a little juggling of bookings going on at RKO-Keith's. "My Favorite Wife" is holding up so beautifully that it will be continued through next Tuesday. On Wednesday, July 10—according to present plans—"Tom Brown's Schooldays" will be broken out, with Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Freddie Bartholomew, Jimmy Lydon and Josephine Hutchinson in the principal roles. After that, probably, will come "The Ramparts We Watch," celebrated in this space yesterday. The producers of "Ramparts," it seems, have petitioned for a week's postponement of its world premiere on Fifteenth street. That would unfurl a picture of utmost timeliness and importance while a great many who ought to see it are at the Democratic National Convention, in Chicago. So what? So I don't know—I'm asking you and Manager Hardie Meakin.

It would be interesting to know precisely how much box-office confusion was occasioned by the imposition of the new amusement taxes for national defense that took effect on Monday. I imagine a good many youngsters, who pay little attention to such things, presented themselves at their favorite picture houses with the usual admission in exact change, only to find themselves a few pennies shy. At any rate, the new odd-penny charges—22 cents, instead of 20; 28 cents, instead of 25, and so on—certainly must have put the theater cashiers back about where they were when the amusement tax first went into operation 20-odd years ago. That is, keeping enough small change on hand becomes an aggravated problem, and making it in a hurry another one.

If it is an advance Fourth of July celebration you are looking for, the Mount Vernon drive-in theater, down there below Alexandria on the Richmond highway, will fill your order tonight, beginning at 8. The American Legion Drum Corps, Post 24, Alexandria, Va., will be on hand to do the banging and bugling, with a snappy Drum Majorette waving the baton, and at midnight there will be a sky-shattering fireworks display. The screen features, if you care, are "Wuthering Heights" and "Oh, Johnny, How You Can Love."

Light-That-Failed Note

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, July 2.

COL. HENRY L. STIMSON: Gen. Pershing will make a speech advocating support of the proposed bill for universal training. Grenville Clark, who is helping draft this training legislation, expects it to be passed in Congress within two weeks.

NOEL COWARD: Here's how Quentin Reynolds got through the censorship from Paris, in cabling the news of France's imminent surrender. Quentin cabled: "The censors here are very nice. This country still has a great chance—as much as the St. Louis Browns had last season" . . . Senator McNary: "Your nomination has revived the possibility of Bill Douglas' becoming the Democratic nominee for Vice President. The drums will start beating for him afresh, next week.

J. EDGAR HOOVER: Killian and Vopel, the German six-day bike-race champions, who received so much publicity here last week when they denied that you were investigating them, and who protested that they were not even members of the Nazi party, have been ordered back to Germany. They've been directed to leave in three weeks—from the point of arrival, San Francisco.

WENDELL WILLKIE: The Administration will start firing at you immediately. Some of them thought it might be best to wait until after the Democratic convention, but they were overruled. Watch the speeches this week . . . Charles Luciano: Is it true that a prominent jurist has been up to Dannemora prison to see you? . . . Patty Berg: Vincent Sheean, who is in London now, is helping evacuate many children whose parents will remain there. Sheean is finding homes for them among friends in New York. One of those he is sending over is a child of Diana Fishwick, the British women's golf champion . . . Jackie Coogan: Freddie Batholomew also has grown up. He'll arrive in Manhattan soon, to do "Bachelor Born" in summer stock.

BOB SHERWOOD: After Charles Laughton appeared on the Red Cross from Hollywood—in which every star participated, and Laughton recited Lincoln's "Gettysburg Address," Garson Kanin assured him: "Yours was best." . . . "Naturally," Laughton acknowledged, "I had the best script-writer."

JOHN L. LEWIS: Only certain phases of the youth training program will be compulsory. As it is being whipped into final shape now, many of its branches will be entirely voluntary . . . Darryl Zanuck: Shirley Temple's mother has told Nat Karson to come to Hollywood, and discuss Shirley's appearance in Karson's stage production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," with Bill Robinson playing "Tom." Karson now is plotting a tour, avoiding those States which have laws forbidding children from performing at night.

HARRY RUBY: Bert Kalmar, your partner, who has been best-man at all three of your weddings, says he'll never do it again. "I've placed Harry at the post three times, and that's enough," said Bert last night. "Anything from now on is a claiming race."

GEORGE M. COHAN: Your friend, Fred Stone, is making the first night-club appearance of his career, when he'll work at the Biltmore, in Providence. The orchestra of his son-in-law, Duke Daly, is playing there—and so Stone is contributing his services. He'll work all week, without pay . . . Ed Wynn: Tony deMarco flew back to town Sunday night to sign the contract for the deMarcos to appear in your new musical . . . Raymond Gram Swing: John Gunther, who had been broadcasting opposite you, will go to the hospital within a few days, for a throat operation.

DAVE SELZNICK: Alfred Hitchock, your prize director, has started reducing and dropped 30 pounds to date, by eliminating lunches. "It's a sad thing," he sighed. "to lose from one's life the ceremony of a meal."

TAYLOR HOLMES: Your son, Ralph, and his bride, Libby Holman, are planning to work as a team, in summer stock . . . Henry Morgenthau: Clifford Odets went to the postoffice, after the closing of his "Night Music" to redeem some of his U. S. Savings bonds. "I wouldn't cash these now if I were you, Mr. Odets," the teller warned . . . The playwright, bursting with social significance coupled with disappointment at the reviews accorded his play, demanded: "And why not? Why shouldn't I get good American cash now for these good American bonds?" . . . "Because if you wait three days," was the simple explanation, "the interest instalment will be due—and you'll get $100 extra"

Sara Allgood's 'Susie' Is the Summer's Tops

Abbey Theater Star Plays 'Far-Off Hills' At Catholic University

By Richard L. Coe

The finest playacting our summer is likely to bring is offered by Sara Allgood in "The Far-Off Hills," supported by a top-notch company at the Catholic University Theater. The only flaw in an otherwise perfect production is that tonight is the last night, so if you yearn for some honest to blarney acting, don't spare the horses.

This joyous comedy, by Lennox Robinson not only will make you happy, it will make you admire the remarkable gift of this early member of the Abbey Theater of infusing her fellow players with abilities they never before possessed. It is a great privilege for young students to work with a player of Miss Allgood's repute and they show their worth by making "The Far-Off Hills" a dramatic treat. All Father Gilbert V. Hartke has to do now is to mesmerize Miss Allgood into a Washington summer.

They have grand material to work with, to be sure. These Irish figures are all upset because the elder sister of the family wants to be a nun. She's a great stickler for getting things done, she is, and she won't go off to her convent until she's brought up her younger sisters and seen her father safely through an operation. Which is just what her family abhor about the gurrl. They wish to be rid of her, to lead their own merry, Irish lives.

Star's Enthusiasm Contagious

If anyone can fix this mess, it's Aunt Susie, and sure enough Aunt Susie does. She marries the father and very nearly has things fixed when Marian decides the convent isn't the place for her after all. Aunt Susie see to that, too, and not in the way you might think.

The reason you get so vitally interested in what happens is because the characters are all so lovable. Aunt Susie is the breath of Erin. Father Pat is all good Irishmen rolled into one. His pals are exactly what Marian thinks they shouldn't be and one mournful Harold Mahony is the epitome of Celtic sorrows.

With her unerring gift for detail and timing, Miss Allgood lifts this graduate school group to enthusiastic pitch. They play to each other, as well as to her, with an understanding many professionals lack. The way the guest star uses her hands, the wholeheartedness of her stage chuckle, the always perfect attention while her fellows have the spotlight make Miss Allgood's Aunt Susie a performance you shouldn't miss.

Father Hartke's direction must have prepared the rest of the company soundly, for the pace and spirit of the company were excellent. William Coleman's Pat Clancy was a genuine piece of make-believe; he was Pat to the teeth. Fred Horton's rich role of the mournful widower, Harold, might have suffered in less determined hands, but it was evident from the start that Mr. Horton knew just what he wanted to make of his character and he went right ahead to create a startling but credible figure.

Her Support Excellent

Mary Finnerty's Anna seemed to this observer to hit exactly the right pitch, exuberant but not overdone. Catherine Knockey played the ambitious Marian, the role done originally, by the way, by Miss Allgood in 1929. Miss Knockey's Marian truly comes into her own in the last act. Louise Fox is the third sister, a creation successfully differentiated from the others. Helen Hickey was similarly effective as the maid for whom an aching tooth is the sign of an aching heart.

Charles Grunwell's young Pierce was a natural, unaffected portrayal, the best this reviewer has seen him give. Alfred Loritsch and E. Parker Dupler, as two imbibing cronies of the puzzled father, also made much of their roles, rounding out an amateur cast of exceptional merit.

But through the entire play glides the spirit of an understanding star whose appearance with these enterprising players means so much.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, July 2 (INS).—I couldn't be more surprised, to hear that Peggy Diggins, New York's prettiest Irish girl, has signed a contract with Warner Brothers. Let me tell you about Peggy. I was in the New York Stork Club in April and my attention was attracted toward a breath-takingly beautiful dark-haired girl. I talked with her and Joseph Connolly, head of King Features, at my request photographed her for the Hearst newspapers.

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

In the Stork Club the same evening, having supper together, were Walter Winchell, John Gunther, Dick Watts and George Jean Nathan, and they all agreed that Peggy really was an eyeful. You'll see her in "Honeymoon for Three," and let me know if you don't think she is lovely. She was also selected by James Montgomery Flagg as the most beautiful Irish girl in the world. She is the "spittin'" image of Vivien Leigh.

Stopped in to see Louis B. Mayer one day last week. Hope Parsons, jr., won't be cross since she gave me to understand that I wasn't to do anything about movies until I came back on the job. L. B. tells me M.-G.-M. has bought "Balloon Busters," by Normal Hall, from RKO, for Robert Taylor. Remember RKO made a great fuss over its purchase and as soon as Pan Berman joined M.-G.-M. he suggested the story for Bob Taylor. It's about Frank Luke, who won the Congressional medal in the last war by bringing down German balloons. A great story about a 100 per cent American hero which should be swell for Bob.

Susan Glaspell's novel, "The Morning is Near Us," which has already sold 100,000 copies, has been bought by Columbia at a record-breaking price. Susan, who comes from Davenport, Iowa, and who has written many best sellers, won the Literary Guild selection for April for her novel. Ben Schulberg will produce the story, which has a small-town, American locale and is about a young lady who stays away from her home community for 15 years. Columbia thinks it would be ideal for Irene Dunne. So far, Irene hasn't said yes and she hasn't said no.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Mary Healy is wearing a bracelet put on her arm by Peter Lind Hayes. It is inscribed "Darling, I love you." They will wed soon: an every-night date is Jeffrey Lynn and pretty Dana Dale, Warner starlet; Nancy Kelly and Edmund O'Brien taking up where they left off. They were dining at the Brown Derby; Betty Grable, stepping out on more than one occasion with Ken Murray, was at the Sphinx Club Saturday with him; Lady Mendl reaches America July 3, on the clipper, and comes directly to Hollywood to visit Mary Pickford.

Mrs. Frank Borzage says it was Sybil Bowan dining with Jeffrey Gill. Funny so many people were mistaken in Rene's identity; Alice Faye, out for the first time, at the Tropics with Harry Sugarman; an interesting foursome at the Hollywood Park Saturday was Lupe Velez and "Big Boy" Williams with Liz Whitney and Bruce Cabot; Bob Burns and the missus will make all Honolulu very happy when they sail July 12 for the tropical isle. It was reported they had cancelled their reservations; saw Ann Sheridan and George Brent at Ching Howe's the other eve. It's the restaurant in San Fernando Valley owned by James Wong Howe, cameraman, and what an assortment of Chinese specialities he offers.

Carl Brisson and his wife are aboard a liner enroute to U. S. A.; Noel Coward is paging British actors in Hollywood to help take care of 60 little refugees—orphans of British actors; Mary Eastman, known as best dressed gal in radio, is here to crash the movies; Joy Hodges returns Wednesday to Omaha to her publisher-bridegroom, Gilbert Doorly; Robert Paige and Betty Peacock, secretary at Paramount, have set the day; Edgar Bergen has gone to Nashville to pick up a new airplane.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

In Hollywood

Hollywood, July 2.

I've known Norma Shearer lo these years, but can't remember her looking prettier than she did on the set of "Escape," in an earth-colored hostess gown without a smidge of trimming, but beautiful lines—no jewelry. Her hair was parted in the center, and a coronet braid around her head. She was doing a scene with Conrad Veidt, who plays a German general. And there is walking menace, sex appeal, subtlety, and manhood wrapped up in one package if I ever saw it—and by the gleam in Mrs. Howard Dietz' eye, who watched them, she thought so, too.

HOPPER

But little Bonita Granville was more than holding her own. That girl's going to surprise Metro one of these days by blossoming out as a star. Remember her as the brat in "These Three?" When they were fishing for a finish in that picture, she piped up and said, "Give me a good slap—the audience will love it." And we did!

I always get such a kick when pals like Walter Pidgeon and George Murphy come into their own. George has been pushed around for years, always giving fine performances. He can sing, dance, and act. But they had to team him with Fred Astaire before they realized his worth. Now every studio in town is paging him—two want to buy off Metro's contract. He was just as good a couple of years ago. Then they were shooting the back of his neck in a Shirley Temple picture.

Phyllis Loughton, who coached Frances Farmer, Randy Scott, and a dozen others into stellar roles, has now been brought back to Paramount to coach Dottie Lamour in "Moon Over Burma." Dottie did the best work of her career in "Johnny Apollo," took a reef in her sarong, demanded and got Loughton.

And one of the funniest sights of the week is watching Bob Preston and Lamour doing sizzling love scenes—then turning their backs on each other as they walk off the set. Believe me, that's acting!

Ona Munson, who bustled her way through the deep South as Belle Watling, hoped to discard that cumbersome derriere. Now she's signed up for "The Lady from New Orleans," and "Belle of Atlanta," and again will be bustled to the sacroiliac.

ZaSu Pitts is back in town and goes into "No, No, Nanette" with Anna Neagle. We see her much too seldom on the screen these days . . . When Bill Seiter directed a cooking class sequence in "Hired Wife," he demonstrated his dexterity peeling spuds. Roz Russell said, "My cook can't do it as well as that." Bill replied, "I practiced up during the last war. Most of my duty was in the kitchen."

Defense Endangered by Drop In Real Wages, Arnold Warns

MARK ANNIVERSARY OF ANTITRUST LAW—Members of the Justice Department's antitrust law division last night observed the fiftieth anniversary of the Sherman Antitrust Law with a banquet at the Carlton Hotel. Principal speaker was the department's trust buster, Thurman Arnold, Assistant Attorney General, shown at top, with Mrs. Wendell Berge (left), wife of a Justice Department special assistant, and Marianne Bell (right), special attorney. Lower—Wendell Berge (left) with Mrs. Thurman Arnold and Edward Dumbauld, special attorney

If Prices of Necessities Go Up for Lack Of Competitive Force, 'Preparation for War Will Be Too Expensive to Bear,' He Says

Preparation for war "cannot be accomplished in an internal economy in which the spending of billions of dollars causes dollar wages to go up and real wages to go down," Thurman W. Arnold, the Justice Department's chief trust buster, declared last night.

"If the expenditure of billions for national defense is going to mean that the prices of necessities of life, of which we still have an abundance, are to rise because of the elimination of competitive forces, preparation for war will be too expensive for us to bear," he said.

Arnold's statement was given out in connection with yesterday's fiftieth anniversary of Sherman antitrust law, a date which employes of the Justice Department's antitrust division marked last night with a banquet at the Carlton Hotel.

Looking at the possibility of Britain's defeat, Arnold said:

"We cannot meet the competition of totalitarian states if we maintain an artificial price level. We must drop down to solid earth from the clouds of artificially maintained price levels."

The antitrust division head's observations on national defense and post-war economy led from opening remarks in which he condemned "our rigged national market."

"Today," he said, "the distribution of necessities such as food and fuel in houses is shot through with thousands of impositions on low income groups . . . Low income groups are being compelled to pay rigged prices for their gasoline, rigged prices for their houses and for the improvements on those houses.

"Government is being forced to pour huge subsidies in order to distribute goods in our rigged national markets.

"In that situation a question which we are called on to answer today is whether a democracy can prepare for war."

He concluded: "The only general cause which I see working against the vigorous life of our great democracy is the seizure of ower on the markets by private hands. The Sherman Act is the only instrument we now have to prevent that.

"Lip service today is not enough. We must meet the problem of the rigged market which confronts us in the distribution of every product by vigorous action.

"If we cannot do so, political democracy will go down, because political democracy cannot survive unless it is founded upon the free markets of industrial democracy."

Britain Clears Coastal Towns For Action

Vacationers Leave Seaside Resorts as Army Takes Over

By the Associated Press

Somewhere on the English Coast, July 2.—Fixed bayonets of Britain's finest fighting men glisten in defiant watch tonight along England's new front line—beaches cleared of holiday crowds and studded with gun emplacements and pillboxes.

Guns are in place, pointing out to sea. Sentries stand ready to cry the warning and fire the first shots against expected blitzkrieg troops.

Guides pointed out machine gun nests in the sand and heavier guns hidden in the hills behind.

Men of Dunkerque Ready

Troops we saw along the sandy front were the men of Dunkerque, bitterly experienced in the Nazi war technique, but ready for another crack at "Jerry."

The Germans chased them out of Flanders, but it's different now, as one veteran put it:

"Because we're fighting for our homes."

The troopers hustle Bren gun carriers resembling light tanks over hills heavy with history and spread smoke screens in rehearsal for attack.

Only a few civilians turned out for their last day on the beach.

They strolled in the sand beside concrete pillboxes which the British officers say are as strong as those of the Maginot Line, and not so easily attacked.

On this resort beach scenes of war and peace clashed in a blaze of sunshine and color.

A troop of uniformed schoolgirls, carrying gas masks, marched into the sand in a column like soldiers—escorted by nuns.

Warm Night Ahead

One officer observed that the sound of the firing is "good for the people" as well as good practice.

The beach defenses were built with a foreknowledge that they must withstand attacks from dive bombers.

Along with the defense works antiaircraft batteries are placed to command the sky over the coastline.

The gunner glanced suggestively at the sky, grinned, and replied:

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

COLUMNING BY REMOTE CONTROL. Sunning on a Long Island beach, disbelieve it as you please, brings a lot of thoughts of Washington night spots . . . There's the gray-blue water of the sound. It looks wishy-washy compared to the rich blue of the Mediterranean in the Lounge Riviera murals . . . And those gals in bathing suits, pretty as they are, could get some pointers on grace from the little Manhattanettes, probably now careering around in the luncheon show at the Lotus . . . And this fine, fresh sunburn is even hotter'n Paul Kain's Glen Echo rhythms.

MOST STARTLING PERSON to enter a night spot this year was that giant who appeared at the Capitol Theater. Mr. Giant liked the Rainbow Room, but they had to get him a divan to sit on. (It was all busted down by the time he left.) A bowl of popcorn was a measly mouthful for him.

HOTTEST (UNINTENTIONAL) ACT was that of a Cuban entertainer at the Madrillon. Hugh Barteman crawled under the piano and gave our Cuban friend a "hot foot" while he was in the middle of his act. Talk about your Latin fire!

DARDANELLE, star singer-pianist at Del Rio

MOST ASTOUNDING PRESS RELEASE. The final sentence read, "Variety, intimate surroundings, a soft couch—what a place to relax!" No, we won't tell you the name of the place.

MOST PROLIFIC SONG WRITER is Matt Windsor of the Anchor Room. He's promised to give up composing for the summer, but we wouldn't trust him. We suggested to Matt that he write a song for the President's birthday. By the following afternoon he'd completed "Happy Birthday, Mr. President," which was played all over the country.

BEST SUCCESS STORY is that of Herbie Sachs who in four years has built Del Rio up from a sandwich stand to the biggest dance and dinery in the countryside, and of an elegance to compare to the smarter spots in town.

PRIVATE LIVES OF MUSIC MAKERS. Little Jack Little, current big-game maestro of the Metronome Room, likes little highballs. He orders Scotch and water and mixes it in small installments in a pony glass . . . Jack leaves Metronome tonight to start on a theater tour . . . Mayfair's Lyle Smith and Helen Reilly (she's really Mrs. Smith) are a pair of insomniacs. They just can't sleep until broad daylight . . . Bert Stevens, who pianos with such smooth trickery with Arthur Herbert's band on the Starlight Roof, has set a record by doing absolutely no sightseeing on his first visit to Washington. What's more, he doesn't seem to give a whoop if he never gets into the White House or Capitol . . . When we want to know what Maestro Rod Raffell, of the Nightingale, is doing, we step upstairs and ask his brother, Leonard Raffell, of The Post promotion department.

K-9 KUTIES are the pets of Max Lowe, Shoreham's amusement manager. They're Puppchen and Waldie, a pair of the jolliest little dachshunds you've ever seen. They're scions of the Woolford Dachshunds and Puppchen was born in the Capital. Both are smart as paint and already know a bunch of tricks.

IF WE WERE IN WASHINGTON we'd go around and listen to Milt Herth's Trio at the Neptune Room. And ask Evelyn Tyner to play "Begin the Beguine" and swap gossip with Bill Levy . . . Then we'd wander into the Harrington Tavern and listen to the baseball results . . . Later we'd drive up to the Lee Stables and have a frosted lemonade in their parking space and take a look at Ol' Man Potomac River . . . About sundown we'd set sail for O'Donnell's Farms and have one of their plantation chicken dinners with fixin's. There's nothing like that up this-a-way . . . Then we'd come back to town just about the time the fun begins to boil in the air-cooled New Bavarian, when Tommy Suter and Fritz Miller (only singing night spot owner in town) start to swing the mike high, wide and pretty . . . And, a'help us, if we wouldn't go down to Dick's Grill and get a couple of hard crabs before calling it an evening.

OSCAR OF THE HI HAT has been in the hotel and restaurant business ever since he was knee-high to a grasshopper. Most of his experience was in that land of the resort hotel, Switzerland, where he met so many happy and prosperous Americans that he determined to wind up as a citizen of the U. S.

FLASH! IMPORTANT. Linda Carroll, the beautiful lass you've heard regularly on the air waves, who sang for months in the Mayflower Lounge last winter, will open in the King Cole Room next Monday. Linda has everything—looks, a zestful individuality and a voice of light operatic caliber. She's a little actress also, gives a dramatic touch to every number.

Rebuilding St. Peter's

Restoring Landmark— At a cost of approximately $100,000, historic St. Peter's Catholic Church, swept by fire March 27, is being rebuilt. Renovation of the church at Third and C streets southeast had to start from the basement. Foundations of the exterior wall, all the original building that is being saved, are intact, but new foundations will be constructed for the interior columns. Workmen hope to have the church ready for parishioners by Christmas. Meanwhile, masses are being said in the hall of the school, Third and E streets southeast

Antiaircraft Guns on 14th Street

Shades of 1916— An antiaircraft gun pointed its nose skyward and from upper Fourteenth street, but no sirens screamed and the only "blackout" was caused by the setting sun. The District National Guard had inaugurated its drive for recruits. Battery C, 260th Coast Artillery, staged an antiaircraft demonstration from the parking lot at Fourteenth street and Park road northwest to stimulate interest in the drive. Odd Jobs:

'Little Eva' Is Dean of City's Women Cabbies

By George Thorpe

A graduate nurse who took a dare nine years ago is the dean of Washington's half dozen women cabbies.

She is brunette, thirtyish Mrs. Eva Newman, of 1 Franklin street, East Hyattsville, Md., but around the hotel hack stands she's known less formally as "Little Eva."

It's getting now so people don't stop open-mouthed in the middle of intersections when Eva Newman swings by at the wheel of a taxicab. In her nine years in the business she's picked up jobs from the White House to most distant Anacostia and back again and the speedometers of her succession of cabs have clicked off not less than 500,000 miles.

But that's ahead of the story. In 1931, fresh out of a New York nursing school, and only recently married to Treat Newman, 50, also a veteran cabbie, she was faced with a serious situation.

Newman became seriously ill. The man he hired to drive the cab during his illness began to bring back steadily slimmer profits.

"LITTLE EVA"—DEAN OF WOMEN CABBIES

One day when he turned over to the sick man a mere 75 cents, Mrs. Newman heatedly remarked: "I could do better than that myself and I think I'll try."

"Why you wouldn't even have the nerve to apply for a license," replied the disgruntled employe.

Next day Mrs. Newman was at the hack inspector's office, taking and passing an examination on the location of Capital hotels, hospitals, and embassies, and the usual physical going-over. She has been driving ever since.

In the course of those half-million miles, Mrs. Newman has had plenty of experiences, good and bad. She never has been in a serious accident, never been held up, but on on job she nearly had occasion to use the jack handle she kept on the seat beside her.

This is what happened: About 4 p. m. one day she was driving on Eighth street northwest, when a tall, husky fellow hailed her, and announced he would require her services until midnight.

Mrs. Newman explained she never drove at night. The man insisted on her driving him, finally reducing the length of the proposed ride to "two or three hours."

Acquiescing finally, Mrs. Newman started on the strangest "haul" of her life. At the man's direction she drove to three different excavations for new buildings. Ordering her to wait the man, the passenger, each time walked over and peered intently into the diggings, then climbed back in the cab.

Next on the itinerary were several liquor stores where the man stayed only long enough to speak a few words to the managers. The last stop was at a house on Eighth street northwest, near the point at which Mrs. Newman had picked him up. The man entered the building smiling pleasantly over his shoulder but this time failed to return.

After several minutes a woman came to the door and called Mrs. Newman inside. Frightened by this time, Mrs. Newman slipped the jack handle up her sleeve and mounted the steps only to be told her passenger had walked in the front door and out the rear.

Mrs. Newman drove quickly around the block in search of the man, failed to find him, and drove back to the liquor stores visited earlier. At each she was told the same story: the man was well known in the neighborhood, had, in fact, but recently been released from St. Elizabeth's Hospital. There he had been under treatment as a "violent case."

The female hacker is quite reconciled now to the general amazement caused by a woman driving a taxi. The reactions, she says, range from old ladies who compliment her on her careful chauffering to the tired businessman type who refuse to ride with her because "you can't trust a woman driver."

Mrs. Newman has little trouble with "fresh guys" but drunks have caused her grief more than once.

Yesterday a male passenger said to her, "Women drivers have wrecks because they talk too much."

"If that's so," Mrs. Newman replied, "Why are you starting a conversation?"

That's Washington's No. 1 woman hacker.

POVICH

If Joe McCarthy knows what is wrong with the 1940 Yankees, he isn't telling. The half dozen correspondents who travel with the New York club don't even bother to interview him any more. There's no animosity there; everybody, most of all McCarthy, is friendly enough, but the writing gentry discovered long ago that the Yankee manager always middle-tracks it. He's the last fellow to get a hot quote from . . . if you'll pardon us for almost ending a sentence with a preposition.

But there are substantial theories why the Yankee super-team of the past four years is now in fourth place, virtually out of the pennant fight. The one we like best traces the Yankee downfall to the utter collapse of Catcher Bill Dickey. That item probably transcends in importance the fact that the Yankees as a team are in a hitting slump.

Babe Dahlgren is hitting in the .240's and Frankie Crosetti has yet to reach the .200 mark, but the Yankees did very well last year when the batting averages of that pair weren't very much better. Of course Joe DiMaggio and Charley Keller were hitting in the loftier .300 brackets in 1939 and were able to take up much of the slack, but under-rated item on Yankee clubs for the past several years has been Dickey.

Clark Griffith always maintained that the tall catcher was the real spark of the club and publicly tabbed him as the man the Yanks would miss above all others when the team began to disintegrate. Even when his tragic illness removed Lou Gehrig from the Yankees' lineup last year, Griffith did not interpret that as a serious blow. "The man who is holding the Yanks together is Dickey," the old gentleman would say. "If anything happens to him the Yanks will find it tough," he would add, perhaps hopefully.

In recent years there has been a disposition to credit Joe Di Maggio and his powerful batting for the continued surge of Yankee supremacy, but that theory has been pretty well blasted this year. Di Maggio hasn't provided the needed spark. Nor has Keller. Without Dickey in the lineup, the Yanks simply have not been the same formidable team. They don't have that same cocky confidence, chestiness and scorn for the opposition that were long associated with Yankee teams and which left the desired effect on the opposition during pregame practice.

After the passing of Babe Ruth from the Yankee set-up, Dickey more than any other ball player personified Yankee-ism—the championship manner which was unmistakable in Yankee ball clubs on the field. He was the "money player," the clutch hitter, the peerless catcher, the fellow who broke up ball games. American League baseball men gasped when Manager Bill McKechnie of the Reds didn't order Dickey purposely passed in the second game of the World Series of last year, but they didn't gasp when a Dickey hit broke up the ball game. That was old stuff to American Leaguers.

It is no reflection on Dickey to label him as a businessman ball player. It was serious business with him. He wasted little motion. He wasn't excitable. He just gave the Yankees' the best catching in the big leagues, blocked the plate better than anybody in the business, was death on foul pops and just about the most dangerous clutch hitter in the league. In the inning when Dickey came to bat, the Yanks had a zest for the fray.

He's been catching more than half of the Yankee games this year, but he isn't the same Dickey. Something has happened to his batting stroke. As the saying goes, he can't buy a hit. His catching is good enough, but with too many other Yankees in the batting doldrums, Manager Joe McCarthy has been forced to bench Dickey in favor of Buddy Rosar, a lad who led the International League hitters and catches well enough.

But Rosar is no Dickey. He doesn't get the Yankees the same breaks from the umpires that Dickey could. It's no reflection on Rosar to say that he doesn't handle the Yankee pitchers as well, either. Above all, he doesn't inspire any awe in the opposition or display the quiet leadership of Dickey who was a potent if still-water sort on the field.

What happened to Dickey? How come pitchers are getting him out on balls he used to knock out of the lot? This season he has been a setup at the plate. His batting weakness has passed the stage of a slump. The same pitchers who used to attach a prayer to whatever they threw to the fellow now face him with some disdain.

One theory is that the collapse of Dickey started on a hot July afternoon at Griffith Stadium last season. He collapsed under a sunstroke. They divested him of his heavy catching paraphernalia and carried him to the clubhouse. From that day his batting declined steadily. But there may be another and more acceptable theory. Dickey was Lou Gehrig's room-mate. They were close. More than any other man, Dickey was moved by Gehrig's tragic fade-out from the game. It left Dickey obviously depressed. He couldn't muster his old zest for the game. Dickey's batting weakness is perhaps better described as a depression, not a slump. But in either case, it's the Yankees who are taking the full rap.

CONSIDINE

New York, July 2.—The tennis people are planning to take up collections for the Red Cross and other relief charities at the net tournaments this summer, and may even cut the charities in on a percentage of the gates at some of the minor competitions. It's a nice gesture and it should raise a few hundred dollars between now and September.

But as long as they're keen about raising such monies, why not raise many thousands of dollars simply by putting on the first United States tennis open?

We know that's an old demand. But here's a new twist: the last obstacle between us and a tennis tournament which would be a counterpart of our enormously successful golf open disappeared when the Germans moved into Paris. The International Tennis Federation, whose offices are in Paris, dominated the amateur game in America—imposing on it most of the rules we obey. The I. T. F. was French controlled, with the aid of British delegates. The two nations were opposed to open tournaments because they knew that such proamateur tournaments would be heavily taxed and that such taxation might induce the authorities of the two countries to begin taxing the big money-making French and British amateur tournaments—notably the French hard court title play and Wimbledon.

Many U. S. tennis officials have been in favor of an Open for years, but the I. T. F. thrice refused permission for us to hold one. Now there is no I. T. F., or if there is one (the president, a Charles Barde, is Swiss) it is completely inoperative. Here is a chance for the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association to strike out on its own and cast off the cloying foreign entanglements which bind it. This is the opportunity to start not only a tournament which would make thousands for charity now, but also would be a money maker for the association in years to come.

Competitive amateur tennis in this country faces its worst era. Even the U. S. L. T. A. admits that, which isn't hard to admit in face of the fact that competitive amateur tennis depends largely on foreign players to make it attractive—since most of the domestic stars are men and boys who have aroused a great amount of contempt, through familiarity. Now there can be no foreign stars. As for the competitive pro game it is dead, used up, famished for want of varied competition.

The U. S. L. T. A. needs money. It needs profitable tournaments to keep competitive tennis going from coast to coast. The association takes the profits of Forest Hills, the Davis Cup and the National Doubles, as well as smaller tournaments, and sends them back to member clubs throughout the country for tennis promotion. This year there is no Davis Cup, and Forest Hills and the doubles are pretty well doomed for want of colorful imported stars.

An open this year would be a great novelty, as well as something the tennis public wants, and would be a lifesaver for the U. S. L. T. A. There is even a date open, although there are 562 sanctioned tennis tournaments on the schedule. The ancient Longwood tournament, played for many years at the Longwood Club just outside of Boston, recently gave up the ghost—leaving a one-week void in mid-July. All the top flight players, pro and amateur, are available then.

We spoke to Holcombe Ward, president of the U. S. L. T. A. today, and found him opposed to the idea. He thinks the United States is still bound by the I. T. F. rules, and will continue to be bound even if England is crushed. He thinks most of the agitation for an open comes from nonaltruistic pros, and that an open would hurt the amateur game "and make every big city want to run an American amateur tournament." This confused us slightly and we asked him if he didn't mean that the big cities would want to run opens (such as golf's Western Open, Los Angeles Open, etc.), but Ward said, "I know nothing about golf and am not prepared at this time to argue the point."

Ward added that it would be difficult to find a suitable date for an open, and that nothing certainly could be done before the annual meeting of the U. S. L. T. A. next winter. He doubted the advisability of a telegraph vote.

St. Louis Wins, 5 to 3, On Homers

Kennedy's Smash In Ninth Captures Own Game; Knocks Indians Out of 1st

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, July 2.—The scrappy St. Louis Browns, relishing their role as Giant Killers, knocked Cleveland out of first place today. Relief Pitcher Nate Andrews, former Brownie, served a ninth-inning home run ball to his rival, Vernon Kennedy, which gave St. Louis a 5-to-3 victory—its second straight over the skidding Tribe.

The Detroit Tigers, by edging out Chicago, slipped into the American League leadership as Cleveland lost its third game in a row. Ironically, it was the Browns who walked over Boston recently to help the Indians take over first place.

Homers Counted

All the St. Louis tallies were scored on homers. Harlond Clift got one in the fourth off Mel Harder, Cleveland starter, with the bases empty and George McQuinn slugged out another in the sixth after Roy Cullenbine walked. Johnny Allen went in, and left for a pinchhitter after blanking the Browns for two innings, but with the score tied in the ninth, Kennedy got in his decisive blow to score behind Johnny Berardino, who had singled.

It was Andrews' first pitching appearance in a Cleveland uniform. The Indians collected 13 hits to 10 for St. Louis, but had a dozen men left on the bases.

Indians Missed

The Indians wasted several scoring opportunities. They garnered three hits in the second inning—but didn't tally because Ben Chapman was picked off first. They filled the bases in the eighth with nobody out—and scored only one run, on Roy Weatherly's infield out, because Rollie Hemsley ended the inning hitting into a double play.

Detroit Beats Chisox For Top Berth

By the Associated Press

Detroit, July 2.—The surprising Detroit Tigers climaxed a steady climb up the American League ladder today by beating the Chicago White Sox, 10 to 9, to move into first place a scant six per centage points ahead of the Cleveland Indians, who lost to St. Louis.

Out hit, 16 to 11, in the ragged 2-hour-and-37-minute struggle, the Tigers made the most of ten bases on balls issued by three Chicago pitchers to come from behind four times and score the victory, their second straight over the Sox in the three-game series.

Alton Benton, big Tiger relief flinger, who came to the rescue of Rookie Tom Seats at the end of five innings, got credit for the win, although giving way to Archie McKain when the Chicagoans started a rally in the ninth.

A single by Rudy York scoring Dick Bartell from second put Detroit in front, 9 to 8, in the seventh and in the next inning Ralph (Red) Kress belted the game's only homer for what eventually proved to be the winning run.

McGee Hurls, Bats Cards To 4-0 Victory

Pitcher Knocks in 2 Runs as St. Louis Downs Cincinnati

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, July 2.—Bill McGee pitched and batted the Cardinals to a 4-to-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds tonight. McGee, hanging up his sixth victory against five defeats, batted in two of the Cards' runs in an eighth-inning uprising.

The Cards scored their first run—all that really was needed to win—on Terry Moore's triple and Mickey Owen's single in the fourth, but counted three more on four hits and an error in the eighth.

Ernie Koy, also a thorn to Cincinnati yesterday, started the Cards' "just-to-be-sure" eighth with a long double off the pavilion wall in right center. Johnny Mize fouled to Bill Werber, but Moore kept the attack going with a single and Joe Orengo brought Koy home with a safe bunt on a squeeze play. After Paul Derringer threw into center trying to pick Moore off second, Owen was purposely passed and McGee drove in two runs with a single.

The Reds, who collected seven hits off McGee, threatened seriously only once—also in the eighth. Derringer started with a single, advanced on Koy's error, Lonny Frey walked and Frank McCormick singled to fill the bases. Willard Hershberger, who had one previous hit to his credit, then hit it to Martin Marion for a force play at second to end the threat.

Dodgers Beat Phils, 4-1, Behind Carleton

Tex Hurls Three-Hit Game as Brooklyn Takes Lead; Hurlers in Duel Until Seventh Inning; Medwick Stars

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, July 2.—The Brooklyn Dodgers challenged for the National League lead today with a 4-to-1 triumph over the last place Phillies on Tex Carleton's three-hit pitching.

Until the seventh inning the struggle was a glove-tight hurling duel between Carleton and Ike Pearson of the Phils. Neither gave a hit in the first four frames and it remained for Joe Medwick, of the Dodgers, to break the ice in the fifth with his first home run since joining Brooklyn and his fourth of the season.

This deadlock was broken by Brooklyn with a three-run cluster on four hits in the seventh. Medwick started this, too, with a single, went to third on Babe Phelps' single and scored on a single by Dolph Camilli. Phelps came home when Joe Vosmik hit into a double play and Pete Coscarart climaxed the rally with his sixth home run of the year.

The victory gave Brooklyn a sweep of the two-game series and an average of .655. The pace-making Cincinnati Reds went into their night game with St. Louis needing to win to hold an infinitesimal percentage edge with .656. The clubs were tied in games won-lost calculation prior to the Reds' contest.

Yankees' Protest Of Loss to Chisox June 20 Upheld

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 2.—President Will Harridge, of the American League, upheld a protest by the New York baseball club of the 11-inning, 1-to-0 defeat of the Yankees by the Chicago White Sox June 20, and ordered the game replayed at Comiskey Park.

In the second inning, with the score 0-0, Bill Dickey, of New York, hit a foul to leftfield. Outfielder Julius Solters caught the drive but dropped the ball as he attempted to prevent his cap from falling from his head. Umpire John Quinn's decision that Solters had caught the ball was a violation of the playing rule and the league's interpretation of it, Harridge ruled.

Woman Holds Only Double Ticket, Wins $4,897.80

By the Associated Press

Omaha, Nebr., July 2.—Mrs. Alta McMahon, head bookkeeper for an Omaha furniture store, won $4,897.80 on the daily double at the Ak-Sar-Ben track today—the last day of her vacation.

Because she liked the names of Billy Skillful in the first race and All Sweep in the second, she bought the $2 ticket with that combination.

It was an all-time record pay-off at Ak-Sar-Ben, topping the $4,429.80 won by a Chicago woman last May 30.

14 Hits Registered Off Knuckle-Baller; Walker Is Injured

By Shirley Povich.

Post Staff Writer

The Nats tightened their involuntary grip on eighth place yesterday by soaking up their fourth consecutive defeat—a 6-2 job at the hands of the Yankees. The Nats made the first two runs of the ball game, and the Yanks scored the last six.

It was an annoying sort of defeat for the Nats inasmuch as the pitcher the Yankees beat was Dutch Leonard, who is supposed to stop Washington's losing streaks. But Leonard was a better hitter than a pitcher yesterday. His chief contribution to the Nats' welfare was three singles off his own bat.

Walker Gets a Shiner

When he was on the mound, Leonard wasn't doing the Yanks much damage. Five Washington's errors didn't exactly make his lot a happy one, but his knuckle ball was baffling nobody but Washington's infielders. The Yanks walloped him for 14 hits in the eight innings he lasted. They weren't trifling much with singles. Four times they doubled and once a Yankee tripled.

The Nats' errors—which now total ten in two days—figured in only two of the Yankee runs. For the most part, the Yanks were brutally teeing off against Leonard.

The Nats lost the ball game permanently and the services of Outfielder Gee Walker temporarily. Walker was in the starting lineup, but not for long. At bat in the first inning he attempted to bunt, and the ball slithered off his bat and hung a shiner on his right eye. He also suffered a cut above the eye. He was forced from the game—Buddy Lewis replacing him. Walker will be absent "for a couple of days," the Nats' physician stated.

For this occasion Manager Joe McCarthy dusted off Lefty Gomez as his pitcher. Gomez, pitching after ten weeks' rest, manifested no signs of the sore arm that had kept him out of action since April 19. He gave up nine hits to the Nats in the seven innings he pitched before he was given a meritorious discharge by McCarthy. The two runs

Tony's Brother and His Beer Mug Only Thing Barred in Fight

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

Roosevelt Stadium, Jersey City, July 2.—In a fight from another age and another world Max Baer outfought the rubbery Tony Galento tonight. It was one of the bloodiest and toughest fights in the history of the manly art of selfish-defense.

Every round was a reciprocal massacre and the only thing barred was Tony's brother with the beer glass. Baer and Galento turned the clock back and two cuckoos jumped out.

But those two cuckoos fought like eagles. The fight was stopped at the end of the seventh after Tony's mouth was so badly chopped up and split that he was smiling in 22 different directions.

Punching, heeling, butting and gouging were minor amusements in this contest. And in spite of the heavy slugging there was not one knockdown even though Tony was swinging at the finish like a screen door with a hinge off.

It was strictly a grudge fight and probably the first gang warfare fought under arc lights. If Tony's brother hadn't started Galento off with a beer mug message the elastic little man might have outgamed Max.

It was a punch in the stomach that really ended the fight. With Tony helpless at the end of the seventh Max sunk his right into his ribs up to the elbow and then turned it around. Tony's chest rose and fell like seaweed in the Bay of Fundy and at the bell he staggered off like a mountaineer from a hill-billy wedding.

Put us on record as classing this contest as the fiercest, toughest and sincerest we have ever seen. It establishes Max and Tony as the gamest of the gamest. But it means nothing. The next time we see either one of them in a ball park we want them to be in baseball uniforms.

Tony Takes Bad Beating In Seventh

Unable to Get Up When Bell Summons; Former Champ Meets Louis in September

By Jack Cuddy.

United Press Staff Correspondent.

Jersey City, N. J., July 2.—Maxie Baer proved fat Tony Galento the "bigger bum" tonight and clinched another shot at the heavyweight championship by scoring a technical knockout over bloody, helpless Tony, who was unable to answer the bell for the eighth round.

Galento, bleeding like a stuck pig and still groggy from the terrific battering he had received in the seventh, was unable to rise from his stool as the gong clanged again and again for the eighth session.

Dr. Louis W. Dobson, of the New Jersey boxing commission, came into the corner to examine the gory fat man, but his examination was not made when the bell rang. He did not stop the bout. Galento merely was too helpless to go on.

In accordance with a National Boxing Association rule voted at the annual convention in Washington last September, the bell for the eighth was purposely clanged. The rule states that if a contestant fails to answer a bell for the round signified by the clang the fight shall be declared ended in that round.

Promoter Mike Jacobs announced the crowd as 22,711 cash customers and the gross gate at $98,004. This was a disappointment because Jacobs had expected the fight to gross at least $150,000.

Fights Louis Again

Baer, who now is scheduled to fight Joe Louis for the crown Maxie once wore at Chicago in September, was ready and eager to continue the battle. He stood dancing in his corner with his chest stuck out and a smirk on his slightly bearded face as he gazed in scorn across the ring at his stricken opponent.

Maxie had scored this knockout without once having Tony on the canvas although the barrel-bodied belter slipped almost to his knees twice in the savage seventh.

Maxie caught Tony a smashing round-house right to the chin early in the seventh. Tony slipped toward the canvas, but managed to keep off the floor by clinging desperately to Baer's body. Maxie tore after him again when Referee Joe Mangold, of Atlantic City, broke them. He barraged the blood-smeared face with a series of hooks and Galento repeated the sinking performance. He was on his feet, but groggy, when the bell rang, ending the seventh.

Fought After Bell

Maxie either did not hear this gong or wished to take immediate advantage of Tony's condition, because he belted Tony with five smashing hooks to the head after the bell rang. Referee Mangold tore them apart. Galento could scarcely stagger to his corner, even with the assistance of his handlers.

Baer was well ahead on points in this historic "battle of bums" when he started Tony toward the kayo. He had won the second, fourth and fifth sessions, while Galento was superior only in the first and third. The sixth was even.

Maxie, whom Galento had called "peanut heart," showed plenty of courage tonight and tried to fight like the sensational young warrior he was back in 1934 when he won the title from Primo Carnera. He tried to fight that way, but his body wasn't the same and he grew weary—so weary in the third it seemed he was all through. However, again and again he marshaled his failing energy and blasted Tony with blows that made the latter's face look like the inside of a rare roast.

Maxie was still the actor throughout—grimacing, snarling, stalking

Round-by-Round Of Baer, Galento 'Battle of Bums'

ROUND ONE

Galento came out and banged Baer twice with left hooks to the head. Baer countered with a short right to the chin in close. Galento tossed two lefts to the body and Baer did the same. Baer was ducking under Tony's left-hand swings. The referee warned Tony for backhanding. Baer jabbed a left to the nose and bounced a right off the head. Galento landed his left on the ear. Max had Tony hurt from punches to the stomach then fired a hard right to the jaw.

ROUND TWO

Galento missed twice with his left and Baer laughed at him. In close they banged each other on the head. Baer smashed a right to the tummy and another to the ear. Galento rushed in with two lefts high on the head and Baer caught him with a right inside.

They wrestled in a neutral corner for several seconds with no damage done. The pattern of the fight was as expected with Galento rushing in and Baer trying to avoid his left hand.

Suddenly they came off the ropes and brought the crowd to its feet with a wild slugging exchange. Baer's nose was bleeding and Tony seemed considerably winded from Baer's blows to the body. Tony threw that left to body and head again, then whacked Max with a right hand.

Baer landed half a dozen times to the body at the bell. Galento's round.

ROUND THREE

In a half-clinch, they each connected with lefts to the face. Tony rushed Baer to the ropes and flailed away with his left hand and Baer's mouthpiece dropped out. In close it was Tony with a left to the head and Max digging his right to the body as usual.

Gov. O'Conor to Welcome Golf Stars of Red Cross Match Tonight

Reception Starts Huge Benefit Show

Little, Sarazen And Oliver Top List of Nation's Stars on Program

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor, of Maryland, will be an official member of the welcoming committee tonight at Indian Spring club as a dozen of the Nation's top golf professionals, headed by National Open Champion Lawson Little, gather for the Red Cross pro-amateur tournament tomorrow.

The big-name stars among the top pro golfers will arrive here by train, plane and auto today and will be honor guests at the reception tonight. Tickets for the charity tournament tomorrow will be honored for admittance to the grounds tonight. All proceeds will be given to the War Relief Fund of the District Red Cross.

The reception and dancing will start at 8 p. m. An all-star card of entertainers will go on at 9 and at 10 o'clock the visiting professionals will be introduced on the loud-speaker system. Gov. O'Conor wired he would be on hand, but the time is indefinite.

Course Ready

The course is in readiness for the expected thousands of galleryites tomorrow. Tees and greens have been roped off, a huge scoreboard has been erected and a score of gallery marshalls will command 250 Boy Scouts who will handle the ropes.

Little is the outstanding attraction of the visiting professionals but Gene Sarazen, Little's victim in the open playoff; Ed Oliver, the Hornell, N. Y., pro who was disqualified after tying Little and Sarazen, and Henry Picard, the National P. G. A. champion, from Hershey, Pa., complete an all-star quartet.

In addition Horton Smith, Dick Metz, Bobby Cruickshank, Tony Penna, Jimmy Thomson, and Paul Runyan will be on hand both tonight and tomorrow.

McLeod to Play

One of the top foursomes was completed yesterday when Fred McLeod announced his partner would be George F. Miller, of Columbia. They will play with Jim Barnes, who defeated McLeod in the finals of the 1919 P. G. A. championship, and Jim Huntt, Indian Spring amateur and Barnes' mentor.

New and altered pairings were announced yesterday by the committee. Ralph Beach, Suburban Club professional, will play with Washington Club Champion Dr. E. T. Rice. At 2:20, Cliff Spencer and Claude Rippy will play with Tom Ryan and Pete Scarla, all local combinations, while another D. C. foursome at 9:50 will be Dave Thomson and Dr. W. R. McLister and Buck Worsham and Bob Donohue. Jack Harris and a partner to be selected will play with Levi Yoder, making his local debut as a professional, and Eddie Ault.

Ambulances Handy

Mrs. L. E. Harris, prominent Woodmont linkswoman and chairman of the District Red Cross Motor Corps, will direct two ambulances and two first aid units tomorrow, manned by Red Cross nurses.

The diamond-studded medals that will go to the winning pro and his amateur partner, donated by A. S. Kay, are on display at the club. Only the winners will receive prizes.

The collection of golf pros here tomorrow will be second only to the Detroit "Ryder Cup" match for the Red Cross next month. Although P. G. A. groups all over the country are cooperating with the Red Cross in the charity events, only the Detroit field will be able to match the all-star lineup that will play here tomorrow.

The locals start at 9 a. m. with most of the visiting pros playing between 1 and 2 p. m.

The Nats succeeded in misleading the 3,000 customers by tking a 2-0 lead in the second inning. Zeke Bonura beat out a tremendous drive into the centerfield corner for a two-base hit, and a bit later Jimmy Bloodworth moved him home with a double down the leftfield line. When the Yanks walked Ferrell purposely with two out Leonard pumped a single to left for the second run of the inning.

That's all the Nats could achieve against Gomez or Johnny Murphy, who relieved him at the start of the eighth. Welaj opened the third inning with a walk but was out stealing, thus voiding a pair of singles by Lewis and Travis.

Any notions the Nats had of staging a late uprising were dispelled by Gordon in the eighth when he grabbed Pinchhitter Myer's fierce grounder to start a spectacular double-play, and by Red Rolfe who speared Welaj's drive in the ninth.

At the end of the fifth round, when they continued fighting after the bell, Baer made a low bow to Tony in the approved Alphonse-Gaston fashion. This brought a roar of merriment from the crowd of 30,000 at Roosevelt Stadium.

Galento forced the fighting in the first round, but Maxie ducked down beneath most of his swishing left hooks. In this session Maxie opened the chin gash that Tony had received Sunday night when struck by a beer glass thrown by his brother, Russell. This gash bled freely throughout, and Maxie later opened a gash on the right side of the mouth and a cut inside Tony's nose. Baer also was bleeding from the nose and mouth at the end.

Some of Maxie's gore was occasioned by a savage head butt administered by Tony in the furious fourth round. The referee penalized Tony for this foul, but Maxie had won the session anyway. In the third round, which Galento won, Tony landed a terrific pivot backhand to Maxie's head, but he was not penalized for the infraction.

Galento, who weighed 244½ pounds, was heavier than he expected to be, indicating that he was not in condition. Baer, at 221½, also was over his expected weight.

Each gets 27½ per cent of the net gate. Although no official figures were announced, it was estimated that the gross gate was $150,000. Tony's purse had been attached by the estate of the late Joe Jacobs, his manager. Papers were served on the unfortunate fat man in his dressing room tonight.

Galenton, despite his beating, had no thought of retiring.

"I can lick that bum and I want to fight him again," he said.

Baer looked forward to his September bout with Louis, who was at the ringside. After the bout Louis and Maxie hugged each other for the movies.

Round-by-Round of 'Bum' Fight

Tony charged in with both hands swinging and was warned again to "Watch your head" by the referee. They were mauling away on the ropes at the bell. Baer's round.

ROUND FIVE.

Baer held a clean margin in the fourth round, but whatever chance Tony had was lost when the referee awarded the round to Max because of Tony's butting.

Tony threw a wild left to the jaw and Max did the same with a right. They banged away at each other's face along the ropes with both hands. Baer landed a fearful right hand on the mouth. Tony tossed a left to the nose. Tony threw his left hook twice to the cheek again. They exchanged straight lefts and the action slowed down.

ROUND SIX

ROUND SEVEN.

Tony rushed in and stumbled to one knee. Baer threw three fearful rights to the face. They stood near a neutral corner again and banged away with neither offering any kind of defense. Max landed, left, right, left and right again to the face. Then he punched Tony at will with both hands at the bell. Baer continued to bang away after the gong sounded until the referee separated them. Baer's round.

Giant Spell Ends, Bees Win 5-3 Decision

By the Associated Press

New York, July 2.—The Boston Bees broke through the spell of the New York Giants today for a 5 to 3 decision in a lusty hitting affair featured by the home runs of Chet Ross and Gene Moore of the Bees.

It was the first triumph for the Bees in the Polo Grounds this year and their second in ten starts against the Giants. The result broke a four-game personal winning streak for Hal Schumacher, who gave way for a pinchhitter in the sixth.

Each team made 11 hits, but Dick Errickson left ten Giants stranded. His mates took charge of the game in the sixth with successive homers good for three runs and added another tally in the seventh with two singles off Relief Pitcher Roy Joiner.

Bill Lee Hurls Shutout, Cubs Beat Bucs, 10-0

Pitches Five-Hit Ball to Register His Sixth Victory

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 2.—Bill Lee, the big right-hander who won 41 games for the Chicago Cubs the last two seasons, went the route for the first time in six weeks today, pitching a 10-to-0 shutout victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The victory was Lee's sixth, as against ten defeats, and was only the third time this season that he has lasted nine innings.

While Lee was tossing five-hit ball, the Cubs pounded Joe Bowman from the box in the fifth and continued the assault on Dick Lanahan. They sewed up the game in the second with five runs on four hits, three errors and two bases on balls. Bob Collins, rookie catcher, and Bill Nicholson led the attack with three hits each.

Hagerstown Man Lands Record Bass

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hagerstown, July 2. — Victor Sneckenberger, local fisherman, landed a 3-pound 12-ounce smallmouth bass near Shepherdstown yesterday, the largest reported caught in the Potomac River on opening day of the season. A small section of the river near Shepherdstown, and another near Mountain Lock and Harpers Ferry, were the only places that escaped the muddy waters which swept down the stream from heavy rains over the week-end.

Lewis Lemen and George W. Wolfe, of Williamsport, landed the day's limit.

Ruth Simon Wins Mrs. Harris Trophy

Miss Simon scored 101-97 for a 198 gross total and deducted a 36 handicap total for the winning score.

Mrs. Ralph Goldsmith won low gross with a 94 and 96 for a 190 total.

Second low net was a tie between Mrs. Morris Jaffe, 111-105, 216-62, 164, and Mrs. Gil Hahn, 93-99, 192-28, 164.

Krakky Named To Avert Yankee Sweep of Series

Joe Krakauskas comes out of the semidisgrace of the bull pen today to resume a starting role for the Nats. Manager Bucky Harris has named the big Lithuanian to face the Yankees in an attempt to avert a sweep of the series.

Krakauskas, who was retired to relief-pitching roles—and not many of those—by his utter inability to win for the Nats since the start of the season, earned today's assignment by recent clever if brief relief pitching jobs.

McCarthy, Miller Take Golf Medal

Martin F. McCarthy and George R. Miller, Columbia's Cumming Cup champions, won the Capital Club Invitation medal playoff yesterday over Congressional's favored team of Ralph Bogart and Earl McAleer.

The teams tied with best ball 67's in the tournament qualifying last Friday and deadlocked again at 69 in the first playoff on Sunday.

Yesterday's round was not completed as McCarthy and Miller led by six strokes at the fifteenth hole, and as the green is next to the clubhouse Bogart and McAleer conceded the match. The winners were three under par and the losers three over, with McCarthy playing the best golf but Miller figuring in with valuable assistance.

Eastern Rifle Title Shoot Draws 700

By the Associated Press

Camp Ritchie, Md., July 2.—More than 700 rifle and pistol marksmen in the Eastern region of the National Rifle Association, including up-State New York, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, District of Columbia and West Virginia, start a five-day battle for the Eastern championships tomorrow in the Eastern Regional Rifle and Pistol tournament.

F. C. Hoppe, of Philadelphia, Eastern small-bore rifle champion last year, will attempt to make it two in a row over a field expected to give much stiffer competition, including a number of newcomers practicing for National Guard rifle team places.

Woodring Entered

Other marksmen competing will include Bill Woodring, national small-bore titleholder for three years; Jim Lacy, Northeastern regional winner, and his brother, Jack; Dave Carlson, Dave Mathewson and Elsie Helwig, all of New Haven, Conn.

Walter Walsh, diminutive sharpshooter of J. Edgar Hoover's G-man squad, last year's regional pistol champion and national all-round rifle and pistol champion, may not be able to defend his title. He underwent an appendectomy ten days ago.

Police teams of five men are coming from Washington, D. C., Philadelphia, the Pennsylvania Highway Patrol, West Virginia and Maryland State police and a long list of sharpshooting civilians, including Dr. D. N. Lanier, of Fredericksburg, Va.

Champ in 3 Calibers

Lynch Beats Mitchell After Terrific Battle in M. A. Tennis

Loser Tires, Drops Match In Three Sets

Second-Seeded Entry Wins, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2, To Gain Round of 8; Farrin, Breese Score

By Jack Munhall

Poised on the threshold of one of the biggest upsets of his career, Dooly Mitchell, veteran of a decade of District tennis, found the ravages of age and staleness too much to overcome yesterday and bowed to second-seeded Hugh Lynch after a terrific three-set battle at Columbia.

In one of the greatest matches seen here in recent years, the 31-year-old Mitchell, unranked in the fifth annual tournament because of inactivity last season, lost to his old rival, 5—7, 6—4, 6—2, after coming within a point or two of victory.

Lynch thereby gained the quarter-final round, as did two other singles winners yesterday—sixth-seeded Jimmy Farrin, who beat seventh-seeded Frank Shore, 6—4, 6—3, and Bill Breese, who scored a surprisingly decisive 6—3, 6—4 victory over Ricky Willis.

Doubles Reach Semifinals

Doubles reached the semifinal round when defending champions Lynch and Davie Johnsen trimmed Burgess and Fontanini; second-seeded Mitchell and Barney Welsh conquered Baltimore's Alex Keiles and John Sapiro, and fourth-seeded Farrin and Bill Howard knocked off Dever Hobbs and John Beck, another Baltimore combination, 6—4, 6—1.

Local tennis was seen at its peak in the Mitchell-Lynch struggle, which found Lynch, the 26-year-old barrister, evening more than one old score with the Georgetown University business administration teacher.

Evens Score

By the comeback victory in which his own fighting heart and Mitchell's fast draining physical resources played important parts, Lynch squared his five-year series with Dooly at three wins apiece. More gratifying to Lynch, however, is the realization that he has repaid Mitchell for two defeats suffered after apparently having matches won. Outstanding example was the finals of the 1937 Grand National tournament here when Mitchell won the title from Lynch after trailing two sets and 5-1, 40-5 in the third. Dooly won in five sets, climaxing the comeback pull by rallying to overcome a 5-0 deficit in the fifth and deciding set.

His booming forehand and a crafty drop-shot attack carried Mitchell to victory in the first set after Lynch held three set points. Throughout the hard-fought second set, too, it was drop shots that enabled Mitchell to compensate for Lynch's ability to cover more court. But late in that second set Mitchell's legs gave way and his great fatigue was mirrored in his face and also in the slowing of his attack.

Lynch Brilliant

This, though, should not reflect on Lynch who was stellar under pressure and played great tennis to win a deserved victory. Evidence of Hugh's fighting spirit was seen in the second set when, with the game score at 2-2, and Mitchell serving, he rallied in the fifth to overcome a 40-15 deficit and take what appeared the decisive game of the match.

Thereafter Mitchell never held a lead although he tied the count at 3-3 and 4-4 before Lynch put on steam to win the ninth and tenth games with loss of only three points. Set point came when Mitchell double faulted with the score at 30-40.

The third set was all Lynch as Mitchell kicked in with frequent errors to more than offset many fine overhead placements which where set up by backhanded and forehand drop shots. Hugh took the first two games without trouble, lost the third, won the fourth after four deuces, dropped the fifth to Dooly's service and he closed out impressively.

SINGLES RESULTS
Third round—Hugh Lynch defeated Dooly Mitchell, 5—7, 6—4, 6—2; Bill Breese defeated Ricky Willis, 6—3, 6—4; Jimmy Farrin defeated Frank Shore, 6—4, 6—3.

DOUBLES RESULTS
Second round—Hobbs and Beck defeated Arnold and Morgan, 6—8, 8—6, 6—3.
Quarterfinal round—Lynch and Johnsen defeated Burgess and Fontanini, 6—1, 6—0; Howard and Farrin defeated Hobbs and Beck, 6—4, 6—1; Welsh and Mitchell defeated Keiles and Shapiro, 6—4, 6—3.

Bensinger Reaches 3d Round in Tourney

Local Junior Champion Profits by Default, Wins Match to Advance as Eli Gottlieb Is Eliminated in Second Round of School Play

By the Associated Press

Haverford, Pa., July 2.—Third-seeded Bud Hart, of Miami, Fla., wore out two pairs of shoes—including a borrowed paid—then raced over the clay courts of Merion Cricket Club in bare feet today as he conquered his second-seeded opponent in the National Interscholastic Tennis Tournament.

Under the shoe handicap, Hart, who is the ninth ranked junior player in the Nation, had a hard three-set match before he downed Bruce Wylie, of Pottstown, Pa., 0—6, 12—10, 6—3, and moved into the third round along with a majority of the other favorites.

Hart's troubles started in the second match with the games standing at 6—6. He had worn the soles of his sneakers so thin that the tops pulled away. He halted hostilities to don a borrowed pair, but had to cast them aside before he could score a triumph.

Bensinger Wins

The District of Columbia batted .500, as one of its two entries reached the third round and the other was eliminated in the second. Surviving is Bobby Bensinger, of Takoma, Md., national boys' indoor champion, and defeated was Eli Gottlieb, of Washington.

Bensinger, City of Washington junior titleholder, won by default in the first round and then showed fine form in walloping Robert Crawford, Coronado (Calif.) High School, 6—0, 6—1. Gottlieb bowed to Irvin Dorfman, of New York City, 6—3, 6—1, after gaining a first-round default.

Two of the seeded players—Albert Everts, No. 2, of Andover Prep, Mass., and Dick Shipp, No. 5, of LeMoyne, Pa.—were removed from the title race by defaults. Everts is seriously ill.

Victor Wins In Stretch; Pays Off $5

Gelding Races Home Length and Half in Front of Prince Turley in Feature

By Walter Haight

Charles Town, W. Va., July 2.—Hiblaze, aptly named son of Blazes and Hieaay, turned on some more of that sizzling speed, apparent in his recent races, and won his third purse in a row. Performing in the red and white colors of R. C. Waple, Hiblaze made good for the favorite players in the Pingo Purse, a test of 4½ furlongs, serving feature purposes on today's program. Jockey John Hernandez and enough lead to make up 116 pounds was the assignment on the 5-year-old gelding which drove to the wire a length and a half in advance of H. M. Simpson's remarkable 8-year-old Prince Turley. The latter, reported to have bled and seemed to have pulled up lame in his previous start, was the leader most of the way. R. George's Royal Dot, which drew a fair backing, was third in the field of eight. The winner paid $5.

Despite yesterday's heavy track, the oval was good when today's program began and was fast for the feature event. Hiblaze was clocked in a creditable 0:50.

The race was between Hiblaze and Prince Turley from the start to finish. Prince Turley displaced Lickety Split in the opening furlong to take command. Hiblaze was driven up on the inside of the leader and had stretch punch left. Prince Turley ran his race and amazed close observers by pulling up in sound condition.

Jockey Bob Tilden was the hero of the early races. He won the first three events, riding to victories in both ends of the daily double. Tilden was aboard Knespin, owned by R. S. Reynolds, jr., in the first race and brought the 2-year-old filly home two lengths in front of S. H. Hall's Sun Scene with Smoke Gal third in a field of eight. Knespin paid $9.60.

Tilden started the ball rolling on a $17.60 daily double by winning the second race with Mrs. E. I. Fitz's Regal Sun, a $4.60 favorite which downed, among others, Golden Key and Chide. He came back in the third event to triumph with R. J. Zindorf's Mariyah, which made it two wins in a row. Salburne was second and Congo Prince was third.

Building-Loan Dividends Here Increase 8%

$2,586,000 Being Paid To 125,000 in D. C. For Six Months

Distribution of $2,586,000 in semi-annual dividends is being made this week to about 125,000 shareholders of savings, building and loan associations in the District of Columbia, it was learned yesterday.

According to a compilation prepared at The Post's request by F. Willson Camp, secretary of the District of Columbia Building & Loan League, the latest dividend represents an increase of 8 per cent over the $2,358,000 disbursed in the first half of 1939. In the last six months of 1939, a total of $2,410,000 was paid.

Mr. Camp noted that present $150,000,000 resources of the 28 local members has almost exactly doubled since 1930.

This week, savings, building and loan associations throughout the country, completed distribution of $85,000,000 dividends for the first six months. These earnings on the association's long-term mortgage loans to home owners, will go to 6,800,000 individuals, trustees, benevolent and fraternal institutions, and the United States Treasury.

Morton Bodfish, executive vice president of the United States Savings & Loan League, estimates that at least 500,000 individuals and trust funds are receiving this return on savings and loan investments for the first time, having placed the money there during the past six months.

Assets at 73-Year Top

The Metropolis Building Association of Washington reported yesterday that assets exceeded the $6,000,000 mark for the first time in its 73-year history. Secretary Rudolph W. Santelmann reported that surplus and reserve account currently is $575,000.

Shareholders elected three new directors: John W. Hardell, president and general manager of Hugh Reilly Co.; Chalmers F. Groff, secretary-treasurer of the Home Title Insurance Co., and Channing S. Walker, secretary-treasurer of the George E. Walker Lumber Co. Officers and directors were re-elected. The officers are Harry G. Wilson, president; John Scrivener, vice president; Mr. Santelmann, secretary, and Henry E. Tripp, treasurer.

Ticker Loafs as General Market Eases; Naval Program Buoys Shipbuilding List

New York, July 2.—The financial community roared through another day of great inaction today, quotations tumbling over each other on the ticker at the rate of one every five or ten minutes. There was no truth to the rumor that the street was going to celebrate Independenc Day all week instead of to Thursday only but the denial hasn't been given enough publicity. That may explain why the financial district was virtually deserted.

Stocks were fairly firm in early dealings and their best activity came during the opening hour of trading, but things soon settled back. At the close the composite average showed a negligible loss of 0.02 point and the volume was 320,020 shares. This was somewhat better than Monday's record but nothing to cheer about.

Shipbuilding List Gains

Despite the slackness in today's dealings, there were a few special moves. Shipbuilding shares, for instance, gave a good account of themselves, aided by the new naval program. Electric Boat was up a major fraction and there was a good gain in New York Shipbuilding. International Mercantile Marine was one of the most active stocks and gained a half point.

Other groups moved within narrow ranges. Comparatively few of the leaders closed as much as a point away from Monday's final prices. Exceptions included American Can and American Smelting, each of which lost a point. The list is now in a position where a few buying orders or a few selling orders can produce wide price fluctuations, but in such a period of uncertainty, there is no pressure in either direction.

Proposals for taxes on excess profits have come as no surprise to the financial community. The principle is a correct one; its actual application is a difficult problem and one which will require all the enlightenment which the best minds of government and business can contribute. The problem is to raise the money which will be needed for the Government's defense program, to prohibit undue profits being made at the expense of the people and yet to preserve the incentive for private enterprise, without which government alone would be powerless. There should be no killing of the goose that must start laying golden eggs.

Bonds Hold Firm

With volume remaining so small as to make price changes relatively unimportant, the bond market here held steady to firm in many departments today.

Among United States Treasury bonds the tone in long-term issues was inclined to be easier while medium maturities were somewhat better. Final prices on the exchange showed gains up to 7-32 point while late prices in over-counter dealings were 2-32 lower to 3-32 higher.

Smaller interest appeared in the foreign section, but substantial recovery was made by some of the Australian and New South Wales issues as well as by some Argentine bonds. Movements appeared to be highly selective, with Uruguays, Japanese and some Italian bonds selling higher.

High-grade rails were among the best in the domestic corporate list, the average of these selling up 0.13 point, while more speculative advanced 0.08 point.

The Herald Tribune average of 30 issues was up 0.03 point on the day. The industrial average was down 0.11 point and the utilities up 0.05 point.

Crude Oil Output Continues Drop

New York, July 2 (AP).—Daily crude oil production in the United States declined 206,900 during the week ended June 29, totaling 3,639,550 barrels, the American Petroleum Institute reported today. A year ago production averaged 3,463,000 barrels daily.

A curtailment in Texas' output was largely responsible for the decrease. Illinois' production rose again to a new high of 517,050 barrels a day.

Total gasoline production during the week declined rather sharply to 11,672,000 barrels from 12,085,000 barrles the week before. Gasoline stocks showed a sizable decrease, falling off to 95,142,000 barrels at the end of the week compared with 97,276,000 a week earlier. A year ago, gasoline stocks totaled 80,418,000 barrels.

USHA Offers $51,000,000 6-Month Notes

Tax-Exempt, Short-Term Paper to Be Sold on July 10 and 17

By the Associated Press

The United States Housing Authority announced yesterday that $51,000,000 of local housing authority temporary loan notes would be sold on July 10 and July 17 to private bidders offering lowest interest rates.

This short term paper, maturing in six months, will be offered in two groups. Eleven housing authorities will sell $31,407,000 on July 10 as follows:

Boston, Mass., $16,000,000; Bridgeport, Conn., $4,500,000; Brunswick, Ga., $750,000; Chester, Pa., $1,127,000; Elizabeth, N. J., $1,500,000; Fall River, Mass., 2,200,000; Harrison, N. J., $860,000; Jersey City, N. J., $1,800,000; Lowell, Mass., $2,500,000; Martinsburg, W. Va., $270,000; Spartanburg, S. C., $400,000.

A second group of 11 will sell $19,593,000 on July 27. They are:

Allegheny County, Pa., $823,000; Biloxi, Miss., $300,000; Birmingham, Ala., 5,000,000; Camden, N. J., $814,000; Cleveland, Ohio, $6,325,000; Detroit, Mich., $1,200,000; Montgomery, Ala., $750,000; New Britain, Conn., $800,000; Phoenix, Ariz., $550,000; Stamford, Conn., 700,000; Toledo, Ohio, $2,335,000.

Officials expected the notes to be sold at interest rates ranging from 40/100 to 55/100 of 1 per cent compared with the 2¼ to 3¼ charged by USHA when local authorities borrow directly from it under the housing act. The notes are wholly exempt from Federal income taxes and in most cases also exempt from State taxes.

Officials said the prospective saving in interest would reduce the cost to local authorities by at least 2 per cent.

Baltimore Transit To Spend $2,000,000 On New Equipment

Baltimore, July 2 (AP).—Bancroft Hill, president of the Baltimore Transit Co., announced today a $2,000,000 improvement program involving the purchase of 108 new streamlined trolley cars and 15 new buses.

The company already has 68 streamlined trolleys and Hill said the new ones, to be built by the Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing Co., Worchester, Mass., would give Baltimore "one of the largest fleets of modern rail urban transit cars in the United States."

Ten of the buses will be built by the Yellow Coach Co., General Motors subsidiary, Pontiac, Mich., and five by the Mack Truck Co., Allentown, Pa.

New York, July 2 (AP).—An increase of 18,100 telephones in use in the Bell System in June was reported today by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. The gain for May was 86,600 and for June, 1939, the increase was 15,800.

Shareholders Uphold 'Incentive' Pay

Wilmington, Del., July 2 (AP).—Stockholders of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation today defeated a resolution which proposed that no incentive compensation be paid officers and directors in any year in which a dividend of at least 10 cents is not declared on common stocks.

The resolution was introduced at a special meeting by Lewis D. Gilbert and John J. Gilbert, each of whom holds five shares of common stock.

The incentive compensation plan was approved by stockholders at the 1939 annual meeting. It provides that 10 per cent of net earnings in excess of $3,000,000 shall be distributed by the board to officers and employes of the company.

A proxy statement said that under the plan $258,050 was distributed to 25 officers and 150 employes from earnings on 1939 operations.

At today's meeting, all directors were reelected. The board, however, was increased from 15 to 17 and Charles A. Dana and Edgar S. Bloom were named to the new places.

Lybrant, Ross Brothers & Montgomery were reappointed accountants.

Dividend Cut Voted

New York, July 2 (AP).—Directors of Addressograph-Multigraph Corp. today declared a dividend of 25 cents, a reduction of 10 cents a share from the previous payment in April.

Rubber Leads Downturn in Commodities

Wheat Is Exception To Trend, Closes Firm; Cotton Weakens

By the Associated Press

Rubber dropped nearly ½ cent a pound and tin declined ¼ cent in futures trade yesterday after overnight consideration of news the United States had taken steps to buy 150,000 tons of rubber and 75,000 tons of tin for defense reserve needs.

First reaction to the news on Monday was a lift in prices.

Main holdout was wheat at Chicago which advanced ⅛ to ⅜ of a cent a bushel under impetus of unfavorable crop conditions in the Northwest spring wheat area. Corn dipped ¼ to 1 cent.

Cotton at New York closed 40 cents a bale lower to 15 higher. The spot month weakened in line with issuance of 12 delivery notices and another increase in stocks available for delivery on contracts.

Trimmed in price were Santos coffee, copper, hides, silk, cocoa, sugar. Wool tops, cottonseed oil and zinc advanced. The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot commodities, based on 1926 as 100, declined to 71.7 from 71.56.

Chicago, July 2 (AP).—Wheat futures prices closed ⅛ to ⅜ cents higher than yesterday's final figure on buying inspired late in today's session by Minneapolis houses and on unfavorable crop comment from the Northwest spring wheat territory. The market rallied near the close but best prices were not maintained. Corn closed easy.

There was little in the news, either domestic or foreign, to cause traders to take a definite position. Indications of deterioration of spring wheat over a large area were reflected by reductions in estimates of private crop experts. The reports were conflicting, however, and the uncertainty regarding the war situation in the Balkans kept the trade in a cautious frame of mind.

Corn futures closed ¼ to 1 cent lower, the latter on December which sagged to a new seasonal low mark at 76⅛. Private crop forecasts of around 2,500,000,000 bushels, compared with last year's harvest of 2,619,000,000, created a relatively weaker tone in the deferred delivery.

Cotton Drops Despite Flood

New York, July 2 (AP).—Floods in Texas cotton growing areas attracted demand for deferred futures contracts today but the spot delivery fell back under new liquidation. The final range was 8 points lower for July and 1 to 3 higher for later months.

Circulation of 12 delivery notices against July undermined that delivery. Another depressant was the news of a further increase in certificated stocks. The July premium over later months narrowed more than 50 cents a bale for the second consecutive day.

Curtis Publishing Recapitalization Plan Approved

Philadelphia, July 2 (AP).—Curtis Publishing Co. stockholders voted today to accept a recapitalization plan designed to reduce the company's annual dividend required on $7 preferred stock from $5,056,940 to $3,356,406.

Under the proposal, preferred stockholders would be given the option of exchanging each share for a new $10 15-year 3 per cent debenture, 2½ shares of common and a share of a new $4 prior preferred on which an annual $3 dividend would be paid and an additional $1 if earnings justified.

President Walter D. Fuller said he had received some written objections, but no protests were voiced in today's special meeting.

Big French Cargo Lifts Gold Imports To $418,236,631

The Treasury reported yesterday that $418,236,631 of gold was brought into this country in the week ended June 26, including $241,575,998 from France.

The French gold presumably was that brought over by the cruiser Vincennes. The Treasury disclosed last week that the cruiser had brought some gold purchased by the United States from France, but did not give the precise amount.

The week's gold imports were more than four times that of the preceding week but well under the $532,477,333 which was imported during the week ended June 5.

This aggregate was less than $100,000 away from the low for brokers loans established in August, 1932, at $241,599,043, and compared with the record high of $8,549,383,979 in October, 1929.

Vacation School At Kensington To Open Monday

A vacation school sponsored by the Holy Redeemer Catholic Church, Kensington, Md., will open Monday at 9 a. m. at the Kensington Public School, the Rev. J. Edward Malloy, pastor of the mission church, announced yesterday.

Nearly 100 children have enrolled in the school to be conducted daily from 9 until 11:30 a. m., through July and August. The faculty will consist of the Franciscan Sisters from the Nativity Church, Brightwood, D. C., and special teachers for sewing.

Besides a course in catechism, the curriculum will include drawing, manual training, dramatics and singing.

Opening lead: 3 ♡

It was contributed by Dr. A. D. M., who says:

"The opening semi-psychic bid raised havoc with our opponents and gave us top score at duplicate played at the Van Curler Hotel in Schenectady last Friday.

"I can see readily the difficulties of North and South reaching either a four heart or three notrump game with a distribution that steers one away from notrump and the fact that the opening bid was in the heart suit, plus all the doubles you see recorded.

"I sat East in the game and was innocent of what was going on until dummy went down. Declarer lost a club, a diamond and three spades. "Would you say North and South were victims of circumstances?"

In spite of the foolish and panicky bidding of North and South, four clubs doubled is not a bad contract and would have reasonable expectation of making with a little less violent distribution or with a higher club than the seven in dummy. Even as it is, four clubs can be won double-dummy if the defense is not careful.

Declarer wins the three of hearts with the king and takes the ace of spades and leads a low spade to trump in dummy. West overruffs with the seven and plays back either a club or a heart, more likely a club. Declarer takes the ace king and puts East in with the club king. If East returns either a spade or a club declarer wins, draws the outstanding trump and leads a diamond. West is caught. After taking the diamond ace he must put dummy back into the lead with a heart or a diamond, allowing declarer two spade discards, or enough to fulfill his contract. Declarer loses two clubs and a diamond.

With a heart return by West, declarer trumps high, compelling East to overruff with the king or discard. He then forces out the king of clubs, wins the return club or spade lead and extracts the last club. He now leads a diamond and the result will be the same.

This, of course, will work provided East does not switch to a diamond when he is in with the king of clubs and still has a club left so that his partner can exit with a heart after winning the diamond ace.

Deavers Hurls a Two-Hit Game; Checks Foes After 2d Inning

Launching its search for the second-half title in The Washington Post Industrial League, Cameo Furniture, behind two-hit hurling by by Frank Deavers, slapped a 5-to-0 setback on O'Donnell's yesterday on the Ellipse.

The only safeties off Deavers came in the first and second innings, a single by Mizell and a triple by Orrison, but neither man scored. Nobody got to base for the losers after the second inning.

Another Cameo pitcher, "Giggle" Adair, playing the outfield, turned in the crowning blow of the game. It was a home run in the fifth, with nobody on. The winner were credited with 4 hits off Birch and Liggett, Adair and Deavers leading the attack with three each in four official times up.

Center Market Bows to Interior

Center Market dropped farther behind D. G. S. in the Departmental League yesterday when it absorbed a 10-2 beating at the hands of Interior on the Ellipse. Four home runs marked the game, Hawkswirth and Kendall hitting for the circuit for Interior and Taylor and Wolverton for the Market.

Starting off with two runs each in the first and second and three more in the third, I. D. R. A. was never in danger. With Jewett hurling brilliant six-hit ball, Interior held its foe scoreless for six innings and saw the only two Market runs come over in the seventh and eighth.

8, WRC—Abbott and Costello, whose comedy has been a feature of the Kate Smith variety hour for the past two seasons, take over the first half of the Fred Allen hour, all of which has been vacated by that comic for a vacation and then a new sponsor. They offer a musical typewriter that can be played by anyone who can typewrite. What's next?

8, WJSV—The Star Theater of the Air is clipped in half for the summer, although in the fall it will return to its full-hour format with Fred Allen in topspot. Jimmy Wallington, the show's announcer, continues as m. c. for the summer with Kenny Baker and Frances Langford doing the songs. "God Bless America" starts things rolling.

Ladies and gentlemen: This space would like to announce the most terrific, the most stupendous, and the most magnificent event of the year. An event that will go down in history with Ann Corio and Gypsy Rose Lee. An event that will pour thousands of dollars into the coffers of the Crossroads Theater and an event that has already completely shattered the morale of the WJSV personnel.

This thing is called the "Unveiling of Allen." Allen being one Reginald Allen, a crack member of the WJSV announcing staff who is currently knocking 'em into the straw out at the Crossroads in a thing called "A Woman's A Fool."

Reginald is the star of the piece, and at one point he appears on stage a la Weissmuller. He's supposed to be a playwright, but his costume has a touch of the Lamour to it.

Vast chunks of the WJSV staff attended opening night at the Crossroads Monday and yesterday you just couldn't get a bit of work done.

When Congressman Joe Martin was wielding that fine gavel at the Republican Convention his magnificent aplomb was disturbed but once. Through some mechanical mix-up Bob Trout's C. B. S. broadcast was heard on the Convention Hall's loud speaker system for approximately ten seconds.

Mr. Martin heard it, looked a bit puzzled, slammed down his gavel and said quite politely and earnestly, "Will the gentleman please repeat his remarks."

65 D. C. Aliens Are Granted Citizenship

Escape New Registry Law; Justice Proctor Warns of 'Obligations'

Justice James M. Proctor granted United States citizenship to 65 aliens in the District Court yesterday, and counseled them to be "concerned with the obligations rather than the benefits" of their new status.

The new citizens, by taking the oath of allegiance, were relieved of registering as aliens, under the new law which provides for listing and fingerprinting.

Justice Proctor reminded the applicants that citizenship carries with it obligations as well as rights and that new Americans assume the duties when they acquired the benefits.

7 Applications Held Up

"The best way to preserve your rights," the justice advised "is to perform faithfully your obligations."

Justice Proctor deferred action on seven applications until Friday. Some of these persons were absent and more investigation was scheduled for others.

The Federal Diary:

U. S. to Rehire Old Hands For Defense

Noncivil Service Workers Will Get Chance at Jobs

By Edward Ryan

A new system to aid the Government in letting its right hand know what its left hand is doing when employes are being hired and fired has been set up by President Roosevelt.

The President, by Executive order, has started a replacement list for discharged Federal employes who lack civil service status, and opened the way for them to benefit from increasing job openings in the defense agencies.

His order, it was pointed out, helps clear up the paradox which left nondefense agencies with the prospect of firing employes to meet economy demands at a time when defense agencies might be needing the same trained employes. The difficulty had been sharpened by this fact: The defense agencies are taking new employes from civil service lists, while most of the employes already furloughed or facing discharge from nondefense agencies are those without classified civil service status.

These employes, under the executive order, are expected to find smoother sailing into a new Government job. At least 3,000 of these employes were reported last night to be in direct line for the "breaks" expected under the new system, while hundreds more in nondefense agencies, still uncertain how the President's $250,000,000 economy will affect them, can have more hope that loss of one job will lead quickly to another.

The Civil Service Commission will set up the list of all employes, without competitive civil service status, who have been involuntarily separated from the Federal service since January 1, 1940, and who had served six months immediately before their discharge.

The commission will determine what jobs are to be described as national defense positions.

The replacement list will then be used to make temporary appointments to national-defense positions, good for the duration of the national defense program.

Regulations controlling operation of the replacement list will be issued within the next few days, the Civil Service Commission said. The rules will define the conditions for admitting discharged employes to the replacement list, describe the noncompetitive fitness tests and the certification system to be used in sending employes to new jobs, and outline the way the defense agencies can use the list.

Appointments from the replacement list, the President ruled, would not give employes competitive civil service status.

A regular replacement service has been operating for Government employes since 1935. Its operation, however, was limited until last year to providing an employment service for temporary agencies. Last year the program was widened to include non-civil-service employes from all agencies, but still limited to helping them find non-civil-service jobs.

D. C. Swells Red Cross Fund To $331,481

$300,000 Goal Far Exceeded; National Total to $17,309,850

The District fund for Red Cross war relief rose to $331,481.36 yesterday, while the national total reached $17,309,850.

The District Chapter received $640.50 for the day in a "clean up" campaign following attainment of its $300000 quota.

The following additional gifts were recorded yesterday from some who had given before: Capital Transit Co. employes, $70.40; Treasury Department, $159.25; Federal Works Agency, $88; Government Printing Office, $116.35; Interior Department, $93.25.

Pittsburgh yesterday became the first city with more than 1,000,000 population to reach its quota, $560,000.

Inmates of the State Prison at Attica, N. Y., "contributed $831.25 from their limited resources," Red Cross headquarters here reported.

The Charlestown, S. C., chapter, headed by Gen. Charles P. Summerall, former Army Chief of Staff, has exceeded by $5,000 its goal of $16,000.

Warring Nations' Guns Smash Supply Lines of D. C. Epicures

Caviar's Price Is Almost Double, Imported Wines Getting Scarce; Gourmets Turning to Delicacies Produced Here

"Champagne, caviar, roquefort, spisbrod—where are you?" they shout, reading the casualty list on the gustatory front: the soaring prices of imported food specialties.

Caviar Up 60 Cents

Typical of the grave situation is Russian caviar. After marshalling his staff into conference, a local delicatessen proprietor set the price for a two-ounce jar of Russian caviar at $1.25. The price three weeks ago was 65 cents.

From caterers and grocery stores came ample evidence that cargoes from vine-covered France, olive growing Lombardy and fishing grounds off Norway are being cut off.

Take the famous Matjes herring of Sweden for example. Its progress through the mine-dotted North Sea and English Channel has become so precarious that a five-pound can now brings $1.60 here instead of the $1.25 of two weeks ago, according to Albert Muller, manager of a Swedish restaurant in the 1600 block of K street northwest.

Iceland Gets Norway Trade

The fish balls that pack Muller's hors d'oeuvres platters now come from Iceland instead of Norway, he says, and for two months he was unable to get any spisbrod (special Swedish bread) at all. Then the supply came by way of Russia and Japan.

Here are some of the war reactions on Capital delicacies:

Scandinavian sardines, now 15 cents per can instead of two for a quarter as formerly; Italian olives (the kind found in the bottom of cocktail glasses) up about 10 cents a jar and still climbing; schweitzer cheese, 15 cents a package more than two weeks ago.

Also on the casualty list are Tilsiter (Denmark) cheese, potted hams from Poland and Lithuania, German Rhine wine, figs from northern Africa.

Chinese Foods Come Through

A representative of one warring country, however, has had no difficulty in getting his usual supply of imported foodstuffs. Lee Tong, proprietor of Tuch Cheong & Co., importers at 617 H street northwest, said he is still getting his quota of lichee nuts, birds nests, and 1,000-year-old eggs from China. He anticipates trouble, however, if the Japanese blockade of Hongkong tightens up.

A patriotic solution to the problem came from Otto C. Merz, 3724 Thirteenth street northwest, head chef at the Willard Hotel, and prominent member of the Washington branche of Les Amis d'Escoffier.

"One thing is certain," Merz said, "prices are going up!" No food interventionist despite his Swiss birth, he added, "It's a good thing; yes, a good thing. We'll just have to get used to domestic foods."

Rockville to Try D. C. Man Tonight For 'Wild' Driving

Paul W. Brown, 24, of 904 Twenty-third street northwest, is scheduled to appear tonight in Rockville, Md., Police Court to answer charges of failing to stop after an accident, exceeding 70 miles an hour and reckless driving.

He is alleged to have driven a car which sidewiped three automobiles in front of the Rockville courthouse, sped through Rockville, and then led Montgomery County police on a 10-mile chase on the Rockville pike.

Brown was held in $500 bond to insure his appearance in court. He was arrested early yesterday by County Policeman Ralph Howard and Melvin Wheeler.

Supper at Cedar Grove

The Ladies Aid Society of Salem Methodist Church, Cedar Grove, Md., will sponsor a fried chicken and country ham supper in the church hall tomorrow. Mrs. Mary Lee King heads the committee in charge.

J. M. Dougherty, Carpenter, Dies

James M. Dougherty, 37, a carpenter, of 2859 Mills avenue northeast, died early yesterday after a long illness.

A native of Washintgon, he was educated in the public schools and at Strayer's Business College. Surviving are his parents, Patrick J. and Mrs. Sada E. Dougherty; a sister, Mrs. Margaret Dietrich, and a brother, A. Hamilton Dougherty, all of Washington.

Funeral services will be at 9 a. m. Friday at St. Francis de Sales Church. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.
